HEAVY ICE CAUSES PILEUP ON HIGHWAY

HOPE (CP)—A chain reaction pileup caused by heavy ice blocked the Hope-Princeton Highway in southwestern British Columbia for more than five hours this morning.

No one was injured in the mishaps, but bus passengers had to spend the night in Hope motels, and passengers from two other buses which were turned back by the barrier also had to stay overnight.

Death Blow For Tax Proposals

Provinces Blast Carter Report

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The final death blows to the Carter royal commission on taxation were administered here today by the provincial treasurers meeting with Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The federal-provincial finance ministers' conference opened with a discussion on the Carter proposals and one by one the provincial treasurers in attendance voiced their criticisms.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Pearson announced today proposals for reform of the tax system will not be presented to Parliament before April.

Mr. Pearson said these proposals would be a major item of parliamentary business before the next session of the House.

Both a white paper and the legislation would require considerable discussion, he said.

Provision for discussion would be made in the new session when a new prime minister will have taken office.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were particularly outspoken in their condemnation of many aspects of the Carter tax reform plans.

Provincial Treasurer Gurney Evans of Manitoba said his province has had a special study made on the impact on small businesses in Manitoba of the Carter proposals. It said it showed the report if implemented would be "disastrous" for the "small family store" and the small businesses of which there are many in the province.

The report if implemented would also have a detrimental effect on the formation and distribution of capital, he said. Its impact on the economy as a whole and on the social structure was not known. However, it was believed by Manitoba that it would have an adverse effect on mining and extraction industries.

"The argument is advanced by Carter that if money was discouraged from going into mining the capital would be

'JACKIE TRIED FEMININE SEDUCTION'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has declared the United States tried "feminine seduction" to restore U.S.-Cambodian relations during the recent visit of Jacqueline Kennedy.

In a 50-minute French language news conference recorded in Phnom Penh Saturday and circulated here, Sihanouk said the U.S. presidential envoy, Chester Bowles, "is going to try to succeed where Mrs. Kennedy failed."

"But he will have no more success than Jackie," Sihanouk said, "and still less because Jackie is very seductive, being a woman, and the Cambodians are always sensitive to the beauty of Venus."

Avoid Cambodia Border

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk said today the United States has agreed to respect Cambodia's frontiers.

He told a press conference the American government promised to do everything possible to avoid violating the Cambodian border with Vietnam.

Addressing a press conference after a 90-minute meeting with a special envoy from President Johnson, U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles, Sihanouk said the U.S. will pass on to the Cambodian government any information it has on Vietnamese Communist infiltration "in order to allow Cambodia to carry out her duty as a neutral."

The prince said that when infiltrations are reported, he will send Cambodian armed forces to "invite the Viet Cong (guerrillas)—to leave Cambodian territory."

At the same time, he said, he will ask the International Control Commission for Cambodia—comprising Canada, India and Poland, to carry out a "minute inquiry," but he will not publicly denounce the Viet Cong.

He said the Americans do not want to use the right of pursuit of Viet Cong forces which seek sanctuary in Cambodia. "They are merely trying to help preserve Cambodia's neutrality."

Bowles arrived here Monday from New Delhi, where he is ambassador, to outline United States policy to Sihanouk.

Sihanouk said he would also welcome information "regarding all foreign infiltration, including that of CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) agents."

RELAXED, FRIENDLY

He said the atmosphere during the talks with Bowles were "relaxed and very friendly."

He described the results of the meeting as "positive." Both sides avoided "points which separate us," he added.

He said the U.S. understands the Cambodian position vis-a-vis the International Control Commission and its desire for the commission to fulfil its role to the maximum to prevent all foreign infiltration into the country.

"The Americans will be content with this," he added.

Sinhanouk said he will meet Bowles again Thursday.

Brooklyn Team Loses Another

NE YORK (CP)—Louis Block, the world's fifth heart transplant recipient, died at 4:35 a.m. today at Maimondes Medical Centre in Brooklyn, where he had undergone surgery 10 hours earlier.

Block, married and the father of two sons, was the third of the world's five heart transplant patients to die—leaving two alive.

Block's death meant the second heart graft failure for Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, who Dec. 6 attempted the first heart transplant in the U.S. on an infant who died 6 hours after the operation.

ONLY CHANCE

The statement said:

"It is with a deep sense of regret that we must report the loss of our heart transplant patient. He was a brave and courageous man. . . .

"We feel that the major problem in this case was related to the pumping capacity of the transplanted heart and the poor condition of the lungs due to the patient's long-standing heart disease. . . ."

Meanwhile, preparations for another heart transplant operation were under way at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Oklahoma City, the Daily Oklahoman reported.

Block was reported in "reasonably satisfactory condition" shortly after the operation, but his name was placed on the critical list early today when doctors were said to be having difficulty maintaining his blood pressure.

Less than an hour after the marathon operation—it lasted eight hours, 20 minutes—Dr. Kantrowitz told more than 100 reporters: "We have had some problems."

HEART IS SMALL

The heart of the donor, Miss Helen Krouch of East Paterson, N.J., was "rather small—about half of the size we would have thought best," he said. She weighed less than 100 pounds, he said.

Because of this, the heart could not maintain the body's circulation by itself, Dr. Kantrowitz said, and an auxiliary pump was brought into use. The doctors thus performed two bold procedures in the same operation.

Dr. Kantrowitz described it as a balloon pump, a balloon inserted into the main artery which inflates and deflates, pulsed to the beat of the heart, to force blood through the heart and the rest of the body. It is attached to an exterior pump.

"We will use it as long as we have to," Dr. Kantrowitz said. The pump, a new device, has been used for as long as five days so far in other heart cases.

A balloon pump has been developed by Dr. Arthur Kantrow-

'Significant Improvement' At Stanford

Sustained by the steady beat of a housewife's heart, the retired steelworker was able to sit on the side of his bed several times during the night. His condition remained critical, however.

Kasperak, 54, was supported by nurses and remained inside a mechanical respirator while sitting up, according to a mid-morning medical bulletin issued by Stanford University.

"His blood pressure is normal, pulse 108, and he has no fever," the bulletin said. "Dialysis and artificial respiration are being decreased to allow his kidneys and lungs to resume their full functions. His physicians are still concerned about his abnormal liver function.

The bulletin, the most optimistic on his condition since his operation, said "there has been significant improvement in Mr. Kasperak's condition although he is still on the critical list".

Students Strangled

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Three mentally retarded students in their 20s were found strangled, apparently by bedsheets, beside their bed, in a dormitory at the St. Louis state school and hospital today. St. Louis County police took four unidentified suspects into custody for questioning.

NO RELIEF UNTIL FRIDAY

Weather Retains Icy Grip

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bundled-up Canadians went to work today, protected against the cold weather and snow which held most of the country in its icy grip.

No relief was expected today in the Maritimes from the snow and frigid weather which has taken three lives in New Brunswick. The cold was expected to last until Friday.

Western Newfoundland, battered by blizzards in the last five days, was expected to gain relief, however, as the cold winds subsided.

At Corner Brook, Nfld., a mother and nine children fled barefoot from their home through waist-deep snow to sound a fire alarm 200 yards away. Their house burned to the ground.

ROADS BLOCKED

Plows struggled to open main highways in Prince Edward Island. Secondary roads were still clogged.

Halifax recorded six-below-zero, its coldest Jan. 8 in 70 years. A 90-year-record was broken at Montreal when the temperature dipped to 21 below Monday and 23 below Tuesday. Scores of schools were closed.

The morning Ontario weather forecast said sub-zero readings could be expected overnight and Thursday. The snow, general in Ontario Tuesday, ended before midnight in most places.

Plumbers thawing frozen pipes with acetelyne torches are thought to have caused a fire in Hotel-Dieu Hospital in St. Hyacinthe, Que., which forced evacuation of about 1,200 persons.

FOUR DEAD

Four children died in a house fire in West Lorne, Ont., Tuesday. Another fire at Oakville destroyed a two-family house and forced 21 persons, including 11 children into sub-zero weather.

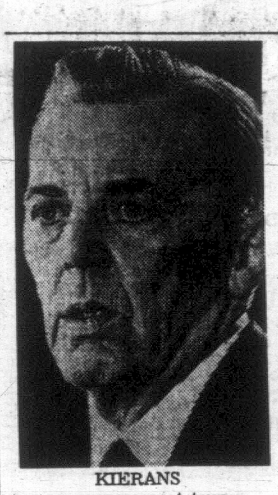

Records for overnight low temperatures on a Jan. 9 were set in the seven Ontario communities of Moosonee —46, Earlton —35, Trenton —24, Killaloe —38, Ottawa —26, Sarnia —4 and Kingston —26.

Hawk Junction, a railway hamlet 165 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Canada's coldest community Monday at 66 below, Tuesday reported a relatively balmy 10 below.

Clouds moved over Manitoba, which reported clear skies Tuesday.

First Minister In Race

He will become the first federal cabinet minister to enter the race officially and the third candidate.

Swinging New Federalism Demands Grit Candidate

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Eric Kierans opened another tour early today, 10 hours after jumping into the national Liberal leadership contest with a demand for a swinging "new federalism."

The 53-year-old former Quebec revenue and health minister announced his candidacy for the prime ministership at a partly-televised press conference when he reported his resignation as president of the 100,000-member Quebec Liberal Federation.

The first nationally-known figure to enter the race, Mr. Kierans envisaged a new independence and dynamism in Canada whose French- and English-language citizens would be drawn closer together by constitutional changes.

The economist and former university professor gave two reasons why he decided to offer himself to the Ottawa April 4-6 Liberal convention which will pick a successor for Prime Minister Pearson:

"Because I am concerned with the speed of and demand for change sweeping the world, and Canada in particular. A federal state is a state in motion; it demands from its government continual adaptation and evolution."

See Story Page 10

He arranged an early departure today for Fredericton, Saint John and Moncton—where, incidentally, he started his business life as a flour salesman some 30 years ago.

He was scheduled to go to Charlottetown Thursday then to Halifax Friday and Saturday to attend a meeting of the Nova Scotia Liberal Federation and Ottawa Sunday. He will then go to Toronto and Winnipeg.

Mr. Kierans, who has never before taken part in federal politics, indicated he is willing to allow several federal ministers who are expected to enter the leadership race to take responsibility for federal policies.

Mr. Kierans served in two Quebec portfolios—revenue and health—in 1963-66, during Quebec's Quiet Revolution when experts of every kind were brought in by Mr. Lesage and his colleagues to cope with and encourage surging change. Mr. Kierans now proposes an infusion of similar new blood in Ottawa.

Opposition Condemns Boycott

By JOHN MIKA

Opposition party leaders today charged Premier Bennett was letting British Columbia down by skipping a finance ministers' meeting in Ottawa today while extending his post-Christmas holiday in the United States sun.

Mr. Bennett had said he would be back at his desk this morning but it was learned he would stay on holiday until Monday.

Meanwhile, the federal-provincial meeting on the Carter Tax Commission report opened in Ottawa with only B.C. unrepresented, as the premier had decided earlier.

Both New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan and Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Mr. Bennett was failing his province as finance minister by boycotting the meeting.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, acting finance minister while Mr. Bennett is holidaying, defended the boycott on the grounds that too many federal-provincial meetings "tend to be

U.S. STEPS UP DRAFT TO MEET ARMY NEEDS

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. is greatly increasing conscription to provide replacements for the army.

Pentagon sources say the 39,000-man draft call announced for March is a sign of things to come this spring and summer—with monthly manpower requests of about 40,000 or more likely in April, May and June. Last year's draft in the same four-month period averaged only about 15,300 a month.

PUBLICITY TAKES UP EXTRA TIME

It's Hard Work Working for Nothing

LONDON (Reuters) — Five young secretaries who started a Back Britain campaign by working an unpaid extra 30 minutes a day have found the publicity taking up most of the extra time.

Offers for television interviews, marriage, blind dates, vacations in Spain, yachting trips and free weekends in a London hotel have poured into the office where they work in the south London suburb of Surbiton.

And they have to get up even earlier than they originally planned—so they can make up more carefully in case television cameras start shooting them on their way to work.

"We must be madly careful this doesn't turn into a stunt," said 16-year-old Carol White, second youngest of the quintet, who have turned down a flood of offers.

Television crews, reporters and officials from government and industry have lined up to interview them since their free work plan started a nationwide campaign aimed at inspiring a mass burst of unpaid work to help Britain out of its economic doldrums.

But there was no evidence of a mass response to the campaign, boosted by London newspapers, one of which issued rectangular badges printed with the Union Jack and the motto "I'm backing Britain."

The secretaries made their free work offer in response to a routine New Year's exhortation from their company, Colt Heating and Ventilation.

BULLS-EYE LANDING IN CRATER

'Wild Lunar Scene' Filmed by Surveyor

PASADENA, Calif. (CP) — The lunar exploration program today appeared to have taken a major step forward thanks to the successful near bulls-eye landing of the Surveyor VII on the moon.

Narrowly missing a dangerous rock, the spacecraft settled down gently on the moon Tuesday night and televised the wildest scene yet found by U.S. lunar probes.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here were pleased that the last of the scheduled, unmanned American lunar probes landed in terrain far different from areas in which four previous successful Surveyors landed.

Surveyor program manager Benjamin Milwitsky of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said:

"It is very clearly a different terrain. I think we'll be a major step up in our understanding of the moon from the information gathered by Surveyor VII."

WERE THE SAME

The three-legged craft, last of a $500,000,000 series which has already certified four equatorial sites as safe for astronaut landing, was on a purely scientific mission to the 15,000-foot crater Tycho near the south-central edge of the lunar disc.

Surveyor VII made an almost flat landing on a crater-picked, boulder-strewn plateau not far from a ragged ridge 18 miles north of Tycho's rim.

Between the craft and the rim was a desolate scene, reminiscent of the crater Copernicus photographed earlier by lunar orbiters.

Pictures televised shortly after touchdown showed a landscape littered with rocks ejected from miles deep when the 50-mile wide Tycho was formed by a meteor impact ages ago.

Surveyor VII, launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday, carries a small scoop to dig trenches as deep as 18 inches and a device to analyse lunar soil with radiation.

Medicare Plan To Be Raised

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp will learn first hand from the provincial treasurers that the provinces would prefer to see Ottawa's medicare plan postponed.

Medicare is not even mentioned on the agenda of the federal-provincial finance ministers conference which opened here Tuesday afternoon. But there is an item "other business", and Provincial Treasurer David Steuart of Saskatchewan said he would raise it if nobody else did.

Saskatchewan has its own medicare plan now in operation. Premier Ross Thatcher is on record as favoring that the federal government postpone implementation of the Ottawa version of medicare, but give Saskatchewan the equivalent in funds that it would get if the federal plan become operative July 1, 1968.

Manitoba Provincial Treasurer Gurney Evans said medicare was a subject out of his field and handled by Premier Walter Weir. But he said when medicare was discussed today or Thursday he would make it clear Manitoba would prefer that Ottawa not proceed with its present plan but would like to see further discussions to change the terms of reference of the federal plan.

The federal government's last declaration on the question of medicare was that it had been enacted by parliament and is scheduled to become operative July 1, 1968. It had originally been scheduled to go into operation in 1967 but at the urging of Finance Minister Sharp it was postponed one year.

There are several members of the cabinet who would like to see it postponed again for a year because of the economy wave the federal government has embarked upon to combat inflation. But Mr. Sharp a candidate-to-be for the Liberal leadership, does not want again to lead the fight to postpone medicare.

Mr. Sharp feels that having taken that position once and aroused the ire of the left-wing members of the Liberal party it is up to Prime Minister L. Pearson to make the move this time. But advocates of medicare in the cabinet are pressuring the prime minister to leave the medicare operative date untouched.

The provincial treasurers want to know from Ottawa whether or not medicare is to become operative this year. They point out it is more than "ridiculous" to be discussing financial and economic plans for 1968-69 if they do not know yet for sure whether they will have to pay out large sums for medicare.

. . . CARTER REPORT

diverted into the development of other resources in Manitoba. But this does not necessarily follow because those interested in investing their capital in mining operations would look elsewhere in the world and the capital would be lost to Manitoba," said Mr. Evans.

The Manitoba treasurer said there would be discussions for new tax rental agreements.

CLEAR UP UNCERTAINTY

Saskatchewan provincial treasurer David Steuart said all provinces have made it clear they are not enamored of the proposals. Mr. Sharp had promised the provinces the opportunity to assess the report and present their views before the federal government prepares its white paper on tax reform. Mr. Steuart called on the federal government to state its conclusion and recommendations as soon as possible to clear up uncertainty in the country.

Saskatchewan in company with the other prairie provinces undertook the study of the implications of the report on the agricultural industry. Mr. Steuart said Saskatchewan was alarmed that the implementation of the report will adversely affect the economic development of the province and the prairie region.

There would be a substantial increase in taxes on Saskatchewan's farmers if the proposals are adopted, said Mr. Steuart.

HURT FARMERS

"It is evident from its recommendations that the Carter commission failed to grasp the problems of the farmer and the nature of his farming operations. It is obvious that the relevant sections of the report were written by persons familiar with accounting rather than farming.

"While the implementation of the commission's proposals on agriculture might be a windfall for accountants it would be another blow to the farmer in terms of increased taxes and costs associated with a complicated accounting system to calculate these taxes. We consider the proposals completely unacceptable at a time when the farmer is already caught in a cost-price squeeze," said Mr. Steuart.

B.C. was not represented at the federal-provincial meeting. Finance Minister Premier W. A. C. Bennett decided not to attend.

. . . BOYCOTT

"On more than one occasion in the past, the provincial spokesmen who attend them feel they have been brought to Ottawa merely as window-dressing for some fancy federal pronouncement.

"It marks a want of confidence by the national government in the mail system that Ottawa should convene these meetings with such startling frequency and with such little result."

But Mr. Strachan pointed out that productive results will never come from boycotts.

"Whether or not every meeting is productive is not the important issue," he said.

'SHOULD BE THERE'

"The important thing is that meetings take place because if anything is to be achieved, it is through such meetings that achievements will be made.

"So the premier should be there (in Ottawa). He can't plead lack of time or prior engagements."

Mr. Perrault said the boycott was part of a separatist trend in the Bennett administration.

SEPARATIST PATTERN

"The taxpayers of B.C. do not expect Mr. Bennett to bask in warm sunshine while decisions are being made in eastern Canada which could well affect the financial well-being of this province.

"This latest absence by the premier, this latest affront to confederation, is part of a separatist pattern which must be condemned in the strongest possible terms.

"For the sake of Canada and the sake of the people of our own province, it is intolerable that the premier should continue his opting-out campaign."

"Cut!"

16 Killers Escape The Noose

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen convicted murderers have escaped the gallows as a result of a cabinet decision to commute all outstanding death sentences in Canada to life imprisonment.

The commutations follow Parliament's enactment of a new law to limit the death penalty for murder to killers of policemen and prison guards for a five-year trial period.

A justice department spokesman said Tuesday notices of the decision were sent Monday to legal authorities in Quebec, holding 12 men on death row, and to British Columbia and Ontario, each holding two condemned men.

None of the commuted sentences had been given for the killing of a policeman or prison guard.

FROM MONTREAL

Half of the men are from Montreal—Robert Collin, Claude Martin, Jean-Jacques Gladu, brothers Roland and Jacques Poirier, Douglas Brown, David Albert DeLeon, and Henri Boivin.

Others are Marcel Bernier, Shawinigan; Roger Demers, Quebec; Douglas Joseph Booth, Ottawa; Jean-Jacques Boivin, Hull, Que.; Herbert Matthew Myers, Prince George, B.C.; Rene Castellani, Vancouver; Harold Arthur Ortt, Chatham, Ont.; and Ovila Boulet, Quebec City.

Ortt had been sentenced to die Tuesday.

The cabinet must confirm all executions. The Liberal government has sent no one to the gallows since taking office in April, 1963. It has commuted 44 sentences, including two for the murder of policemen and one for the murder of a prison guard.

In addition to the murder of police and prison guards, the death penalty remains for most acts of treason, violence against the sovereign, cowardice in battle in the face of the enemy, mutiny, and a few other offences outside the civil murder field. But even death penalties imposed by military courts must be confirmed by the cabinet.

Since Confederation, there have been 701 hangings in Canada.

BEN ABLE TO PUT ON THE DOG

KESWICK, England (AP) — Ben, a 14-year-old Lakeland terrier, has inherited £5,000 ($12,850) to become on of Britain's richest dogs.

The will of widow Madeline Arinson declared that she had arranged with John Porter and his wife to look after Ben and give him a home. She directed that £5,000 be invested and the income used to care for Ben as long as he lives. When he dies the money will go to eight animal charities.

WEATHER IMPROVED

Hunt Resumes for Plane

VANCOUVER (CP) — An air search for a small aircraft with three men aboard, missing since Monday on a 500-mile flight from Vancouver to Edmonton, was resumed today.

Bad weather prevented all aerial searching Tuesday. But air search and rescue spokesmen said here that conditions "look more promising" today. An Albatross aircraft began the search from Penticton at first light.

"But the weather is still not as good as we would like," he added.

Flt. Lt. Jack Crawford flew to Penticton Tuesday to direct the search. He had planes also standing by at Edmonton and Comox, and a helicopter at Hope.

The three men were aboard a twin-engine Cessna 320 that failed to report to a checkpoint at Rocky Mountain House, Alta., about midday Monday.

The plane, not equipped with skis or floats for landing, was piloted by Gary Foslien, 20, of Burnaby. With him were Reginald Cameron Thurber, president of the Victoria consulting firm of R. C. Thurber and Associates, and company engineer Harvey Dishaw.

The storm which dumped six to 12 inches of snow over many coastal and southern interior points of B.C. Tuesday was developing blizzard conditions over the western prairies this morning. Following the disturbance a few sunny periods may be expected over the province Thursday but brief snow flurries are likely as well.

353,000 SEEK JOBS

4.6 Per Cent Out of Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment showed an abnormal increase between November and December, rising to 353,000 at mid-December from 289,00 a month earlier, a government report said today. In December of 1966 it was 266,000.

December jobless represented 4.6 per cent of the labor force. After adjustment for seasonal factors, the rate was 4.7 per cent.

This compared with an unadjusted unemployment rate of 3.8 per cent in November and 3.6 in December of 1966.

A report issued jointly by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the average increase in unemployment between November and December over the last five years had been 40,000. The new figure of 64,000 was 60 per cent above that.

Meanwhile, there was a jump of 171,000 jobs over the year with advances of 120,000 in the service industries and 59,000 in trade and drops of 45,000,000 in manufacturing and 18,000 in construction.

British Columbia employment was 7.7 per cent higher on the year, leading all regions.

Unemployment in the Atlantic region stood at 6.6 per cent, followed by British Columbia at 6.3. Quebec had 5.8 per cent of its labor force out of work; the Prairies 3.5, and Ontario 3.2.

Higher Price Index Blamed on Luxuries

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The little things—and the luxuries—were responsible in large part for sending the cost of living up last year.

The December index of consumer prices, reported Tuesday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, showed that the commodities and services that take the largest part of the family budget—shelter and food—rose the least in 1967.

Health and personal care, recreation, reading, tobacco and alcohol together account for 18 per cent of total urban family spending, and the cost of them rose more than five per cent in the year.

Housing, including house purchase prices, rents, and household operation costs, accounts for 32 per cent of family spending, and the index of prices covering them rose 3.8 per cent in the year.

Food—accounting for 27 per cent of the spending budget—rose only 2.7 per cent in price from December, 1966, to December, 1967. In the previous 12 months, that index rose 3.6 per cent.

PRICE FLUCTUATION

Food prics were falling in the first few months of last year, at a time when a Senate-Commons committee was investigating food prices. It was the first time in at least six years that food prices were in a long, downward slide lasting eight or nine months.

Food prices rose sharply after mid-year, however, and then fell at harvest time. They now are rising again.

Finance Minister Sharp imposed higher taxes on tobacco and alcohol in his December mini-budget. In some provinces these were passed on immediately to the consumer in higher retail prices, sending the price index up.

In other provinces, higher beer, whisky and wine prices did not become effective until this month, a fact likely to be shown in the January index when it is released next month.

STANFIELD

Tory Leader Travels To Talk About Unity

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative leader Stanfield will stress the national unity theme in a western trip next week.

Mr. Stanfield will address the German-Canadian club in Toronto next Monday and then fill three engagements in Manitoba on the following two days.

Then it is on to British Columbia for a Conservative ball in Kamloops, Thursday, Jan. 18. The swing ends with his attendance at the annual meeting of the B.C. party and a fund-raising dinner in Vancouver the next two days.

Mr. Stanfield is expected to convey his attitude on the need for an accommodation with Quebec. But he is not expected to lay down firm policy on the French-English question, still being discussed by a committee of the party's MPs.

His wife will accompany him on the trip. Mr. Stanfield is now in Montreal on the second total-immersion course he has taken to improve his French.

PRESIDENTIAL SYSTEM FOR QUEBEC?

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says in a copyright story from Quebec that a major reorganization of the offices of provincial premier and the cabinet will begin soon in what could be the first of a presidential system in Quebec.

The newspaper says changes planned by Premier Daniel Johnson involve key posts in his office and include the appointment of a deputy minister whose functions would be those of secretary-general of the government.

INDUSTRY, TRANSPORTATION PARALYZED

U.K. 'A Giant Skating Rink'

LONDON (UPI) — A "big freeze" gripped Britain in an icy hammerlock today after heavy snow and rain laid the country flat on its back.

The Automobile Association said early this morning weather conditions had settled down to "the big freeze almost everywhere" and by rush-hour "the country will have become a giant skating rink."

More than 100,000 miles of roads in 45 countries were either blocked or almost impassable by frozen slush, hard-packed frozen snow and just plain ice.

Motorists and public transport systems, reeling from Tuesday's massive snowfalls, faced even greater hazards on the trek to work this morning.

The AA expected traffic chaos in many areas and warned motorists to start from their homes early.

Industry in many parts of the country was paralyzed. Bus and rail services were almost at a standstill. And millions of pounds worth of vital exports were trapped on snow-locked roads and in shut-down factories.

Hundreds of cars were abandoned in a snow corridor reaching north into the Midlands. Even multi-lane highways were closed or restricted to one lane traffic.

London's Heathrow Airport was shutdown when snowplows fought a losing battle to keep the runways clear. Airline schedules were in chaos, with many flights diverted to foreign airfields.

To add to the weather woes, North Devon floundered under the worst floods for 10 years after rivers burst their banks. A 60-mile an-hour gale and 14-hour deluge of rain swamped Exmoor and Dartmoor, pouring down into the surrounding grazing valleys.

Hundreds of acres of land around the Taw and Torridge Rivers were turned into giant lakes. Farmers lost hundreds of sheep in the frigid flood waters and many houses and villages were threatened as millions of gallons of water continued cascading into roads and fields through the night.

Army amphibians and air force helicopters were called out on rescue missions.

Twenty-six children were ferried to safety from their schoolbus, gradually being inundated by floods, in a dinghy lowered from an RAF helicopter.

Army trucks picked up stranded sheep and flood-hit cottagers. One amphibian which had gathered 20 sheep from the water was smashed against a bridge by raging floods. The five-man crew swam to safety but the sheep vanished.

Avalanches Feared

GENEVA (Reuters) — Fierce blizzards struck Switzerland today, closing main airports, halting and disrupting rail and road traffic and threatening avalanches in mountain regions.

The blizzards, accompanied by winds up to 60 miles an hour, caused chaos for drivers in Geneva and cut roads to Lausanne and Paris.

Airports at Geneva, Zurich and Basel were closed. The Davos Avalanche Institute warned of the danger of snowslides and advised the evacuation of some alpine areas.

U.S. JOBLESS RATE DROPS TO '53 LEVEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. unemployment rate dropped to the lowest level in eight months in December, reflecting an upsurge in the economy, the labor department reported today.

The jobless rate last month was 3.7 per cent of the labor force, down two-tenths of one per cent from November. It was the lowest level since last March, when it also stood at 3.7 per cent.

The unemployment rate for all of 1967 was 3.8 per cent—unchanged from 1966 when joblessness fell to the lowest percentage since the Korean war. That was 2.9 per cent in 1953.

The Plan for the Year

MAYOR HUGH STEPHEN HAS set a new standard for inaugural addresses in this city and one which should be maintained by himself and his successors in the future. Abandoning the historic-review type of speech, Mr. Stephen produced as clear and informative a definition of the forthcoming year's policies and programs as this community has ever been given, with foresight and eloquence that should make it a model of its kind. This is the sort of annual message which citizens can understand, and a yardstick against which they can measure the accomplishment of their representatives in the months ahead.

Victoria's civic menu for 1968 will require individual consideration of its various parts, but the general outlines of the year's projects and problems are clear. High on the list is the perennial difficulty arising from the refusal of the provincial government to co-operate in a thorough study of the whole problem of municipal financing. The steady increase in education costs, with their high-priority bite out of the tax dollar, is making it more difficult to finance other necessary municipal functions.

With only the property tax for revenue, the squeeze on civic budgets and on the taxpayers is becoming severe. The needs of the modern community, it seems clear, cannot be adequately met from the small revenue base available, without setting property taxes at a rate which will bring other factors into play: an abandonment of home ownership, a fall-off in building, a trend to move out of the city into areas with fewer services and lower costs. The provincial government's present handout system of municipal grants is far from adequate to meet the requirements. A new approach is long overdue, and the increasing resort to regional administration of municipal operations, admirable as it is, cannot hide the basic fault.

Noting an "inexorable" rise of 26 per cent in the local tax burden since 1961, Mr. Stephen sees "most serious consequences" for Victoria if it is not checked. While the general mill rate has risen 13 per cent during the past six years, the school rate has risen by nearly four times this figure. Few persons will question the need for adequate school facilities—what future can a community have without them?—but we must recognize, as Mr. Stephen puts it, that "the priority of education is resulting in the neglect of other essential services."

Making school boards responsible for their own tax collection, rather than the city council, would render this situation clearer but it would not change the impact on the individual taxpayer. It is in this field that the provincial government should accept its responsibility. Evasion can no longer be seen as a policy; it has become an obsession.

Defences Up

THERE HAVE BEEN ASSURances from Ottawa that the program announced on New Year's Day by President Johnson, to cut the American balance of payments deficit, would have little effect on Canada. Ten days later these assurances look a little thin. The return of the President's two special envoys—Mr. Katzenbach, undersecretary of state, from Europe, and Mr. Eugene Rostow, undersecretary for political affairs, from Asia—brought out the possibility that the United States may impose restrictive trade measures if other countries do not cooperate in helping to solve the American payment deficit problem.

American restrictive measures, which might take the form of taxes on United States imports as well as subsidies for exports, would not necessarily affect Canadian - American trade directly. Canada contributes to the United States' surplus on merchandise trade, not to its deficit. Nevertheless, Finance Minister Sharp finds it necessary to issue a warning to the United States that Canada is prepared to retaliate if any trade barriers are erected—a warning which emphasizes the gravity of the situation.

The chief damage to Canada's position in the event of American restrictions, if not directly applied against Canada, would be to this country's trade with other countries —particularly the Common Market and Japan — which in blocking United States' imports would presumably also keep out Canadian. Any revival of protectionism in world trade would catch this country, which also has a balance of payments problem, in a tight squeeze.

There has been a strong suggestion in the remarks of officials in Washington that the easiest and quickest way out of the impasse would be for Congress to enact the tax increase bill which President Johnson has been urging for a year. A number of foreign governments, both in Europe and Asia, feel that the United States must act to halt inflationary pressures concurrently with the effort to reduce the payments deficit. Without this action, they say, the United States drive to hold down foreign investment while boosting sales abroad has the effect of exporting American inflation.

Both Mr. Rostow and Mr. Katzenbach, as did Treasury Secretary Fowler last week, emphasize that the tax increase is necessary to make the deficit-cutting program, in Mr. Rostow's words, "effective and credible."

The United States has good grounds to expect co-operation from foreign countries which are operating in a balance of payments surplus position in helping to ease the American deficit. These countries, Germany and France for example, would be wise to revise their approach to trade—to ease off the restrictive import taxes which apply now to the whole Common Market—in the interests of future trade stability. At the same time it is difficult to fault them for their insistence that the United States set its domestic finances in order.

Better Than You Think

FOR YEARS EDUCATORS HAVE made the point that IQ tests could not achieve perfection in determining a child's native intelligence or establishing beyond question his ability to forge ahead in academic work. But with this qualification, the ratings were generally accepted as a yardstick by which the child's potential could be measured—and the rating was assumed to be relatively constant.

Now the theory has been seriously shaken. Experiments in various parts of the United States indicate that when IQs of certain children were faked and made to appear higher than genuine testing registered, the children concerned were able to progress much more quickly than their actual ratings would have suggested. Furthermore, spectacular improvements have been found in their IQs as their progress accelerated.

There appears to be an important message for all educators in this experiment—and particularly for those who argue that a student should not be pushed to advance beyond the capacities indicated by his IQ. Given the encouragement of believing that he has superior intellectual capacities—and the stimulation of teaching geared to a brighter student—it appears that the child can do better than expected.

This fits a very old viewpoint held by veteran teachers: Let the child set his own pace and a very human inclination will lead him to move leisurely; give him a push and he increases his pace without detriment to himself.

Hot Pursuit

FROM LONDON — By TIM TRAYNOR

An Effective Crusade Against Traffic Tolls

THINK of a tourist-brochure British scene—quaint narrow streets, sunny country lanes, pigeons in cathedral squares. Now imagine it blackened, dotted with garish yellow streetlights and overrun with traffic at its filthiest and deadliest. Sad to say, the second vision has been as typical of Britain in recent years as the first. The proliferation of the motor vehicle has meant the creation of a destructive flood of traffic which roars on far into the night and which has, as a rule, become more lethal hour by evening hour. The plague has been most virulent in the cities but has not been confined to them.

Traynor

The hours around midnight when the situation has been at its ugliest are the hours of pub closing — the hours when thousands up and down the country have their last drink and wend their way home. It has been in the afterglow of barside conviviality that the roads have taken their grimmest toll in dead and injured. Beer-loving Britons have gradually had to face up to the fact that they have been paying an appalling price for socializing in their favorite way — driving to meet friends at a chosen pub.

Government Initiative

In the normal run of things, the prospect at the outset of 1968 would have been for political water-testing, mounting slaughter on the highways, and a lengthening of the pestilential traffic shadow over the whole society. It would not have been possible to envisage a meaningful government attack on the problem as a whole in the absence of progress on the most glaring issue — drinking and driving. But fortunately for Britain matters were not allowed to slide. The government took the initiative against the drunken driver and road accidents were cut spectacularly over the Christmas holiday. It is now possible to hope for a new era in traffic control.

The story of the breathalyzer is well known but it is worth recalling what has happened since it was introduced in October. In the five-day Christmas period, there were 98 deaths compared with 158 in 1966. Only once in the past nine years has the toll been lower. The number of injured was down from 5,792 to 3,931. There was a 5 per cent cut in accidents for the country as a whole and a 38 per cent cut for London. Only nine people were killed in London, compared with 20 in 1966.

Impressive Progress

The rate of progress on all fronts was far better than the minister of transport, Barbara Castle, had envisaged on the basis of preliminary figures for October. She had then stepped up her original estimate of the number of lives that might be saved in the first breathalyzer year from 200 to 1,200. So the prospect now is that the 1966 death toll of 7,895 may be far above that of the coming year — provided the present pattern continues.

The pattern is striking. Late-evening traffic has fallen off drastically and with it, late evening casualty figures. Drivers setting out for the pub are plainly leaving their cars at home rather than risk failing a roadside breathalyzer test, which could mean up to a $300 fine, three months imprisonment and disqualification from driving for a year. Predictions that beer sales would fall off drastically have not been borne out. City pubs have actually gained business from local residents who previously drove farther afield. It is the less numerous country pubs which have suffered, but even here the disruption has not been too severe provided a pub serves meals. At Christmas many office parties were called off or curtailed because of the new law.

There have been predictions that the old pattern will re-emerge once the novelty of the breath test wears off. It is pointed out that the police and the bench have been fairly gentle in their application of the new law so far. The law stipulates that a driver can be prosecuted if a blood or urine test, following a breath test, indicates the presence of 80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood, but the police have not generally prosecuted unless the level has been around 100 milligrams. The average fine levied has been only about one quarter of the maximum and there hasn't yet been a case of a first offender going to jail. There are special grounds for waiving the licence suspension and these have evidently been used on occasion. It has been claimed that the type of case being convicted now is little different from the type convicted under laws in force before the breathalyzer. The conclusion drawn is that drivers will eventually suspect thay can drive after a good deal of drinking and get away with it, the upshot being a return to the bad old days.

Doctors' Pressure

This is not impossible, but it seems unlikely in view of the fact that other European countries prosecute at blood alcohol levels lower than that stipulated as the British limit. There is already some pressure among doctors here for a toughening of the new law in this direction, and the government might well take heed if the accident rate began to rise once again. It would be far less difficult a decision to take than the introduction of the breathalyzer; that involved a collision with the cherished common law principle that the onus is on the accuser to prove a suspect guilty.

A man asked to take a breathalyzer test is required to show that he has not drunk excessively. The principle is, however, already well breached by legislation — as when a man looking as if he is carrying stolen property is required to say where he got it or go to prison.

Several other points have to be borne in mind. A Gallup Poll has shown that 69 per cent of the population now approve of the new law as against 26 per cent who oppose it. There is, too, a new prospect of cuts in insurance premiums for accident-free drivers since the insurance companies can look forward to lower accidents claims. Where next for the government? In the summer it imposed a 75-mile per hour speed limit on multi-lane highways and it now has under consideration the imposition of a 60-mile per hour ban on some roads.

May Stiffen Code

Consideration is also being given to a stiffening of the driving code to make disqualification mandatory for a wider range of traffic code transgressions involving negligence. Mrs. Castle has recently brought in a bill reorganizing regional bus systems and might follow up with a road-pricing scheme whereby motorists entering congested areas would have to feed a coin meter mounted on their dashboard and visible through their front window. The government is contributing to research on a wide variety of schemes — including electrically-guided buses, pedestrian conveyor belts, driverless taxi-trains on a moving track, electric city cars and a 300-mile per hour hovertrain. The target of all these is to cut traffic congestion, already abominable with 13 million vehicles on the roads. Immediate moves might involve a switch to off-street parking, and, to some summer travellers coming off packed highways — North American style motels.

Letters to the Editor

Shrinking Dollar

Extending your graph of the cost of living curve published on your financial page, indicates that by 1974 the Canadian paper dollar will be worth 33 cents, by early 1976, 25 cents, and by 1980 ten cents of its worth in 1949. Thereafter, its disappearance into oblivion will be a matter of months.

CS Pensions

As a retired Dominion Civil Servant, it seems crystal clear to me that this present government has no intention of ever making adjustments in our pensions to compensate for the rising cost of living. This seems so in spite of the fact that there are some two to three billions of dollars in the pension fund, and that the interest on this at four per cent far exceeds the actual payments to us pensioners. Also, in spite of the fact that many other governments, including B.C. have made such an adjustment.

However, this huge sum of untouched billions of dollars in the pension fund should be of concern to the voting Canadian, especially, too, as it seems to be available at only four per cent interest.

In any democracy where politicians, rather than statesmen run the government, it often appears that "honor" "justice" and "right" are not as important as the desire for votes. Could we, then, the voting Canadians, find some good use for these billions of untouched dollars? Think of the scholarships, the medical research it could finance, what hospitals, schools, universities could be built and supported, what hydro dams and bridges. There should be enough over for the MPs to "take care" of themselves. — Joseph Haegert, 1516 Pembroke.

Looking Back

From The Times, Jan. 10, 1908.

The development of the coal deposits at North Saanich within 20 miles of the city of Victoria still goes on apace. It is reported that a seam three feet thick has been discovered and the prospectors are still going deeper.

Capt. Bissett, who has bonded a large part of the north end of the peninsula, has interested capitalists in the scheme and it is not at all improbable that big developments will result in the near future.

An Elephant Turns White

By JAMES H. GRAY
From Edmonton

THIS footnote to the "develop-the-north!" agitation of the Diefenbaker years can be entitled "the $100 million miscalculation." It is indicative of the aberrant political climate of Alberta that the revelation of this monstrous snafu is causing barely a murmur of embarrassment to the Manning administration.

Gray

The Manningites still insist there has been no snafu, that the 200-mile Alberta Resources Railway will bring the development of the rich mineral and forest products of Alberta's most remote outback.

The facts are these: The Alberta Resources Railway emerged full blown from the Socred caucus in February, 1965. The government announced that it would spend $40 millions to build the railway from Hinton, 185 miles west of Edmonton on the CNR main line, to Grande Prairie, 285 miles northwest of Edmonton on the Northern Alberta Railway.

The Alberta Resources Railway would traverse some of the wildest country left in the province. But it would bring the Peace River farmers 250 miles closer to Vancouver, tap rich coal deposits, encourage the development of gypsum deposits, spark the building of new lumber and forest products plants.

When the government was pressed for details about the economics of the project, however, it had to rely on just such vague statements as the above. There were no feasibility studies based on contracts because there were no contracts. There was only the assurance that the Japanese were interested in the Smoky River coal deposit which a big eastern gold mine wanted to work.

Fast Action

No government project ever got off the ground quicker than the Alberta Resources Railway. The bill passed the house in April. The line was completely surveyed by November 1st, 1965. By the following March, 60 miles of right-of-way were cleared and graded. By May, 1966, the gold miners had moved in to develop the coal deposits.

There were glowing statements about billions of tons of coal being available, about shipments of three million tons a year to Japan, about the possibility of pulp mills, about a new town of 4,000 springing up around the mine.

The escalation of the cost estimates kept pace with construction. By July of 1967, 60 miles of steel had been laid and the cost estimate was now approaching $80 million. And there were still no contracts, not even for the connection to the Northern Alberta Railway at Grande Prairie.

However, even before Premier Manning escorted the railway inspecting party down the line last summer, some gloss was rubbing off the project.

The mining company president in May had said that the Carter Commission report could cause the coal deal to be dropped.

In November it announced that the Japanese had made a "ridiculously" low offer for the coal, $12.80 a ton compared with the asking price of $14.50 a ton. On December 28, a mining company spokesman admitted that negotiations had been broken off with the Japanese.

This was followed immediately with another statement that the negotiations were still going on.

There is also going on now a feasibility study, by the subsidiary of an American soap company, for a pulp processing plant on the railway. As this highly preliminary study will cost only $100,000 and will not be completed until 1969, it can be seen that this project is at least a decade away at the earliest.

No Quick Returns

Even if the Japanese eventually do a deal with the gold miners, this project too will take time. A pilot plant will have to be built to test the coking qualities of the coal. Mitsubishi has already invested heavily in coal in the Crow's Nest Pass so its interest in the Smoky River deposits can hardly be regarded as urgent.

If both the pulp mill and coal deal were fairly developed, the railway line's economics would have been exceedingly thin at its original cost. But for the $100 millions it will ultimately cost the white elephant status it will achieve is assured. Nor will the economics be improved if all the wheat grown in the Peace River block moves over it to Vancouver. The railways lose, not make, money on the grain movement.

As things stand now, Alberta has a brand new railway, on which it has spent $80 millions and over which nothing will move in the foreseeable future. For interest on the investment alone, at current money market rates, it is costing the province almost $6 millions a year. But such is life in Alberta today that neither the huge capital expenditure nor the annual drain to infinity is causing even a ripple of discontent among the faithful.

Cambridge Colleagues

The thing that mattered most to me was friendship. I met friends there, I met people I could be friends with, which I'd never had before, and that was very important because they've been my friends through life. The friends I made at Cambridge are all dead now, but they lasted as long as they lived.

The Wandervogel of 60 Years Ago Forerunners of Hippies of Today

By WALTER LAQUEUR

The hippie movement and philosophy with its cult of youth and avowed distaste for the conformity of urban civilization has baffled and often enraged an older generation over the past several years. Reaction to the phenomenon has seldom recognized that the movement could be an historically normal reaction of youth to the times.

Prof. Laqueur, director of the Institute of Contemporary History in London, draws an interesting parallel between the hippies of today and the far-reaching youth movement in the early years of this century which had its beginnings in Germany. Mr. Laqueur is a leading authority on recent European history, on Russia and the Middle East.

The Germany of the early Twentieth Century is a long way in time and distance from San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury, above, but there are striking similarities in the old youth movement of 60 years ago, the Wandervogel, and the hippies of today.

Some time ago it was reported that a group of young people headed by a man with the singular name of Muck Lamberty went from town to town calling the people to contemplation, urging them to waken up to life, to combat the decay of society, to be gay.

How was all this to be accomplished? By singing, dancing and lectures on the "revolution of the soul". His followers, like the early Christians, shared all their worldly possessions and were vegetarians and abstainers.

Muck Lamberty's favorite word was "swinging"; things were swinging if a community was united in peace and joy. In his speeches he castigated urban civilization and its evils, the loss of all communion with life and with the spirit of nature, the new one-dimensional man.

His group was called the New Band and its attire was a little strange. These long-haired boys and girls walked barefooted or sandaled; usually they had not washed for a long time.

They carried guitars, sometimes practised free love and always adored flowers. In their meetings, wreaths with thousands of flowers were displayed — a veritable sea of asters and chrysanthemums, the eyewitnesses reported.

Wherever the group made its appearance, thousands joined in its meetings and dances, there were triumphal processions and the clergy had to open the churches for the lectures on the need for all-embracing love and for community singing.

Millenium

Nothing like it had been seen since the days of the Anabaptists; the millennium was about to dawn and the New Jerusalem was at hand.

The year was 1919; the scene, central Germany, and the chief actors, members of the German Youth Movement, the so-called Wandervogel. It was the heyday of new fashions, political and philosophical, sexual and sartorial alike.

Tagore's gospel, "Love — Not Power," found many enthusiastic disciples. Some new prophets preached Chinese philosophy or Indian mysticism. It all sounded very profound and various gurus had great acclaim, even though their parables were hardly applicable at a time of political and social crisis to a people with an entirely different cultural tradition in the heart of Europe.

Muck's group broke up. Some became Fascists, others Communists. A group of religious socialists, deeply convinced that the love of money is the root of all evil, banded together and settled on the land to practise communism and to realize social justice in their own lives. (After many tribulations they, their children, are now settled in upstate New York.)

There was the underlying readiness to believe that not only Germany had failed, but that society and the West as a whole was in a state of deep, irremediable decay.

Spengler's "Decline of the West" was published in 1918 and widely discussed. There was an overwhelming need for new radical ideas.

It was an age of uncertainty, of dissolving beliefs and of an approach to nihilism. But since young people do not, as a rule, persist in nihilism for very long, except as a pose, everyone was desperately groping for revolutionary new ideas and solutions to the problems.

My description of Muck and his movement comes from a book I wrote seven years ago entitled, "Young Germany: A History of the German Youth Movement, 1896-1933."

I called it a "historical study" and said in conclusion that today the movement had "receded into the distant past with its guitar playing, folk songs and folk dancing, with its interminable controversies and its lunatic fringe of groups dedicated to eccentric, if sometimes engaging, futilities."

Recent personal experience in the United States, Sweden, Germany and elsewhere has convinced me that this obituary was premature.

At first, I confess, I was reluctant to accept this. Historical parallels and analogies can be notoriously misleading; the general situation in America now is so very different from the conditons prevailing in Central Europe during the years just before and after the First World War. Berlin is far from Greenwich Village and Weimar from Haight-Ashbury. It seemed to me far-fetched that what confronts us today is a new version.

Specific Texts

But a closer look shows that more is in question than some striking if superficial similarities. Sometimes there is a specific textual identity in the attacks made by the old and the new youth movement on society and its conventions, its artificiality and materialism, its lack of human warmth and sincerity. (Sincerity, in fact, was the key word then as it is now.)

The attacks on established norms in school and university and the demand for sweeping reforms and a sharing of control on the part of the students are virtually the same.

One of the strongest influences on the youth movement was the educator Gustav Wyneken. His central idea was "youth culture." Young people, he said, had never the right to, or the opportunity for, self-expression. Youth was regarded as a transitional stage between childhood and maturity without specific, postive character or a style of its own.

He had his own school, one of the first in Germany in which co-education was practiced. Teaching was in groups rather than in classes; the school was not to be ruled by its head but by an executive of teachers and pupils. (In practice, there was much enlightened dictatorship.)

Student Soviets

In 1919, Wyneken was summoned by the government to reorganize the German school system. He called upon the young people to hold elections and establish students' councils (soviets of sorts) to establish new schools on the ruins of the old, free of the traditional submissiveness, mutual distrust and mendacity.

But the teachers refused to co-operate and most of the students were indifferent or actively hostile. The scheme was dropped after a few weeks.

The members of the old youth movement were romantics but romantics with a developed social conscience.

On the part of their elders, there was a tendency to belittle these manifestations of protest, but they deserved to be taken more seriously. For the young generation of 1910 tried spontaneously, if awkwardly, to alter the human condition at a time when philosphers and sociologists were already writing about the "alienation of man," the "atomization of society," the lessening of contacts between human beings; when the anonymity, the impersonality and the vulgarity of life in modern societies, the loss of vitality in individuals and the growing social torpor, were already themes of contemporary social criticism.

All this may sound like some present-day spiritual leaders — minus, of course, the current psycho-sociological jargon. It is, in fact, what the leaders of the generation of 1910 were shouting from the rooftops.

The German youth movement came into being around the turn of the century, its heyday was in the years immediately before and after the First World War and it petered out during the early 1920s. Numerically, it was small — it had never more than 100,000 members — and it was solidly middle-class in origin.

It contained a multiplicty of groups, some of them strongly in favor of political commitment (specially after the war). Others — the eternal wandervogel — amiable beatniks, aimless drifters, decided to opt out of society. Hermann Hesse and others have written about them.

Those who chose commitment did not necessarily all go in the same direction; only the left was in favor of school reform, against repression, sexual and otherwise, and for the "class struggle of the young generation."

Not Unique

The manifestations were different one from another, but the original inspiration of both left and right was identical. Germans usually still tend to believe that what happened in their country during the decade before the First World War was absolutely unique, but this is not so. Seen in historical perspective, the German youth movement was part of a much wider revolt of the young generation all over Europe.

The year the wandervogel group met in Berlin (1896), Art Nouveau came into fashion. In Germany, it was appropriately called jugendstil — youth style.

When the youth movement reached its apex in 1910, the Italian Futurists publishing their revolutionary manifestoes and two young Frenchmen, writing under the pseudonym "Agathon," created a furore (and established a trend) with a little book called "Young People of Today."

Again, there was a common denominator: the feeling that society was rotten; that the decay of modern, industrial civilization had made life intolerable; that the Americanization of European life (as everyone called it) ought to be stopped.

Fin de Siecle

This general surge and revolt of youth was at one and the same time part of the fin de siecle general mood and an attempt to overcome it.

Reactions varied from group to group and from country to country. Some accepted pessimism and degeneracy with delight (at least as a literary pose); others preached love of action and moral earnestness.

Sometimes the erstwhile prophets of decadence ended up as superpatriots, such as Barres in France and the flamboyant D'Ananzio.

Some were opposed in principle to industrial society and the urban (suburban it would be now) way of life; others, like the Italian Futurists, raved about the beauties of airplanes, racing cars, fast trains and modern architecture.

Underlying these beliefs was a common antibourgeois denominator: Pessimism about the future of present-day culture; the assumption that Liberalism, humanism, tolerance and all the traditional ideals of the enlightenment were out-of-date.

The rebels were firmly convinced that the generation of their parents had landed the world in a mess and that a radical new beginning was needed.

The basic beliefs and even the outward fashions of the various groups that constitute the present-day revolutionary youth movement in North America, Germany, Holland, Sweden and elsewhere go back almost without exception to the period before the First World War. The sincerity and the long hair, the guitars and the folk songs, the flowers and the hitchhiking, the demand for school and university reform were part and parcel of the German youth movement.

There were public recitals of poems the like of which had never been heard before. Manifestoes were read, ultra-modern paintings exhibited.

The impact of art nouveau or the 1960s hardly calls for documentation. One need only compare the posters of Mucha or the school of Nachy with present-day psychedelic art.

The cult of youth, the idea that youth is a virtue in itself, originated in Italy, France, Germany more or less simultaneously.

Can U.S. Accept Peace Which Is Not Victory?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

It is with a feeling of intense frustration approaching despair that we reread the widely-circulated and discussed article of former Kennedy aide and Johnson aide, Theodore C. Sorensen, on The War in Vietnam — How We Can End It. The article appeared in the October 21 issue of Saturday Review of which Mr. Sorensen is an editor-at-large. It ended with the now unfulfilled hope, "We have been able to arrange in recent years a Christmas ceasefire in Vietnam. If we plan and work for it now, we can be prepared this Christmas to have the firing cease forever.

Fisher

It is a moderate but powerfully-worded statement much like the speeches of President Kennedy which were to a considerable extent Sorensen speeches.

Crowe

But what we find most attractive about this article, which caused such a stir before Christmas, is that it is rooted in the soil of North America, in the traditions of this continent and in the proven hopes and aspirations of the people who inhabit it. What we have allowed ourselves to become accustomed to is the resident expertise of Old China Hands, the glib authority of fresh PhDs who are anxious to enter the state department and their professors who seem equally anxious to smooth the path for their graduates.

And everywhere are the hordes of spokesmen, most, no doubt, well-meaning, for the gargantuan American military-industrial machine about which even Dwight David Eisenhower expressed alarm.

The usual fare in Canada has been an amalgam of a client attitude toward Washington, and its antithesis, our ancient and minor theme of rationalist anti-Americanism.

And hereabouts there has been more than a dash of quitte understandable nostalgia for a central Europe which no longer exists. Understandable, but hardly the place to look for an articulation of North American ideals, philosophies and policies.

Mr. Sorensen believes the President's friends and supporters can serve him and the country best by speaking out, and urging him toward an early peaceful settlement. He believes this is a course with costs and risks more proportionate to America's interests than expanding escalation and slaughter.

He says: "We have not given to the pursuit of peace the same effort, ingenuity, and relentless consistency we have given to prosecuting the war." The pursuit must begin with the recognition of error. "I realize that it is difficult for a great power to alter its course — but the Soviet Union pulled its missiles out of Cuba, and received world praise for doing so. I realize that it is difficult for our proud nation to acknowledge error instead of compounding it — but we did exactly that at the Bay of Pigs." The "error" is by no means all American, but Mr. Sorensen is concerned with the future, not the past.

Next, the Americans must realize that in any traditional sense they are not winning, and cannot win, the war in Vietnam. If that is defeatism, then defeatism is realism. Nor are the Americans "containing" the Red Chinese. On the contrary they are creating a vacuum on China's borders into which the Red Chinese will move in time unless the Americans stay there indefinitely in very large numbers.

Americans are not "winning the war for men's minds." They appear to have already lost it. But he hopes that the present government in Saigon has sufficient strength, morale and legitimacy to permit the U.S. to pursue a nother course. Kennedy's objective in Vietnam was to gain time in order to achieve a society in the South which, with American backing, would be cohesive enough to negotiate a balanced settlement.

Mr. Sorensen, in a rather pained understatement, suggests: "There is no reason now for us to refrain from concluding that such time is finally near at hand."

The obstacle to negotiation has been the North Vietnam condition: unconditional and indefinite suspension of American bombing of the North. It is Mr. Sorensen's conviction that the bombing is not in the military interest or in the national interest of the United States.

"On balance, the continued bombing, by increasing an embittered militancy in the North and thus prolonging the war, appears to be costing more American lives in the long run than it actually saves . . . The overwhelming weight of the evidence still fails to indicate that any feasible amount of bombing can ever prevent the North Vietnamese from infiltrating into the South all the men, arms, and food needed to sustain a low-level guerrilla war indefinitely."

To stop the bombing would be to eliminate the single largest barrier to world support for the American position and the single largest barrier to negotiations with Hanoi. It must be indefinite and unconditional, and without deadlines. "Let us face the fact that some day we will stop it, and the longer we put it off, the more difficult it will be for both sides to negotiate a reasonable settlement."

Mr. Sorensen concedes that "perhaps even now the North Vietnamese and the National Liberation Front are not interested in serious negotiations," but even so, it is in the American interest to stop the bombing and to concentrate on pacification operations in the South. At the same time every effort should be made to start negotiations which would have to embrace the Viet Cong.

It would take a long time to move from a war stalemate to a peace stalemate, but that is the alternative to greater and greater U.S. commitment on the mainland of Asia and eventually Chinese and Russian involvement. It would be an "as you were" stalemate, as in Cuba, Berlin and Korea. It would be an uncertain stalemate, and the President would run grave political risks.

Mr. Sorensen thought it might start at Christmas. Is it conceivable that it could start in an election year?

A Chair Fit for a King, The Little King, That Is

By ART STOTT

Stott

Among the surging logs which have been knocking health out of my waterfront installations in these days of high winds and high tides are a few battered old sleepers with heavy roots attached. I watch, dry-eyed and only a little bitter, as they gouge chunks out of concrete abutments and smash to kindling my slip and its replacement. Tears are idle and there's no percentage in tantrums.

But the big tree trunks with roots have set me speculating, with no sentimental qualms at all, over the disappearance of an old craft—the creation of beachwood furniture.

In my boyhood almost every waterfront home had its outdoor seat constructed from the twisted form of an old stump. Someone—I suspect wives—would see a gnarled old snag on the sand, with roots extended like supplicating arms, and suggest to the man of the house that it would make an effective rustic chair. I imagine the conversation:

"Look, if you saw this piece off here and that off there, and then cut through this heavy butt, turn the whole thing upside-down and put front legs under those roots, you'd have quite a piece to put under our shade tree. You could nail the seat part in underneath, making it out of thinner sticks and sawing them to conform to the lines of the thing."

So the devoted husband would perform his wood butchery. What emerged would be rustic, all right, and possible to sit on. But, from memory, I'd say that any such "chair" was an invitation to double curvature of the spine, intolerable corrugations from the sitter's hip pockets to his knees and an eyesore almost too heavy to throw away. It eventually fell apart in the process of time, decay and termites. And if the craft has been lost, it will be missed as sorely as a wart on the nose.

Not that I pose as an expert on furniture. Queen Anne, Chippendale, Louis XV, Duncan Phyfe and Sheraton are names to me, but I'd have difficulty placing the proper label on a piece representing any of the styles.

Eight years ago I was introduced to the work of Robert Adam in a rubberneck tour of Kenwood House, on the outskirts of London. I was deeply impressed by its elegance, but I tried to hide my ignorance as the various exhibits were drawn to my attention for admiration by saying that contemporary Danish was my favorite.

It still is, now that I have embarked on a do-part-of-it-yourself furniture-making career. My first work-in-progress is not exactly contemporary Danish, nor do I expect the world of craftsmanship to applaud me unduly. Still, it's the makings of a chair. Its components and design are interesting.

Some time ago the lady in the house thought our daybed would be better without arms or a back—maple in the fine tradition of Grand Rapids. I took them off and they arrived in the basement with other lumber.

The thought occurred to me, as I sat there, pondering, one rainy day, that they could be banged together in a way to form an easy chair. The adjective "easy" is used loosely. At the same time, I figured that the spring-filled cushions which once graced the daybed would make a suitable seat and the arms, almost level, were wide enough to hold the saucer for a cup of tea. A saucer, also, would cover up the ring marks left by someone who evidently set a glass of more corrosive content on the wood.

Salvage of materials discarded from an old piece of furniture is, of course, only one of the satisfactions I derive from my project. More important is the opportunity they provide to exercise my creative and artistic abilities.

To a man who has never served his time under the masters and who scarcely qualifies as a cabinet maker, the labor is time and thought consuming. Improvisation takes the place of inspiration, but already I have the job framed up. The cross bars which will eventually hold the seat in place are bolted to the uprights. I am now working on an idea to stop the thing from collapsing sidewise if it is nudged.

I have gingerly tried sitting on a couple of temporary boards placed on the crossbars and have made a regal discovery. My chair is a throne fit for a king—the Little King of our comic strip, that is. My feet dangle about three inches from the floor.

The remedy is simple enough. I need only saw off the legs to size. This I have done before in a process which has not always produced stable furniture, but at least gives me some excellently dry pieces of firewood.

CHAMBERS REQUIRE 'LIONS NOT LAMBS'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce says some chambers in the province "are serving no purpose whatever".

J. Bruce Smith, of Kelowna, said many individual chambers in the province are weak and some are just tourist promotion groups.

He told the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the Lower Mainland that he hopes various chambers will attract "not lambs, but lions" to their membership and leadership.

Bank Leader Optimistic

TORONTO (CP) — Distortions in the Canadian economy have shown signs of weakening, raising hopes for a more orderly growth in the rest of this decade, A. T. Lambert, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said Tuesday.

He told the bank's annual meeting that the economy still faces some over-riding problems, however:

- To break the inflationary spiral;
- To bring wage increases into line with productivity gains;
- To limit "for the time being" further expansion in social services; and
- To restore order to our financial markets.

Mr. Lambert said the economy can look forward to a continued modest growth "and with a little luck 1968 will be a somewhat better year than 1967."

The pace of economic activity had slackened and steps taken in both fiscal and monetary fields should reduce inflationary pressures.

He predicted an increase of about 7½ per cent in the gross national product to more than $66,000,000,000, with higher prices accounting for about 3½ per cent.

Demand strength would be strong in consumer spending, exports, housing and building inventories.

Private capital spending, however, remained a major question mark.

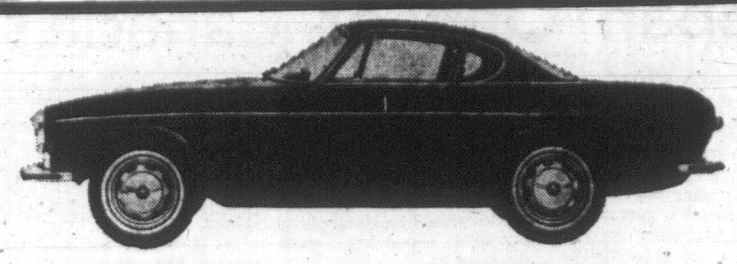

Canada's balance of payments deficit would probably climb again to $1,000,000,000 or $1,200,000,000. A better trade balance would be more than offset by a sharp fall in tourist earnings but with substantial exchange reserves, such an increase should present no new difficulties.

This car won't do 150. It just looks like it will.

But it will do an honest 106 mph. And for $4895 the Volvo 1800 S gives you features that 150 mph cars give you for $14,000. As Road & Track magazine put it, "The 1800 S is a very civilized touring car for people who want to travel rapidly in style, a Gran Turismo car of the type much in the news these days—but at a price that many people who cannot afford a Ferrari or Aston Martin will be able to pay." Come in and take an 1800 S out for a drive at your convenience.

Cargo Handling Registers Gain

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Year-end export figures for Ogden Point docks contain a few surprises considering the trend to up-Island terminal facilities.

Lumber, plywood and general cargo shipments abroad each show significant gains from 1966 exports, while incoming general cargo also went up.

Kent

At the same time, true to warnings sounded by persons concerned for the future of Ogden Point, the number of ships berthed here in 1967 fell off by 142, a decline of 41 per cent.

Yet, from the figures supplied by port agent Canadian National Railways, it appears that fewer ships are able to carry larger cargoes and make fewer stops to assemble these cargoes. That results in greater efficiency of operation and speaks well for the ability of this port to do an efficient job of loading.

It is early this year that the harbor-transportation group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce hopes to have a commitment from CNR for dock improvements which will enhance the continuing use of the port, especially by the export lumber industry.

Meanwhile, the use of Cowichan Bay assembly wharf, also operated by CNR, increased last year by a healthy margin over 1966, exactly the type of competition which chamber and shipping people fear will cut Ogden Point out of the picture.

During December 12 ships put in at Ogden Point, compared with 14 the previous December. They loaded 14.3 million board feet of lumber (11.4 million); 57 tons of outgoing general cargo (13 tons); 84 tons of plywood (1,306 tons), and 497 tons of inbound cargo (300 tons).

For the 12-month period, 204 ships put in at Ogden Point (346 in 1966), which loaded 207.192 million board feet of lumber (190.464 million feet); 11,164 tons of plywood (9,674 tons); 7,153 tons of outgoing general cargo (3,494 tons), plus 1.42 million board feet of imported luan mahogany (1.5 million feet), and 10,787 tons of incoming general cargo (8,037 tons).

Cowichan Bay last month handled two ships, against seven in December 1966, and these took on 3.785 million board feet of lumber (13.732 million feet) and 254 tons of plywood and shingles (548 tons).

For the year, Cowichan Bay did much better, handling 70 ships (72); 121.848 million board feet of lumber (99.835 million board feet); 4,304 tons of plywood (3,949 tons), and 409 tons of shingles (634 tons).

In 1966 there were two totals for pulp and logs — 1,912 tons and 2.709 million board feet — which did not recur in 1967.

Mining speculators are looking to a long-awaited report on Silverknife Mines Monday. That is the latest prospective date suggested for release of a Vancouver Stock Exchange and broker restraint of trading imposed by the B.C. securities commission.

An independent study is being done for the commission relating to geological work done on the company's claims in northern B.C., following a preliminary report issued by the company which led to a flurry of trading late in 1967.

Japan One of Canada's Best Customers

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

(SECOND OF SERIES)

TOKYO (CP) — Despite Japan's impressive economic successes during the last decade, industry and government officials are growing increasingly concerned about the future.

Back of the worry is the driving home, a little more than a year ago, of the realization that the country's economy is not invincible—and could, in fact, be setting itself up for a future drubbing.

No Japanese official will admit the outlook holds anything but another near doubling of output during the next five years, but they all say a bit grimly that the next 100-per-cent increase won't come nearly as easily as the last.

As a result, the country is in the middle of a tough self-appraisal of its strengths and weaknesses, and ways of shoring up the first and eliminating the second.

All industrialized countries, facing the realities of greatly increased international competition because of the Kennedy Round of trade talks, are undertaking similar assessments, of course, although with varying degrees of thoroughness and honesty.

BUYS MORE FROM US

The fact that much of Japan's phenomenal post-war economic growth has come from its methodical use of endless statistical tables to project future trends lends weight, however, to the impression that the country will wrench its structure as savagely as necessary to ensure continued boom times.

A five-year plan, issued nine months ago by the economic planning agency of the Japanese government, says coldly in its introduction that it is intended "to point out how institutions, organizations and behavior of various economic entities should be changed" to guarantee continuing growth and stability.

With the program calling for real growth of more than 80 per cent by the end of 1971, success or failure would have a significant impact on Canada.

Japan imported $245,000,000 worth of Canadian goods, mostly raw materials and wheat, in the first five months of 1967, up $100,000,000 from the similar 1966 period.

It now is Canada's third-best international customer, behind only the United States and Britain.

HIT BY RECESSION

It could be Canada's second - best customer this year, estimates R. L. Houston, executive director of the Canada-Japan Trade Council, with total potential sales of $1,000,000,000-plus almost literally around the corner.

In simplified form, the shock that has led to Japan's concern was a recession which developed in the middle of 1965. Recessions weren't new to the economy—with its annual growth rate of 15 per cent, cyclical interruptions had happened before.

The early ones, however, were overcome quickly by the central bank tightening credit sharply for a few months. That served to restore equilibrium, and the economy started galloping forward again.

Few officials, then, were unduly worried as they watched the central bank snap on the automatic corrective measures.

That time, however, nothing happened—except that some key indicators slipped even lower.

As a result, the Japanese government was forced for the first time since the end of the Second World War to adopt vigorous reflationary policies.

A generous dosing of public spending and deficit budgeting in the spring of 1966 turned the tide, and a year later a strong recovery was in full swing.

NO SIMPLE CURES

"It showed, however, that the economy has become far too complex to respond to simple measures," says Daizo Yasuda, director and manager of the Bank of Tokyo.

"The very quick growth in some sections of the economy and the concentration of capital investment in them at the expense of other sections, including the public, caused serious imbalances.

"Now these have to be corrected."

So far, official steps aimed at improving economic balance translate into slightly tighter credit, partly to prevent severe overheating of the economy, partly to make sure that Japan does not get too far out of step with the slower economic growth being experienced in most of its vital export markets.

If its ambitious five-year plan comes close to fruition, however, Japan won't be waiting on the growth of the rest of the world.

Its economists predict that world trade will continue to grow, as it has in recent years, by about six per cent annually.

The plan calls for a 12-per-

Snow shoes sometimes have more to do than you'd think with long distance telephone service in British Columbia.

Just ask Jack Stroet.

He knows because he is one of the B.C. Telephone Company people who has found it necessary to use snow shoes to reach vital mountain-top radio relay sites to maintain long distance transmission equipment.

Jack Stroet is one of more than 150 microwave radio technicians employed by B.C. Telephone to maintain equipment at its 162 relay sites through which a radio transmission network extending more than 5,000 route miles is created. He is stationed at Terrace, the telephone communications hub of the province's rugged North Coast and west-central Interior.

Tied Together

A multi-million-dollar radio web extends from Terrace west to Prince Rupert and the Queen Charlottes, south to Kitimat, north to Stewart and the Nass River valley and east to Prince George.

This network, with more than a dozen relay stations on such mountains as Copper—where the photo above was taken—McLean, Zymoetz, Brown Bear, Aiyansh and Kitsumkalum, ties the region's communities together and links them with provincial, national and international telephone facilities.

To keep it all working, men like Jack Stroet must travel to these sites, in good weather and bad and by whatever means is available, to maintain equipment.

Sometimes It's Easy

Sometimes, when a helicopter can be used, getting there is easy. But more frequently, the travelling is the toughest part of the task.

It may mean wheeling a four-wheel-drive vehicle over steep, rugged and narrow access roads built by B.C. Telephone at substantial cost, or driving a tracked snow cat between tree tops packed in wind-driven snow.

Often it means hiking on foot—in winter on snow shoes—sometimes just to find the edge of a road so the snow cat can proceed safely.

That's why, when unforeseen trouble occurs, it occasionally takes a little time to restore service.

This kind of job requires telephone people with courage and versatility and Jack Stroet is one of them—a 24-year old who grew up in Smithers, took his technical training in Toronto and began his telephone career with B.C. Telephone in Vancouver in April, 1965, transferring to Terrace about a year later.

He takes the difficulties of his job in stride and offers the plaudits to others among B.C. Telephone's more than 7,200 men and women. Not all of them will use snow shoes in their work. But, like Jack Stroet, they are applying their skills and knowledge quietly and effectively to create a bigger and better telephone system to serve British Columbians.

. . . JAPAN SERIES

Per-capita income is expected to rise to $1,300 annually from $700.

Exports will have to be increased to $16,400,000,000 from $8,590,000,000 in 1965, while imports will climb to $13,450,000,000 from $6,510,000,000, it says.

It foresees a sharp increase in the export of capital, as Japan steps up its investment program in foreign countries, especially to get assured supplies of raw materials.

In 1971, capital outflow is expected to total $1,250,000,000 compared with $550,000,000 in 1965.

The call for improvements in the public sector of the economy is an important part of the plan.

Public investment in the years 1967-71 should total $92,000,000,000 to meet anticipated needs—more than double the amount spent in the 1961-65 period, with both figures adjusted to constant dollars.

By far the largest individual item in the proposed public investment is roads—a total of $20,000,000,000 spent by 1971, compared with $8,500,000,000 since 1961.

Emphasizing the country's extreme need for improved transportation facilities, spending on national railways should more than double to $11,300,000,000, the plan says.

Japan already has an unusually high level of education, with 70 per cent of the children staying in school to or past the age of 18 and 16 per cent going to university. In five years, one of three Japanese seeking jobs is expected to be a university graduate.

To pay for this, the plan says, the country will have to put $4,300,000,000 into education by 1971, again almost doubling the spending since 1961.

The plan's emphasis, however, on social spending does not detract from its concern for Japan's role as one of the world's big traders.

"It is important," it says, "to reorganize the national economy into a truly efficient one from international standards.

"Therefore the ways and means of increasing efficiency should be different from those pursued in the last 10 years."

The key to how different, some Japanese businessmen think, lies in the plan's statement that business "should be rationalized so that each firm will decide its action in view of the consequences of its activities on the national economy as a whole."

To some of the front-running industries, this would mean they would have to slow down while the laggards catch up and greater economic balance is created.

The trouble is, they argue, that laggard countries as well as slowpoke domestic industries will be catching up, costing Japan some international trading advantages.

DISCUSSION DECLINED ON GAS PRICE IMPASSE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Chairman Lee White, of the Federal Power Commission, declined Tuesday to discuss the impasse reached with the National Energy Board of Canada over the price for additional West Coast imports of Western Canada natural gas.

He fell back on a statement a year ago that the future of the North American gas industry "may involve greater efforts and long-range planning between the two governments".

CALF'S HEART VALVE PLACED IN WOMAN

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli doctor has replaced a damaged human heart valve with a valve from the heart of a calf and reports his young woman patient is progressing "quite well".

Professor Maurice Levi, a Bulgarian-born surgeon who has won acclaim for his skill in replacing damaged human organs, performed the operation several days ago at nearby Beilinson Hospital. He did not identify the patient, who he said may be released from the hospital in two weeks.

Levi, 41, a fellow student of Dr.Christiaan N. Barnard, of Cape Town, at the University of Minnesota, said his team had been doing about three to four successful heart valve operations a week using plastic valves.

'Liaison Lack In Welfare Work Hits Individual'

A lamentable lack of liaison between agencies involved in social welfare is creating undue hardship for many individuals, says Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor said that although his experience in the field was limited, he was convinced after one year in office "that there is frequently a lamentable lack of adequate liaison between the various agencies involved, both private and public, as well as between the three levels of government."

Mayor Stephen added that after considering the large numbers of persons dealing in one way or another with problems of social distress he was sure that the human resources employed were adequate.

"What is so obviously lacking at the moment is a thorough and co-ordinated use of these resources and an understanding of the inter-relationship between each part of the problem.

"At present we try too frequently to tackle these parts in isolation and through the medium of water-tight compartments. Unfortunately we forget that the ultimate loser in this fragmented approach is the individual."

The mayor said he had already held some preliminary talks with the provincial authorities and that he was encouraged by their awareness of the problem.

But he is not waiting for the provincial authorities to show the lead in the matter of establishing a better liaison between various social welfare fields.

He said it was already obvious that there was a serious lack of liaison between case workers in the city social welfare department and the staff of the family court.

"At present up to five workers can be referring and discussing cases with the court," he said.

"Since neither side is fully conversant with all aspects of the other's work, it would appear expedient to attach a social worker to work full time with the court in both family and juvenile cases and who will thus be familiar with policies of both departments."

The mayor added that during budget discussions this spring he would ask approval of an expenditure of $2,778 for the purpose of tightening the link between the two sets of workers. The money would pay the salary of the new worker for six months.

He said city social welfare employees were already being snowed under with an average of 250 to 300 new cases each month and with 1,000 active cases on the books.

Two major changes in the administration field, both scheduled to take place over the next two years, will create additional problems.

Change number one will take place when the welfare institution and private hospital placement service, now functioning through six regional offices, is centralized under one roof in Victoria.

The other when the Old-Age Assistance Board in Vancouver opens a Victoria branch.

"While neither of these changes is likely to involve the city in extra staff costs, they will raise serious accommodation problems for our already over-taxed facilities on Cook Street," the mayor said.

KIERANS A SCRAPPER WITH IDEAS

'He Welcomes Change With Both Hands'

MONTREAL (CP)—Eric William Kierans, smart, scrappy, swift and daring, not only accepts change—he goes out to welcome it with both hands.

The 53-year-old son of an Irish immigrant and a German mother has won a formidable reputation in several careers. His attitude to change is central to his challenge, issued Tuesday night, for the prime ministership of Canada.

Asked why he feels better qualified for the job over federal ministerial hopefuls, the former Quebec minister replied:

"I feel that at this time a willingness to accept change and indeed to promote change, not only constitutional but economic, will be one of the prime requirements of a future leader and a future prime minister."

Mr. Kierans has been called a new breed of cat in Canadian politics— a scrapper with ideas. Characteristically, he is the first major candidate to declare himself formally in the race for the national leadership of the Liberal party in succession to Prime Minister Pearson.

DISCUSSES HOPES

But there was nothing cocky in the bearing of the self-styled "radical" Liberal—"I don't think left and right mean much anymore" —when he discussed his aspirations with a reporter.

His strikingly blue eyes reflected a growing intensity of feeling as he spoke of a changing Canada attaining a greater degree of economic independence from the United States in a rapidly changing world of staggering scientific advance and population growth.

"Mr. Pearson's decision to retire demands more than just a search for a new leader of the Liberal party," said the politician-economist professor-administrator - businessman-salesman. "It also provides the opportunity for a basic reassessment of the party's position as a whole and its appeal to the electorate."

The party, with its main strength in Quebec and urban Ontario, was in danger of becoming a sectional rather than a national organization.

"Canadians and Liberals, without in any way criticizing or implying criticism of all the party has done under the leadership of Mr. Pearson, now will have the opportunity to decide what will be the most appropriate policies for the future."

STRESSES KEY POSTS

Mr. Kierans has never sat in the House of Commons but he stressed his 1963-66 experience in key ministerial posts—revenue and health—in the Quebec Liberal government of Jean Lesage. Those were some of the most momentous days of the Quiet Revolution.

"I feel that my experience in this area . . . qualifies me to present the views and to consider the views of both English- and French-Canadians," said Mr. Kierans. "In any event, I will attempt to develop this theme during the leadership campaign.

"Secondly, I think it is fairly clear from past experience that I'm quite prepared to re-examine any situation and promote agressively the changes which are called for."

DEFINES STAND

Defining his own brand of politics, Mr. Kierans declared:

"I do believe that the role of the government is to provide for the real needs of the people, that this dependence on government is increasing.

"One may deplore this but it is one of the realities that people, for example, whose incomes do not increase as rapidly as costs of medical care and education obviously need assistance . . .

"I believe, though, at the moment Canada's priority in this area is to ensure the increasing productivity which will enable us to afford the increasing needs of the people. The needs are expanding much more rapidly than our ability to finance them. This imposes a burden on us of improving our ability to compete on world markets and to improve our economic performance at home,"

AIR OF ACTION

Friends say an aura of excitement clings to this medium-size man of iron-grey hair and blue pin-stripe suits because of his air of commitment and action.

He keeps fit by fast games of squash. He scorns to shirk a challenge. Living in a quiet suburb, he is married and has two children, Tom, 26, with a financial firm here, and Cathy, 21, a nurse.

Significantly, Mr. Kierans believes the public is far ahead of government and civil service officials in willingness to accept change—"there's no question about it."

"This certainly has to be overcome if we are to achieve unity in Canada. I'm thinking here of changes that would give greater authority and responsibilities to provinces, and indeed the fiscal resources to go with these responsibilities, which obviously in some areas will diminish the role of the federal government, without hurting anything that is truly federal."

Mr. Kierans feels his experience as a Quebec minister would be particularly valuable to him if he won the leadership. As former president of the Canadian and Montreal stock exchanges he received rare economic and financial experience to go with his training as an economist.

His experience as a professor and school of commerce director at McGill, following a successful career in business, gave him an abiding faith in the younger generation.

"Thus my confidence in the future of Canada is complete," said Mr. Kierans, is stressing his admiration of the young set.

Mr. Kierans said separatism's appeal is particularly to young people who are looking for "ideal" solutions.

"I think that means we have to create in Canada an image of a country that is in itself proud and strong and independent—much more independent than it now is—in the role that it plays in the world and continental affairs.

"I think the Canadian image —if it is based on two cultures and two languages and properly developed—can provide an ideal for young people and, indeed, for all Canadians."

Heart Drive Needs Push

Victoria Kiwanis Club has now raised $18,000 of a $22,000 fund required for heart monitoring equipment for city hospitals.

A club spokesman said the equipment will cost about $33,000 but the provincial government will make up one third.

Doctors have estimated they could save 80 lives a year with the use of new coronary care units planned for both St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals within a few months.

Cubans Hit Oil?

HAVANA (Reuters)—Cuban officials are hoping that a strong oil gusher struck Sunday night at a nearby popular seaside resort is part of a large deposit. The strike came less than a week after Premier Fidel Castro announced gasoline rationing and strict controls on state use of oil because Soviet oil supplies were lagging far behind Cuban needs.

itz and others at Avco Corp. research laboratories in Everett, Mass. The two men are brothers.

Despite the problems raised by the difference in heart size, Dr. Kantrowitz said, a decision to go ahead with the operation was made because the blood types of the two individuals matched "so perfectly" that the chances of natural rejection were lessened.

BOTH SAME TYPE

Both donor and recipient were of AB-positive blood types, he said. This was a "rare occurance," he said, as only four per cent of the population has AB-positive blood.

Dr. Kantrowitz said Block had had several heart attacks and suffered from severe heart failure. The donor, Miss Krouch, had a "rapidly expanding brain tumor," he said.

Miss Krouch went into unconsciousness Monday at Barnert Memorial Hospital in East Paterson and was brought to Maimonides early Tuesday. She died about noon, and the operation began.

In East Paterson, the donor's father said his daughter commented, while watching a television program on transplants last Sunday: "If I knew I was going to die, I'd like my heart to be used to save somebody's life."

Joseph J. Krouch said that remark encouraged him to give his approval for the operation.

A neighbor of the Blocks said the retired fireman had been in hospital "14 times with a heart condition . . . this is the 15th." Of the surgery the neighbor said simply, "there was no other way."

Three Pay Fines For Trespassing On Watershed

Three men were fined in central court today for trespassing on watershed lands in the Shawnigan Lake area.

Fined were Barry Bomford, 1655 Chambers, $25; James Fleming, 1080 McBriar, $25; and Jacob Lindal, 5191 Rambler, $40.

"All of our policies and programs must be based upon our own history and the Canadian reality," said the man who did not take up politics actively until he was 49.

Mr. Kierans said he is retaining his Montreal seat in the Quebec legislature and has not yet considered when he might find a federal seat if successful at the Ottawa convention.

Although a Canadian nationalist, he had often differed with Walter Gordon, former finance minister and now president of the privy council, who advocated a brand of nationalism.

Mr. Kierans disliked the idea of foreign investment coming under the direction of an outside government, as had happened in the imposition of the 1965 guidelines.

UNDERMINE CONFIDENCE

Major Offensives Launched by Reds

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnam's Communist high command has committed its military forces to a country-wide offensive in the first days of 1968. It has two major objectives, most experienced observers believe.

One is to undermine rural people's confidence in the Saigon government, particularly in regions where pacification has been a priority.

The second is the severe punishment of Southern allied forces, testing their morale. Three times more Americans were killed in the first week of 1968 than in the first week of 1967.

The objective of punishing Southern allied forces was sought and partly gained by the Communists in the vicious border fighting at Dak To, Loc Ninh and at the demilitarized zone separating North and South in the closing months of 1967.

This strategy has been continued into 1968 with a series of violent Communist actions against Southern allied troops along the central coast where three North Vietnamese divisions are conducting forays into the rich coastal valleys.

Hard-core Viet Cong battalions occupied the provincial capital of Hau Nghia, west of Saigon, Monday morning and raised their red and gold flag on a building. Another battalion overran the district town of Tuy Phuoc, near Qui Nhon, reputedly the most pacified district in the country. The Viet Cong dragged the district chief from his house and killed him.

Senior U.S. officers have described the last week as one of the most intense of the war.

Communist forces have taken heavy losses, particularly in the border battles. American morale remains high.

The Communists have had more success in undermining the confidence of the population in the central government.

People in some areas were sullen and worried. Shop owners started sleeping nights in Saigon. Chiefs of hamlets stayed away from their villages.

Bids Opened For Uvic Building

Low bid for construction of the University of Victoria's first commons block is $1,684,487.

Marwell Construction Ltd. of Vancouver submitted the lowest of six prices Tuesday for the building which will provide dining, office, study and some storage space for the university's first college.

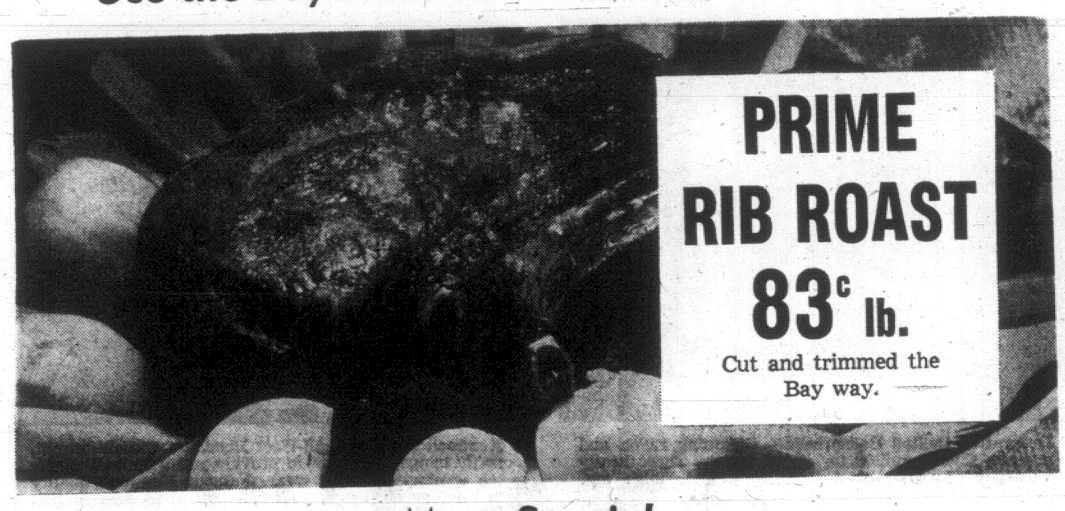

Bid ranged from Marwell's price to $1,865,000 and involved some optional features which meant all bids were not on exactly the same basis. The university's board of governors will study details of the bids and award a contract shortly.

The two-storey commons block together with the four existing residences will form the first college, as yet unnamed. The new building will also service the second college complex, due to be completed by September of 1969.

Arthur Mayse

One hundred and fifty ears ago, a lady writer y the name of Mary Vollstonecraft Shelley hilled English spines ith a novel titled Frankenstein, or The Modern Prometheus". Her ale has for its principal haracters a doctor and remarkably trouble-ome monster which this ash experimenter reates from some handy orpses.

Since you have probably hivered over at least one film version of Mrs. Shelley's tale of trespass and retribution, I won't detail it here. Enough to suggest that one century's horror story may forecast another's reality.

We have come to the age of he transplant — retina, liver, idney and heart, with who knows what to follow — and he near-godlike role of the surgeon is taking on a new limension.

If you are able to assimilate change at a gulp, you will find no strangeness in the fact that you may at some later date be running on used parts.

But, even though I'm entirely willing to extend some other mortal's mileage or acquire his fuel pump when his own need for it is past, I'm still not fully oriented to this latest expansion of medical horizons.

Neither are quite a few other people I've discussed the matter with in the weeks since Dr. Christiaan Barnard and his Cape Town team achieved what may prove to be a successful heart transplant break-through.

Two friends felt that they needed more time to think about where, and to what, a perfected science of transplants might lead us. (I can't answer that one, and it's doubtful that even such pioneers as Dr. Barnard can, either!)

One woman declared flatly that no good could possibly come of man's attempts to encroach on territory better left to the Creator, and was obviously distressed by any mention of vital-organ replacement.

Most, though, were glad to get into the subject. Such reservations as they put forward were, as they freely admitted, more personal than logical.

Take, for instance, the man who, when asked if he would be willing to accept an ape's heart should his own ticker give out, replied with an emphatic "No!"

He then qualified his loud negative by explaining that he had nothing whatever against his fellow-primates, and that he would gladly yield up any or all components when he no longer could use them.

"I'm a pretty fair specimen," he said, "and I think they'd get some quality stuff. But I don't want to borrow from anyone else. It's just a feeling I have."

A good deal of feeling seems to enter into this business of transplants, and much of it centres on the ultimate question. Will they ever successfully shift the human brain?

And if this final borrowing should prove successful in some future perhaps less distant than we know, would the inheritor assume the memories, motivations and character traits of the deceased . . . if indeed, the donor could be regarded as dead?

He takes out a neat package numbered "711," and checks the data slip against the requirement sheet on his clipboard. . . .

Well, I'm by no means sure that I want to be No. 711, out of storage for another go-round, and suggest we turn to a subject less haunted, by disturbing undertones.

Man's Face Cut In Pandora Crash

Aldrige was treated and released.

BLUEPRINT PRESENTED TO COUNCIL

Quadra-McKenzie: Focal Point for Big Things

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Saanich Reporter

Expansion of commerce and light industry and introduction of apartments is envisaged in a Saanich planning report covering more than 250 acres in the Quadra-McKenzie area.

The report was presented to the municipal lands and planning committee Tuesday night by planner Tom Loney. It was immediately tabled for study.

Mr. Loney said the proposals are "in line" with those which will be made on a wider basis when the municipality's "central corridor plan" is completed.

"The Quadra-McKenzie area is a very important focal point within the municipality. This fact is apparent to anyone who looks at a map," he said.

"What may be not as apparent, however, is the fact that with the extension of McKenzie Avenue to the east and west this intersection will be one of the busiest in the municipality and will become a focal point not only for the immediate neighborhoods surrounding it but in a sense for a much wider area within the municipality."

He emphasized that the plan "cannot be regarded as a rigid document.

"Future developments may require solutions which are presently unforeseen. Since many of the recommendations proposed involve the use of zoning it must be realized that the zoning may require eventual adjustment. The plan must be allowed to retain a certain amount of flexibility."

DETAILED PLAN

The report was prepared in an attempt to present a detailed plan for an area which has received growing attention.

"It has been difficult for municipal council to make decisions on many proposals which have been advanced without the benefit of a plan which attempts to set some limits to the various types of development and relates to the rest of the municipality," he said.

"One fairly reliable indication of development trends and pressures is the day-to-day discussions which this department carries on with representatives of business and industry who are looking for development sites.

"Interest in this area has been on a very rapid increase in the past few months and we feel that the recommendations made in this plan should receive a thorough consideration by council and a thorough presentation to the public.

"Implementation of the recommendations made are chiefly in the areas of zoning, subdivision control and servicing policy and are therefore within council's administrative control."

Regional sewers will probably mean an expansion of houses to the north and the possibility of apartments near the central area. This could happen in two to five years.

LOOSE GROUPING

Mr. Loney described Quadra-McKenzie as "a loose conglomeration" of shopping, business, service and light industrial uses. The major planning consideration was defining the limits of the central core and remaining non-residential land uses and make this relationship as sufficient and complete as possible.

He emphasized that "we are not dealing here with a complete neighborhood-community structure, but with an area which serves as the central focus to parts of four individual neighborhoods."

Traffic volumes and road capacities in major intersections show in all cases that capacities are "well above" peak-hour traffic. Increased traffic on re-built McKenzie "should be more than offset" by the increase in capacity.

EXPANDED ZONE

The proposed plan (see map) envisages an expanded commercial zone taking in the entire block bounded by McKenzie-Quadra-Reynolds-Borden with the light industrial zone on the west side of Quadra being expanded south to St. Peter's Road.

In discussing apartments, Mr. Loney's report noted this was examined at length in the Shelbourne Centre Plan. Recent apartment construction and zoning activity has been concentrated in the university area but "it must not, however, be assumed that all such development should be located in Gordon Head."

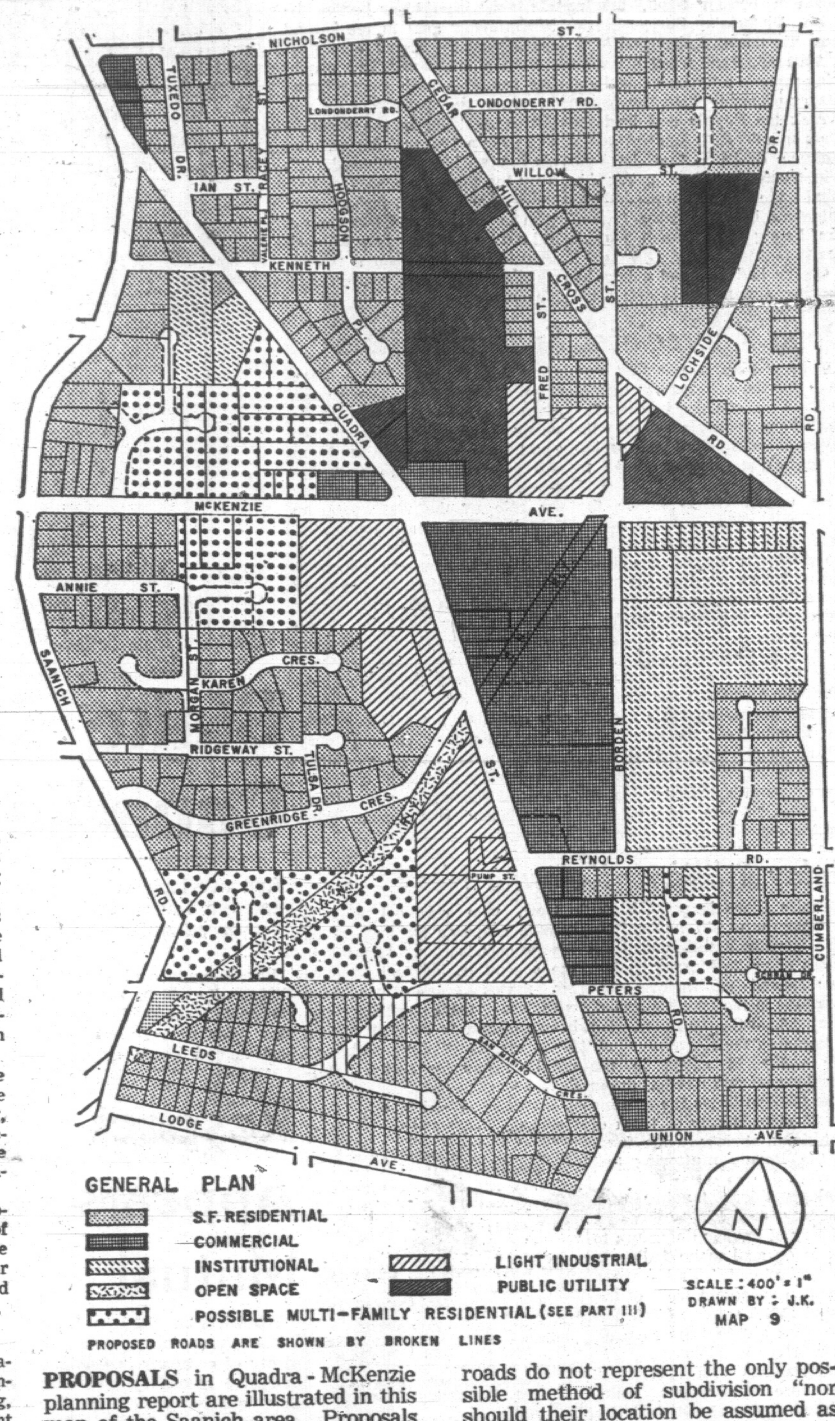

The Quadra-McKenzie plan says there is "no doubt that suitable sites for apartment development exist within this area. Apartment development must be provided with sewers and portions of the Quadra-McKenzie area therefore cannot be considered at the present time."

At the end of 1966 there were about 700 apartment units in Saanich and a projection of the number to be built by 1981 lies between 2,500 and 3,500.

Certain areas are indicated on the illustrated map as possible apartment sites and additional possibilities will occur when the entire area is sewered.

"We are not at this time proposing that these areas be zoned for apartments as this aspect will be dealt with in the Central Corridor Plan," the report said.

"At this time, however, we would suggest that any development proposals on sewerable property in this area receive very careful consideration."

PROPOSALS in Quadra-McKenzie planning report are illustrated in this map of the Saanich area. Proposals in forthcoming central corridor report will cover entire area. Proposed roads do not represent the only possible method of subdivision "nor should their location be assumed as finalized," the report says.

The report noted there are sites in the Quadra-McKenzie area which meet conditions inportant in selecting apartment areas.

Other points in the report include:

- The Willow-McBriar sewage treatment plant is not capable of much expansion and cannot support redevelopment to, for example, apartments;
- Expand within commercial area bounded by Quadra-McKenzie-Reynolds-Borden as feasibility and need arises. Avoid at all costs piecemeal development;
- No reason to acquire parkland with expansion of Reynolds Road School to a total of 17.22 acres. Seven municipal parks are within one mile of Quadra-McKenzie intersection;
- Remaining commercial development, for most part, should remain. Only change recommended is extension of shopping centre at Reynolds and Quadra south to St. Peter's Road. Report said this would not be allowing ribbon commercial development but would extend it to a more logical boundary;
- Pedestrian walkway along CNR right-of-way when railway is abandoned.

Drivers Rattled By Snow

Numerous Crashes; Bus Strikes Pole

Compacted snow and ice patches caused 10 car accidents in Saanich rush hour this morning—but no one was injured.

Intermittent sun cleared the problem by mid-morning despite a few snow flurries.

The early morning flow of traffic was slowed by trouble spots on Cedar Hill Cross Road — where a bus slid into a pole — on Cordova Bay Road, Royal Oak, Tillicum, near Gorge and Harriet and many others.

By the time motorists reached the city they were driving so cautiously that city police had no reportable accidents. There was only one in Esquimalt and none in Oak Bay.

DOWN TO 25

A powder of snow which fell Tuesday night in urban areas, froze on roads and windshields in areas away from the waterfront. Gonzales Hill temperatures didn't dip below 34 but at Tillicum Road it was 25 at grass level.

Most local snow — half an inch — fell in Cordova Bay area and at Patricia Bay airport an inch was recorded.

Up-Island conditions were worse, especially at higher levels. Chains or snow tires were mandatory on the Malahat this morning but traffic was not delayed.

Port Alberni had five inches on the ground, Nanaimo three inches, Comox six inches and Courtenay 10 inches.

LINES OUT

Duncan-Cowichan district had four inches of snow on top of five inches left from Monday when half the toll lines to Victoria were out of action temporarily. Power was out at Lake Cowichan Monday for two hours.

Cowichan Lake Road driving was hazardous with logging and chip trucks having problems on hills. A number of them were ditched but no one was hurt.

A Victoria weather official said cold air swinging off the Mainland was warming as it crossed the straits and there was no indication of snow, except for small flurries, descending on this area late today or Thursday.

RESIGNATION

Class A Fair 'Too Much' For Society

A. W. (Bud) Mesher resigned Tuesday as chairman of the Saanichton fair centennial entertainment committee in protest over plans to make the exhibition an "A" class show.

He resigned at a meeting of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society. He was succeeded by Willard Michell, vice-chairman of the committee.

Fair officials have applied to the federal government to upgrade the exhibition from a Class "B" to an "A" class fair.

TOO MUCH

The society is awaiting a reply.

Mr. Mesher thinks the society will be taking on too much if the fair becomes a Class "A" Fair, It will call for more exhibits and more prize money.

The committee was formed two years ago to plan activities and entertainment to mark the 100th anniversary of the fair in September of this year.

Mr. Mesher has been an active member of the society for the past 10 years, especially in the field of entertainment.

He has been in charge of the horse show some years and was responsible for introduction of the cutting horse competitions —one of the fair's most popular attractions.

Man Admits Break-in At Grocery

One man pleaded guilty and a companion pleaded not guilty in central court today to breaking and entering a grocery store overnight.

Charles was remanded to Jan. 17 for pre-sentence report and sentence. Charlie was remanded to the same date for trial.

RENT INCREASED

Family Service Moving March 1

Victoria Family and Children's Service will move out of Spencerhouse March 1 to new Fort Street offices.

Other welfare agencies at Spencerhouse, already subject to a Jan. 1 rent boost, are fearful their rents will be jumped again when F and CS departs.

Spencerhouse, located at 1951 Cook Street, is also home to Victorian Order of Nurses, Community Chest and John Howard Society. Community Welfare Council moved out recently.

Rents in Spencerhouse have been relatively low. It was built by the Sara Spencer Foundation as a common headquarters for local welfare and charitable agencies. But the endowment made no special grant to meet costs of later depreciation.

Now with furnace and other renovations necessary, the foundation has been required to increase the rents. Greater Victoria Community Chest which has occupied most of the top floor for $160 a month, now will pay $220 a month—an increase of almost 38 per cent.

Some Community Chest officials believe that with Family and Children's Service leaving, further rent adjustments are indicated unless the F and CS offices are taken over by new tenants.

The service was forced to move because of increased activities in the welfare field. For some time two of its departments have been located elsewhere. The offices administering to unwed mothers has been in the Montreal Trust Building. And the adoption offices have been on Meares Street.

These will once again be under the same roof when the F and CS move is completed

A branch office at Fernwood and Gladstone will be undisturbed by the move.

Director Gordon Wright said his agency will take over the second floor of a new office building at 1627 Fort, March 1. The building is a conversion and was formerly a Safeway Store.

A new three-storey wing is being added and Mr. Wright's agency will take over the second floor of the wing also on Sept. 1.

First floor of the building will be a postal sub-station.

All Companies Hike Fuel Oil Cent a Gallon

All major companies have increased domestic fuel oil prices by one cent a gallon.

Prices in the Victoria area now are in the range of 20.6-21 cents per gallon for furnace oils and 23.5-26.5 cents a gallon for stove oil, which varies according to volume.

Man Gets 10 Days For Street Begging

A man who begged on Johnson Street Tuesday night was sentenced today in central court to 10 days in jail.

'Moment of Truth' Coming for Socreds

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today said the coming Legislative session will bring the long-delayed "moment of truth" for B.C.

He said there are signs everywhere that the Social Credit administration is in deep financial trouble and predicted the government will do everything it can to "make this a cover-up session."

But the NDP caucus is meeting twice as often as normal prior to a session because it is determined to expose mismanagement of the province's affairs.

"There is a moment of truth coming to this province very soon," he said in an interview.

"After 15 years of big talk of boom, there is government failure in all areas to meet the needs of the people and they are becoming very disturbed about it."

He said the government not only has fallen behind the people's needs in such fields as housing, hospitals, and schools but also in industrial development "and even highway construction."

'Boorish Behavior' Must Stop

Police Action Requested Against Square Vandals

Centennial Square vandals will face tougher police action during the next few months if Ald. Cecil Parrott has his way.

Ald. Parrott, chairman of the Victoria public works committee, said today he has come to the end of the line in his tolerance for boorish behavior.

His remarks came hard on the heels of a protest from three Centennial Square merchants who in a lawyer-signed letter to city council demanded urgent action to prevent loitering on the covered walk-way between Douglas Street and the elevator leading to the municipal parking facility.

The merchants claim that lunch-time and after-school loiterers, mostly juveniles, are a serious deterrent to business.

Ald. Parrott doesn't think all the troubles in Centennial Square can be laid to juveniles.

"But there is no doubt in my mind that they are responsible for much of the vandalism taking place over recent months," he said.

The repair bill in the Square during the past year was between $2,500 and $3,000 over and above the annual cost of $25,745 for keeping the area up to scratch.

ELEVATOR AGAIN

"Just last week we had to again do repairs on the elevator," said Ald. Parrott. "I've lost count on how many times the thing has been damaged by youngsters.

"At the same time we again had problems in the washroom created by people who are worse than animals in their behavior. It's almost a weekly chore for city hall crews to have to flush out and fumigate after these filthy people have been around.

MUST STOP

"I don't know how much of that is caused by the young people, but by golly, it's got to stop. We just can't put up with it any longer."

Ald. Parrott said he had every sympathy with the merchants complaining about loitering juveniles.

"It isn't the first complaint we have had," he said. "Hardly a day goes by without someone telephoning or stopping you to complain that the youngsters just deliberately get in the way of pedestrians."

Since the advent of colder weather and the disappearance of most hippies the same area has become a holiday and after-school rendezvous place for some high school-age students.

Ald. Parrott said he will discuss the situation with Chief Jack Gregory to see what can be done to halt excessive vandalism.

"It makes me sick to think that people, whatever age they may be, can do this sort of thing in one of the most beautiful spots in the city," he said.

Original construction and beautification of the Centennial Square area cost the taxpayers $213,325. With maintenance costs now pushing $30,000 a year it will have cost more in eight years to maintain the Square than it did for the original design, landscaping and construction.

Two major items in the annual cost are maintenance of the fountain at $7,400 and parks employees salaries at $11,300.

"I don't think anyone doubts that with that kind of investment at stake we shall be justified in cracking down hard on anyone we catch performing acts of vandalism or other even more disgusting acts."

Squealers' Egos Face Puncturing

Victoria streets will be quieter this summer if city council agrees with Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor says the growing number of complaints reaching his office regarding squealing tires and noisy mufflers have convinced him that tough legislation is required to halt the nuisance.

He said there are too many motorists operating their vehicles to the maximum annoyance of the public.

"The squealing of tires and the roaring of engines and exhausts may do something for the otherwise starved egos of those who resort to such thoughtlessness," he said. "They certainly do nothing for the peace of mind of the rest of us."

The mayor said he is studying an excessive noise bylaw recently passed in Vancouver with a view to introducing a similar bylaw to city council in the near future.

Ask The Times

Q. If in the event that a partner in a joint bank account-deposit box or any other kind of account dies, is the account and box sealed off from the surviving partner? M.B.

A. The surviving partner can withdraaw half the amount in any account up to $2,500. A larger withdrawal requires a government release order. A deposit box is sealed, except for removal of the will and the listing of its contents with a lawyer and the estate's executor, unless a government release is obtained, according to a local bank manager.

Jockey Club Won't Ditch Island Racing

By DOUG PEDEN

That is the song Vancouver Island's turf fraternity has been committed to sing this year. Whether or not we like the tune, the racing campaign at the Sidney track will start on April 6, marking a switch from the usual fall meeting, which followed the long season at Vancouver's Exhibition Park and stretched for about 17 racing days.

This time the season is scheduled for 11 days, with horses hitting the track on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. However, provisions have been made that if weather, attendance and the clacking of mutuel machines combine to form a favorable picture, three Fridays can be added to the meeting.

Acting after receiving a supporting vote from the B.C. Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association, the B.C. Jockey Club has confirmed the April dates, which follow painfully close to the income tax deadline.

There are those among us who have been considerably hostile to the proposed switch from autumn outings at Sandown Park.

This writer was near the head of the list when it came to voicing opposition to the swing to spring. Many of us felt the Sandown season, with performances of horses not counting toward conditions at Vancouver, would become merely a "spring training" exercise for horsemen preparing their steeds for the more lucrative purses of Exhibition Park.

It is also possible that some mainland trainers won't ship their animals to the Island for such a short season and the quality of racing will suffer. Also, the meet seems destined to lack some of the interest injected by the shipping of Prairie horses here at the end of a racing year and form will be difficult to ascertain since many horses will not round into top condition until about the time the Sandown session ends.

The Sandown visits have not been profit-making ventures for the B.C. Jockey Club, operator of the Sidney and Vancouver tracks, and nobody can demand the organization continue to lose money just in order to provide racing for Island fans although there is certainly some responsibility to people of the province as a whole.

While possible profits over the next few years do not make it financially sound to undertake major renovations at the Sandown plant, it is probable that making some improvements to provide greater comfort for customers, especially in poor weather, would increase the chances of larger and more consistent attendance.

Mainly, however, the concern here was that, with the reduction in racing days and a possible decline in quality of racing, machinery might be put into motion that would eventually result in the abandonment of Sandown to the seagulls and the transfer of all our racing days to the bigger money market of Vancouver.

●

This isn't so, says Merv Peters, director of racing for the Jockey Club, who was in Victoria Tuesday with Harry Filion, the club's publicity director.

"Regardless of the success of the spring meeting, we definitely do not intend to abandon racing on Vancouver Island," said Peters.

"This is an experiment. We were not making a success at Sandown in the fall and we think a spring meeting will work. We are assured that most horsemen are anxious to run at Sandown in the spring and we want to give it a try. We feel this could be the start of a longer and better racing season at Sandown.

"I can assure you there is no thought of abandoning Vancouver Island racing. If this doesn't work, we may eventually return to a fall meeting."

Merv and Harry put up a convincing argument for an April program, stressing the following beliefs:

● Horses will be fresher and more numerous as they start a new season instead of coming off the drawn-out campaign at Vancouver. Horsemen shipped almost 250 head to Sandown last September but only about 210 were in condition to go to the post. Peters expects more than 300 horses will be stabled at the Sidney stables this spring.

● Island breeders will have a chance to see their horses in action before shipping them to Vancouver.

● For the first time there will be a series of races for two-year-olds at Sandown.

● More jockeys will be available. Jockeys usually arrive from two to six weeks before the season opens to ride themselves into condition and they should all be available for Sandown. In the past, some of the better hardboots have headed southward after the Vancouver season ended.

● Horses that could be handicap winners at Vancouver will be running here. After a good season at Vancouver in other years, top handicap horses have seldom been shipped over to Sandown in September.

● Mainland punters, on their annual winter starvation diet away from racing, will be eager to get back to the mutuel wickets and will be over in larger numbers as they get a line on the new crop of runners.

● Peters says that weather conditions in April can be expected to be better than those in October.

That's some of the reasoning behind the swing to spring and the die is cast.

So it's Sandown in the spring, tra la, tra la!

The lyrics sound fine, but only time will tell what sort of music the mutuel machines will be humming amid the April showers.

Clarke's Trio Leads Cats To 6-3 Win Over Royals

Victoria, 6; New Westminster, 3

By DOUG PEDEN

Mistakes are what lose hockey games and Denny Houser may have made the most costly one of the season for New Westminster Royals Tuesday night at Memorial Arena.

Houser, the tall Westminster forward who had just returned to action after recuperating from a broken hand, tangled with Victoria's Barry Clarke early in the second period.

This apparently put his sparring mate in a fighting mood and Barry promptly went to work to wreck the Royals and lead the Cats to a 6-3 B.C. Junior Hockey League decision that left the Victorians just four points behind the fourth-place Westminsters in their drive toward the league's fourth playoff berth.

Clarke had snapped a lengthy scoring slump by bringing his club from behind in the opening period and the teams were still deadlocked at 1-1 when he clashed with Houser behind the Westminster goal in the second minute of the second session.

Both players received roughing penalties with Clarke moving into the penalty box and Houser retiring to the dressing room for a few minutes to have his injured hand examined.

By the time the sentences had expired, the Royals had another man in the box and less than a minute later Barry was awarded an assist on a power-play goal by defenceman Bill Mainland.

Doug Appreciates Sparkplug Role

George Watson got that one back for the visitors but Clarke swished a quick backhander behind goalie Bruce Dowad with seven seconds left in the period to move the Cougars ahead to stay.

He was back to hustle the puck out of a corner for a scoring shot by Dennis Ferrill in the first minute of the third stanza before stealing the puck and going in to hit the net with a whistling 30-footer to make it three goals and two assists on the first five Victoria tallies.

Possibly more important than his five-point production was the role of team sparkplug played by Clarke, who seemed to acquire extra fire and ferocity after his scuffle. There have been many times this season when the Cats appeared to be sorely needing a player who could ignite a spark in the team and coach Doug Anderson believes Barry may be taking over the role at the right time to light the way into the playoffs.

If Barry does take over as a lamplighter, Houser's penchant for punching might be the thing that turned on the heat under Clarke and ruined the Westminster shot at the playoff spot.

"This is what we've been looking for and Barry could do it for us," said Anderson, who was quick to praise the efforts of several other Cats and "very happy" with the way things turned out as Victoria collected a second successive victory and Westminster suffered a third straight loss.

Finlay Brilliant; Kelowna Next

Despite Clarke's point binge, the Cougars would never have made it without the sensational heroics of goalie Murray Finlay. After Dowad had thwarted the Victorians in the opening period, Finlay joined Clarke in lowering the boom on the Royals.

He made 18 saves in the second period and another dozen in the third to finish the evening with 36 stops, many of them of point-blank variety while leaving the Royals muttering and moaning.

Making things tougher than necessary for Finlay was a tendency of Cougar defenders to back in on goal while failing to retain alignment. This left some wide-open spaces in front of the net and Royal snipers often had more than ample time to wind up for drives at Finlay.

Shortcomings in positional play were the major faults exhibited before 1,464 fans by the Cats, who will give their hustle another test Saturday night at Memorial Arena against Kelowna Buckaroos.

They may have to go in that one without the services of centre Greg Gow, who aggravated a groin injury and was forced to leave the ice during the final period.

Gow, who received a five-minute sentence for butt-ending Westminster's Barry Leswick in the second period and watched his mates escape unscathed with fine penalty-killing, has been ordered to stay off skates for a couple of days and may not be ready for action Saturday.

PUCK IS QUICKER THAN THE EYE

While New Westminster goalie Bruce Dowad is confident he has smothered puck and clubmate Bruce McGill and Dennis Ferrill (7) of Victoria Cougars also believe rubber is under pads, puck (lower left) rolls inches wide of corner of goal. Although Dowad played strong game, Cougars chalked up 6-3 B.C. Junior Hockey League victory Wednesday. Ferrill scored once for Victoria.

Blake Calls on Canadien Trio

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens aren't often overlooked in the annual all-star poll. But last year the Habs failed to gain recognition on either the first or second all-star teams for the first time since 1943.

But Montreal coach Toe Blake, who will be handling the National Hockey League All-Star reins next Tuesday in the 21st annual game against the Stanley Cup champions at Toronto, intends to have at least three of his charges in the all-star lineup.

The three are defenceman Jacques Laperriere and J. C. Tremblay and centre Jean Beliveau.

The coach also drew freely from the new division of the league to bolster the selections of the first and second teams made by a poll of sports writers and broadcasters in the then-established six-team league.

At least one member of the six new clubs is expected to be in the lineup.

Other players not mentioned in the all-star poll but selected by Blake for the game are John Bucyk, high-scoring Boston Bruin and Dave Balon of Minnesota North Stars on left wing.

On the right side he selected Ken Schinkel of Pittsburgh Penguins and Leon Rochefort of Philadelphia Flyers. Centre Ed Joyal, goalie Terry Sawchuk, both of Los Angeles Kings, and defenceman Bob Baun from Oakland Seals round out the additional help.

ALL-STAR CHOICES

All-star selections expected to play in the game are goalie Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers, first choice, and Glenn Hall, chosen as No. 2 and since drafted by St. Louis Blues from Chicago Black Hawks.

Defence selections were Pierre Pilote of Chicago, Harry Howell of the Rangers and Bobby Orr of Boston.

Respect Appears Mutual

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Lonely Willie Brown figures to have plenty of company in Oakland's defensive secondary once Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr goes to work in Sunday's Super Bowl game.

But Starr won't throw aimlessly with Brown and Kent McCloughan manning Oakland's cornerback slots.

"Their defensive films indicate great over-all quickness," said Starr Tuesday as the National Football League champion Packers settled down to serious work for Sunday's game against the Raiders, champions in the American Football League.

"They have quick tackles, linebackers and backs," Starr continued. "They seem to work very well as an 11-man unit."

ADMIRES DEFENCE

"The biggest thing about the Green Bay receivers is the very good timing they have with the quarterback," said Brown. "Starr seems to throw on the break. He seems to know when they're going to break."

How then, do the Raiders plan to defend against Starr's passes?

"At Oakland we play it man-to-man," said Brown.

"I think we're the only two in either league," he said of himself and McCloughan, "That play it strictly man-to-man without much help. Sometimes you feel pretty lonesome out there."

McCloughan is impressed by the size of Green Bay's primary receivers, Boyd Dowler and Carroll Dale.

"Both of them are bigger men than we are used to," he said. "I've never played against any that big. They have the size of tight ends, but they have better speed."

Dale is 6-foot-2, 200 pounds and Dowler 6-foot-5, 225.

Wings Deal Three To Land Douglas

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings, bolstered defensively by the acquisition of Kent Douglas from the Oakland Seals, will try to snap a two-game National Hockey League losing streak tonight when they take on the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Wings traded defenceman Bert Marshall, centre Ted Hampson and veteran minor league winger John Brennenman to the Seals late Tuesday for the 30-year-old Douglas, a native of Cobalt, Ont.

"I've been trying to get Douglas all year," said Sid Abel, manager-coach of the Wings, after the deal was made. "He's just the kind of player we need to pick up our defence."

The Wings, in last place in the NHL's East Division, ranked second in the league in goals scored with 131, but stand 11th in goals-against, with 119.

The Wings are notably short of top defencemen, especially the rough-and-tumble Douglas type. Douglas ranks third in the NHL in penalty minutes with 80.

Former All-Star goalie Roger Crozier quit the team Nov. 6 after saying he no longer had what it takes to play goal. He was to confer with Red Wings' officials in Detroit today, ostensibly to make a decision on his hockey future.

Crozier, 25, is in the second year of a four-year contract calling for $25,000 a year.

FIGURE SKATING

Ontario Pairings In Early Spotlight

VANCOUVER (CP)—Although British Columbia figure skaters are expected to dominate senior events at the 1968 Canadian figure skating championships, two Ontario couples prevailed at opening events Tuesday.

Michael Bradley and Debbi Jones of Unionville Figure Skating Club captured the novice pairs event, edging clubmates Harold and Susan Sher.

Bradley and Jones picked up 57.3 points to win the title while the Shers were awarded 56 points for their program. The Vancouver team of Glen Moore and Marian Murray finished third with 55 points.

In the novice dance competition Philip Porter and Janette D'Altroy of Toronto take a 4.8 point lead into the second round of the week-long championships today.

PICK UP POINTS

Porter and D'Altroy picked up 83 points although they almost fell in the European waltz section of the event. The couple picked up enough points in the fox trot and tango sections of the dance competition to take the initial round lead.

Holding down second place are Keith Caughill and Jury Currah of St. Thomas, Ont., who lead after the waltz. In third place with 72.3 points are David Soper and Betsy Whitman of Vancouver's Capilano Winter Club.

Today's events will feature novice and junior skaters.

Novice men's and women's figures will be run off along with the junior men's figures. The final rounds of the novice dance and junior pairs, and the initial round of the junior dance, will also be held.

Senior events start Friday, with finals scheduled for Sunday.

One 'Free' So McVie Pots Three

By The Canadian Press

Tom McVie scored three goals, including one on a penalty shot, to lead Phoenix Roadrunners past Vancouver Canucks 6-4 in a Western Hockey League game Tuesday.

At Phoenix, before 6,114 fans, McVie scored one goal in the first period and two in the third.

His second goal of the game—at 12:02 of the final period—stalled a comeback by the Canucks, who had scored three straight goals to cut Roadrunners' lead to 4-3.

McVie's third goal was the final one of the game, coming on a penalty shot with 23 seconds remaining. The penalty shot was granted after Vancouver's Larry Mavety grabbed the puck in the Canucks net after the goalie had been pulled.

NANCY TAKES GIANT SLALOM

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP) — Canada's Nancy Greene won the first giant slalom event of the ladies' international ski races today according to unofficial results. She was timed in 1:23.29.

Second was Marielle Goitschel, France, 1:23.89, and Fernande Bochatay, Switzerland, was third in 1:24.13.

Russians Beaten 8-2

OTTAWA (CP) — Before 10,388 fans, largest crowd ever to see a hockey game in the national capital, Canada trounced Russia 8-2 Tuesday night.

Representing Canada was the eastern section of the national team, reinforced by six players from the main, Winnipeg-based squad. The crowd, jammed into the new Civic Centre, gave them a long standing ovation at the end of the game.

The Russian national squad, which had played in Edmonton the night before, did not appear to be at its best for this exhibition encounter after the quick, 2,098-mile trip from the Alberta capital. The Russians, defending world and Olympic champions, headed for the rink directly from the Ottawa airport.

UNION ORGANIZERS SEEK CERTIFICATION . . . BUT PLAYERS AGAINST AFFILIATION

Pro Football Players Dodge Teamster Blitz

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Teamster union organizers may have a few plays to go in efforts to bring professional football players onto their team, but representatives of players from both leagues dodged the Teamster blitz by asking that their league associations be certified as unions.

The American Football League Players Association voted Tuesday to ask that the National Labor Relations Board declare the group is official spokesman for the players.

The National Football League Players Association took similar action Monday and followed up Tuesday with a wire to Art Modell, president of the NFL, asking for immediate negotiations.

But the early move by the Teamsters may have stalled immediate recognition. A telegram to league officials, team owners and the NLRB from Harold J. Gibbons, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said an affiliate union had an interest in representing the players in collective bargaining.

Gibbons said the notice by the affiliate, the American Federation of Professional Athletes, would legally block the teams and leagues from entering into agreements with associations.

"If the owners fail to recognize voluntarily that we represent a majority," Gibbons said, "we will then proceed to file for a representation election under the NLRB."

The new AFL president, Jack Kemp, quarterback for Buffalo Bills, said the football business is based on individual and team competition which "precludes the type of traditional union organization which doesn't recognize these aspects of the business."

Kemp said the new AFL association would not seek to bargain collectively with regard to individual salaries.

Dan Shulman, a Chicago labor attorney negotiator for the NFL players, sent a wire to Modell and an owners' representative.

"We request that negotiations regarding a collective bargaining agreement be commenced immediately," the wire said. "We request that a meeting be scheduled within the next 10 days to commence bargaining."

Shulman said he's had no reply from Modell.

The attorney said the apparent united front by players in rejecting initial overtures by the Teamsters could lead to a struggle.

"The Teamsters may well attempt to block the players union through the owners," Shulman said. "But we know we represent our people. The player representatives have voted unanimously against affiliating with the teamsters."

BOWLER OF WEEK

Crashing into winner's circle as play resumed in Times Bowler - of - the - Week contest after Christmas recess is Jim Stewart, who earned men's fivepin award by firing 886 series in Legion League at Esquimalt Bowladrome. Stewart paced his division by rolling games of 365, 198 and 323 to qualify for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs, in which his wife, Pearl, won women's fivepin title in 1966.

Steele Supplying Iron For Colony's Offence

Ed Steele has come along to supply backup power and Colony Inn growls in the Senior Men's Basketball League have taken on a serious sound lately.

Colony belted Farmer Construction 88-63 in one of two roughhouse displays at Oak Bay High Tuesday night. In the other game, Labatts dumped winless Red Lions 82-62.

The results kept the Colony and Labs in a second-place deadlock, six points behind front-running Coffee Macs.

ROLLING IN HIGH

But there may have been greatest significance in the Steele-forged Colony triumph. It marked the second straight game Colony has hit for the impressive sum of 88 points.

The scoring breakout by the six-foot-four Steele has been a key factor. He scored 23 points when Colony tamed Labs 88-53 in a Sunday game, and added another 21 points Tuesday.

It was a vast improvement on his 9.2 average he scored in his team's first 18 games. It also backs up the consistent shooting of Jim Cunningham, the Colony leader who ranks second in league scoring.

PLAY ROUGH

But Steele's splurge and the outstanding scoring displays of Joe Patterson (27), John Devlin (27) and Jack Lusk (26) failed to detract from the rough play that marred both games.

Referees whistled a total of 96 personals and five technicals in the two games. Seven players—Joe Stewart, Ken MacCaskell, Lusk, Bob Tomlinson, Patterson, Don Farquhar and Gary Ford—fouled out before regulation time ended.

Canadians Overrun Paris

Delegations Seek Closer Ties; France Invests in Quebec Corp.

By CY FOX

PARIS (CP) — French-speaking Canadians kept French officials busy today as they continued their talks aimed at closer ties with the de Gaulle government.

"Paris is overrun with Canadians today," said a French newspaper man, referring to the visit of delegations from Quebec and New Brunswick's Acadian community.

Freezing temperatures and snow struck the French capital Tuesday as Parisians flocked to the opening of a Ottawa-sponsored exhibition called Canadian Realities.

In what resembled a display of national solidarity, representatives of the Quebec government's delegation together with the visiting Acadians were listed among the guests for the exhibition.

INVEST IN QUEBEC

Quebec delegation officials disclosed Tuesday that the French government and private banks have invested $2,000,000 in Quebec's Investment Corp., or about 20 per cent of a new capital issue by the group known in Quebec as Societe Generale de Financement. The French got one of the 16 seats on the corporation's board of directors.

Jean Noel Tremblay Quebec's minister of cultural affairs, dined with French Education Minister Alain Peyrefitte and four members of the Acadian delegation Tuesday night.

Gilbert Finn of St. Anselme, N.S., president of the French-language Assumption Society, said in an interview that he gave Peyrefitte "a realistic explanation of the current needs of our French-speaking people in the Maritimes."

"Very sympathetic" was how Finn described Peyrefitte's reaction.

But another delegation member stressed the cultural aspect of the visit by himself and his fellow New Brunswickers, especially possible exchanges of students and teachers between France and New Brunswick, and provision of more French books by the de Gaulle government.

Today, the Acadians planned further consultations towards this end with French officials. A meeting with de Gaulle Jan. 20 will climax their two-week visit.

Other members of the delegation are Dr. Leon Richard, president of the National Society of Acadians, President Adelard Savoie of the University of Moncton and Euclide Daigle, vice-president of the Acadian Education Association.

Saying that the Acadians were the first European settlers of Canada, the paper says the visit will introduce into France's policy towards French-Canada the French-speaking Canadians living outside Quebec.

ON CHAMPS ELYSEES

The Canadian exhibition, being held on the gleaming Champs Elysees, highlighted blown-up newspaper pages, store advertisements and folk art, all set off with modernistic audio-visual effects.

A big exhibition of Modern Canadian art opens here Friday. Announcement of extra French investment in Quebec industrial development gives Canadian Week here a substantial commercial aspect.

The investment received greater attention from the news columns of today's Paris papers than did the Realities show, which may come more into the journalistic limelight as its month-long stay here proceeds.

The French investment, seen here as a symbol of France's willingness to help Quebec development, represents about 10 per cent of the General Investment Corp.'s $26,000,000 capital.

Habitat 67 a Rather Lonely Place

MONTREAL (CP) — Habitat 67, which reminded visitors to Expo during the summer of a cliff-side Mediterranean village, now reminds those who care to venture to the waterfront of a cliff-side Siberian village—minus Siberians.

However, Jean-Guy Tanguay, a Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. executive charged with managing Habitat and other property on Cite du Havre, said Tuesday:

"I'm not a bit worried. I feel confident all the apartments will be let by May 1.

The 114-unit Habitat now has only two men renting apartments—on the first and seventh floors.

"They don't actually live here," said Mr. Tanguay. "Both have houses elsewhere. They may drop in a few nights a week, sometimes just to entertain."

All the essential services are there. There's a building superintendent, a janitor, a plumber. And all the apartments—the occupied ones and the unoccupied ones—are heated and supplied with hot water.

The two apartments leased are in the $300 bracket.

The prices have dropped sharply from Expo days when the apartments started at $390 a month and ran as high as $1,100. This brought Expo an estimated revenue of $281,000 from the $22,195,920 development.

Group Searching For Parade Theme

Victoria Day 1968 has a planned parade and a group to organize it—everything, in fact, but a theme for the celebration.

And the Victoria Celebration Association hopes to have that within the next few weeks.

At the annual meeting Tuesday night, the association decided to have ideas for the parade theme ready for a night of decision February 6.

Once the theme is chosen, the association can begin sending application forms to bands, marching corps and float prospects throughout the Pacific Northwest.

Preliminary applications have already come in from points as far away as California, association chairman John Rafter said.

Any many more are expected from Washington, Oregon and other parts of the province.

Mr. Rafter was re-elected chairman of the association and Ald. Percy Frampton continues as treasurer.

Mrs. Dorothea Davis was re-named secretary.

SELLERS LOOKS AT HIMSELF

Essentially an Actor Who Performs Comedy

By VERNON SCOTT

But he has a special set of hang-ups that set him apart from his brethren.

First, he is not a funnyman. Nor is he particularly interested in eliciting laughs from friends, acquaintances or utter strangers. He has a reputation for being difficult on movie sets. He is shy, introverted and self-conscious.

Moreover he dislikes personal publicity, refusing most interviews and giving the news media as wide a berth as possible.

He did agree the other day, however, to chat at Warner Bros.-Seven Arts where he is starring in "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas!" the story of a successful lawyer who chucks it all to become a hippie.

SELLERS
. . . complicated man

Instead of having lunch or relaxing in his dressing room, Sellers spent the better part of an hour pacing the streets of the sprawling studio and keeping the discussion as impersonal as possible.

"This is one of the very best films I've ever made," he said. "And it may be the best picture to come out of Hollywood in 25 years.

"I know I have a reputation for being difficult. But everything clicked immediately into place in this film—the producers, writers, directors, actors and all the rest. It is a comedy-drama. I think it has something rather important to say."

Sellers, as the hero, discovers that the hippie way of life has as many shortcomings as the successful attorney. In the end he hopes to find a middle ground somewhere between.

Is that the case with Sellers himself?

"No. Not at all. I'm quite a happy man," he said." Perhaps that is often misunderstood because I make no effort to be amusing or funny unless I'm joining in with close friends.

"Essentially I am an actor who performs comedy. Which is quite a different thing from being a comedian, isn't it?"

Sellers, at 42, is very nearly the top comedy star in movies today. But there appears to be a restless seething in the man, a desire to accomplish a great deal more than he has.

His pursuit of the muse seems motivated far more by an intellectuality than economics. He is wealthy enough by any standards and is married to Britt Eklund.

"I hold few interviews," he said, "because I do not like to discuss my personal life. And after all, how much can be said about one's current picture. I know I make it quite difficult for the studio publicity departments. But then I think they shall survive at any rate. And so, I hope, shall I."

VICTORIAN SUMMED IT ALL UP

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

PORT McNEILL — A Victorian, who signed his name anonymously, has won the first Great International Limerick Contest.

The contest, promoted by the Port McNeill Chamber of Commerce and contest director Gerry Furney, was designed to attract attention to the poor road and ferry conditions in the northern part of Vancouver Island.

Poetic opinion flowed in from all over the province and as far away as England.

For those winners who feel their cars cannot face the rigors of the 200-mile drive north from Campbell River to accept their prize, Mr. Furney has arranged to freeze their dinners, plus wine, and fly them out to the recipients.

Plans are being made to compile the hundreds of entries into a book, copies of which will be distributed to federal and provincial government ministers as well as newspapers around the world.

To finance distribution copies will be sold for 100 cents per book, which according to Mr. Furney's calculation will work out to three poems for a penny. He believes this is the first time a book has been written by so many different poets on a common problem.

The winning limerick:

I will take a flight up in my jet,
Said Gaglardi, the premier's pet,
For my friend 'Instant Dan,'
Build a road if I can,
But not now, later on, but not now.

Anteater Born in Zoo

MALTON, ENGLAND (UPI) — A giant anteater was born today at Malton zoo and proud officials said it was the first time anywhere in the world an anteater had been born in captivity.

Zoo director Reg Bloom said the parents had been in a special cage at the zoo for three years. During the mating season, he said, they ate a diet of 14 eggs, minced meat and vitamins daily.

The giant anteater, a native of South America, is about three feet high and six feet long.

"It is quite a zoological feat to breed an anteater in captivity," Bloom said. "We were told zoos in West Germany tried, but without success."

MONTREAL hair stylist Mitchell and his receptionist Lamie show off their matching locks and clothes, known as the Regency Look. His locks are longer than hers and have to be curled three times a week, while she can get by with just two settings a week. (CP Wirephoto.)

'Hibernating' Girl Cured of Disease

LONDON (Reuters) — An English girl who contracted a rare disease slept like a hibernating animal for up to two days after eating excessive amounts, the British Journal of Psychiatry reported today.

The journal said that the unidentified 20-year-old girl suffered from hypersomnia, a disease so rare that only 29 cases have been recorded throughout the world in more than 40 years.

The journal also reported the case of a 16-year-old Canadian boy who slept for five or six days at a time.

Professor Alexander Bonkalo of the University of Toronto said the boy dropped off into four marathon sleeps within nine months.

Transportable Machine Keeps Kidneys Alive for 72 Hours

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A transportable machine capable of keeping human kidneys alive outside the body for 72 hours has been developed by a team of University of California doctors.

Dr. F. O. Belzer, head of the team, said Tuesday the machine has been used in three successful kidney transplants, two of which would have been impossible without it.

"I think it is a major step toward a kidney bank," said Dr. J. Englebert Dunphy. "Within five years there will be many of these machines."

The machine, mounted on wheels and carrying its own storage battery, cost about $8,000 to build but the doctors said duplicates could be constructed for about $4,000.

It was demonstrated Tuesday at the University of California's medical centre in San Francisco. Its top was covered with transparent material permitting two kidneys, hooked to plastic tubes circulating fluid, to be observed producing urine.

At the Movies With Norman Cribbens

Adult Entertainment
Royal Theatre

This very unpleasant film is chiefly concerned with lust, vulgarity, nudity, insanity, implied homosexuality and marital fraud.

When it isn't boring, it's morbid and when it isn't morbid it's sadistic and sometimes downright disgusting.

Cutwardly a pukkha U.S. army major, Brando is part of a military establishment somewhere down in Georgia. With him are his waspish wife (Taylor); their neighbors, Col. Brian Keith and his ailing spouse, Julie Harris; an effeminate houseboy (Zorro David), and a homosexual private soldier, assigned to look after the horses.

Brando plays the major as a bedevilled, frustrated bisexual man who might have been happy as an ascetic monk, but endures every kind of anguish as a supposed leader of men.

Devoid of style or grace, he rides a horse like a bear riding a donkey; he has no real influence on the men under him and he is a physical and moral failure as the husband of his vicious, adulterous wife.

The morbid story builds up to a nasty climax when Major Brando tries to ride his wife's horse and it runs away with him. Then, in a frenzy of frustrated ego, he beats the horse with a willow branch and then breaks down, sobbing hysterically, because he knows he has failed every standard of conventional manhood.

When the major's wife sees what he has done to her horse, she gets out her riding whip and thrashes him in front of his own guests at a military reception in his own home.

Had the major turned the whip on his wife, everyone would have been happy; but it seems he is both a masochist and a sadist.

The murder in the final scene is about the only wholesome thing that happens in this sephiatoned film and it has the merit of being startling and anticlimactic.

Funds Theft Brings Jail To Unionist

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former union business agent was jailed for nine months Tuesday for stealing $9,359 in union funds, which he said he used to pay gambling debts.

He admitted through his lawyer that as one of three union signing authorities he forged the signatures of the other two officers and later erased the signatures from the records.

He also admitted stealing from the union's current account.

The magistrate said he also recognized that Zastre has signed a promissory note with the union's bonding company to make full restitution.

'MUCH TO OFFER' BUSINESS

LADYSMITH — Mayor Kay Grouhel forecast Monday an active and exciting year for the town.

She told the inaugural meeting of council: "We are going to wage a campaign to attract more people to open businesses in Ladysmith.

"Our taxes are still low and we have much to offer. The town itself has land to offer for development and we should publicize this even if it means advertising."

Mayor Grouhel promised emphasis on park development as well as public works including improvement of streets, sidewalks and drainage.

Council approved in a provisional budget of $488,754, an increase of $25,000.

Mayor Grouhel said: "The majority of the increase covers the expected rise in school costs."

Teacher Called Almost Bigoted

DUNCAN — School principal R. M. Lendrum said Tuesday he felt teacher Kenneth Hasanen was "almost bigoted" in his thinking about education.

He had been asked if Hasanen was intensely interested in educational philosophy.

Mr. Lendrum was giving evidence at the hearing of an appeal by Mr. Hasanen against his dismissal by Cowichan school board for misconduct.

He stated: "I respected Mr. Hasanen's right to have these views but I must also respect the rights and attitudes of the parents.

DISRUPTION

"To go off on a doctrinaire line would only cause class disruption."

Giving evidence the previous day, Mr. Hasanen said he was a believer in students' freedom with responsibility.

Mr. Lendrum said Mr. Hasanen's counselling was more liberal than was acceptable.

"I would find the boys idle and larking around and there was a lack of direction of the students."

Counsel William Craig for Mr. Hasanen, in his summation, said if Hasanen was dismissed for cause and not misconduct there might not have been such a vociferous appeal.

He told the appeal board: "You may consider Mr. Hasanen was obstinate and determined and the expression of his ideas tactless but your only concern is to find if the school board was justified in dismissing him for misconduct.

INSUBORDINATION

"I submit his conduct was nothing more than insubordination. Misconduct would be morally reprehensible or bringing disrepute on the teaching profession.

"The stigma of dismissal for misconduct would be so great as to ensure great difficulty in Mr. Hasanen ever again getting employment in any school district."

Earlier testimony was that Mr. Hasanen refused to teach in the presence either of the acting principal or schools superintendent, refused both of them admittance to his classroom and refused to meet with the superintendent.

School board counsel David Wright said the reason Mr. Hasanen was dismissed for misconduct was in order to get him out of the classroom immediately.

FORCED SUPERIORS

Mr. Hasanen appeared to be under the misapprehension he could dictate when superior personnel could enter his classroom. He was given notice of acting principal Harold Proctor's intention to visit but still walked out.

He had forced his superiors, reluctantly, to take the stand of dismissing him.

Chairman of the board of reference, Vancouver lawyer Frank Phippen, said the board would make its recommendations to the provincial cabinet.

LENDRUM

Bull Kills Farmer

MONKTON, Vt. (AP)—A bull being led outside for watering knocked a 77-year-old farmer to the ground and then trampled and butted him to death in the barnyard. A medical examiner said Frederick Weisenbach suffered a crushed chest in the mishap Saturday night.

'Open Season' Charged On Indian Girls

The Indian affairs branch in Vancouver has received no reports of Indian girls in residential schools becoming pregnant.

A spokesman for the department said today no complaints have been filed by Indians.

The charge was made by Mrs. Diana Recalma, controversial co-author of an Indian welfare brief.

Mrs. Recalma, wife of Qualicum chief Bud Recalma, said there is a total lack of interest in the welfare of Indian girls.

NOBODY TOLD

"It's open season on Indian girls," she said. "Indian girls in residential schools, 12 and 13 years old, have been made pregnant, and their parents haven't been notified.

"Nothing has happened," she added. "Nothing was done to find the father.

"Those children were not conceived by immaculate conception.

NEED GUIDANCE

Speaking on some problems facing Indian children, she said they should first be orientated or prepared for changes they would meet in schools or in foster homes.

"They are sent to urban centres from reserves which have no electricity," she said. "They don't even understand what's happening when the floor is cleaned with a vacuum cleaner. They don't know how to spend money, and the parents have no idea of how to dress the children to send them from home."

'PEOPLE SAY I'M EGOTISTICAL . . . WELL I AM'

It's Go-Go-Go and Go-Again With Ney

By JIM HUME
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO — Two hours with Nanaimo's Mayor Frank Ney is like two hours too many in the sauna bath: the end result is complete exhaustion.

Spend those two hours in his Nanaimo Realty office or the cubby-hole coffee shop next door and the casual visitor begins to wonder not only what makes the dapper new chief magistrate run but what keeps him running at frantic whirling-dervish speed.

In the office, desks are packed cheek-by-jowl, typists clatter at a steady stream of mortgages, agreements for sale or land transfers; the walls stand thickly festooned with framed press clippings, photographs or certificates proclaiming past activities of Frank Ney; and over all the hub-bub and coming and going a pert secretary solemnly intones incoming telephone calls over a booming public address system.

★

In the coffee shop, where a brief attempt is made to excape the go-go-go and go-again pace, the narrow plywood booth quickly becomes an office extension.

"This $20,000 cash?" asks the mayor. "Try and get it up a little higher. Looks as though you have a deal. Give me two hours for a final decision. Looks good though."

The salesman is followed by a book-match representative who wants to know what message is required on the new order.

Even in the inner sanctum of Mayor Ney's private office, a spartan place with a minimum of furniture, the ring of the telephone or the knock on the door is constant.

This is Frank Ney in his natural habitat, surrounded by bustle and talking staccato about himself, his city, the economic future of Nanaimo, the growth of retail business and the land development business.

He is equally loquacious on either subject.

"People tell me I'm egotistical," he grins. "Well I am. I figure if anyone wants to know anything about me I'm the best person to tell them."

But he can be a confusing man.

His hard-headed business approach has already garnered him a more than substantial position in Upper Island circles. His cornball gimmicks, trotted out like rejected jokes from a grade B TV comedy show, have earned him a solid spot in the hearts of those who prefer corn to cold-tack.

In two hours he mixes solid thinking with so much mish-mash that at times the interviewer isn't sure whether the Nanaimo election was run in bathtubs or whether Mayor Ney won because he can shoot peas further than anyone else in the city.

★

And, once in a while, just to keep the interviewer honest, he tosses out questions of his own.

"Would the mayor of Victoria accept a pea-shotting challenge?"

"No, I don't think he would."

"How about cricket? Would he accept a challenge to a cricket match this summer?"

"He might go for cricket, but I doubt it."

"What about city hall? Would they accept a cricket match challenge? We've got to get something going between Victoria and Nanaimo."

"City Hall might accept your challenge, I don't know—but your worship I was asking you about how you intended to handle the pressure groups you are bound to run into from time to time."

The answer is fast, concise.

"No problems with pressure groups. That sort of stuff has already started. I just listen to them, tell them they have a good point and suggest we call in the press so that the public can know what they're saying and what they're threatening. Very effective so far. They just back off."

There's a brief pause while the mayor handles another telephone call, a pause for the reporter to gear himself for the next question and launch it Ney-ward before the monologue resumes.

"Is it true that your entry into civic politics is actually a Social Credit party bid to win the Nanaimo legislative seat they haven't held since Earl Westwood was defeated?" (Westwood went into the legislature via the Nanaimo mayoralty route.)

"No, definitely not. There is no room at city hall for party politics of any kind. I think my pre-election campaign established my thinking on that. My four-man campaign committee was comprised of a prominent member of the NDP, one from the Liberals, a Conservative and a member of Social Credit.

"As for the future, who knows? Right now I'm too excited about municipal government to think about anything else.

"I have a job for the next two years, a big job. I'm going to dedicate myself to being a damn good mayor."

What does Mayor Ney think about rising education costs?

★

"Unavoidable for the most part. With this tremendous mass of young people coming up we have to think big about education—and then think even bigger. We can't hold back on this one because youth can't wait for us."

Personally Mayor Ney does have to think big about education. He has 11 children, the oldest 13. One of the 11 is adopted.

What about the business future? Some forecasts on 1968 have been gloomy.

"I have complete confidence. The upswing may not be as heavy during the next six months, but the economy will continue to improve. It will still increase out here in the west. I have never believed that the economy of Vancouver Island was influenced much by Detroit.

"I think high interest rates will stay with us and that inflation will continue at a levelled off rate. But I also think that private capital will seek out and find places to invest. And private capital, I know, is looking for places with enthusiasm that's why the one thing I'm going to give Nanaimo above all else is enthusiasm."

There was one last series of questions for the interviewer from the interviewed.

"How did you find Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan?"

"Fine, he too is promotion-conscious. He told me to tell you that if you will agree to wear a sailor-boy suit he'll do the same and challenge you in your February pea-shooting contest."

"Great, that's the spirit we need. Tell him the challenge is accepted. By the way, did I tell you that retail space in Nanaimo increased by one third last year and that the retail product was $38 million, will soon hit $48 million and will be close to $70 million by 1970.

"The growth rate in this area is nothing short of fantastic.

"By the way, here's a colored photograph of my family and two buccaneer hats. You're now a member. We've just got to stay enthusiastic.

"With a little teamwork and co-operation the future of this Island will be absolutely incredible. This is the jewel of the west. Just fantastic."

And so is Mayor Frank Ney.

TOYOTA COROLLA

"The Cleanest Economy Car Ever to Come From the Other Side of Any Ocean!!"

Who wants an economy car that won't get out of its own way and is left behind on hills? The TOYOTA COROLLA has more power, a higher top speed and better acceleration than any other car in the 1100 cc class. And it still gets better than 40 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

NEW DATSUN FOR 1968

The "more-for-your-money car."

If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h. has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream, and that he bought it from us for only $2025, believe him. It's the DATSUN 1600, the "more for your money car" at

NEW EXCLUSIVE
LOVELY SETTING

I am proud to have the exclusive privilege of offering this impressive, brand new home, which only awaits the touch of a discerning owner to assume a mantle of tradition, comfort and security — a lifetime home in which to raise a family. The exterior features high gabled roof, exposed beams, leaded windows and wattled plaster in traditional tudor style with gabled sheltered entrance and the home is set on a large lot, in a new area with paved roads, curbs and street lighting, 15 minutes from town. Lawns are to be laid in the spring. The interior gladdens the eye immediately. The generously proportioned entrance hall, which effectively displays an open staircase and massive beam construction, is centrally placed with L.R off to the left and kitchen and family rooms via enclosed hall to right. The living room has the most delightful recessed fireplace with twin settees and twin embrasure windows and a perfect example of Tudor beamed ceilings (load bearing). The separate dining room, also with beamed ceiling leads to a modern electric kitchen with extra counter space and built-in dishwasher. Hall, living room and dining room have dark oak Parquet floors. Off the kitchen is a most attractive large family room with sliding doors to patio and with a 2-pce vanity bathroom and a separate utility room adjoining.
Upstairs, we have four large bedrooms and a double vanity bathroom. The master bedroom, which is arranged for maximum privacy, has a full 4-pce bathroom en-suite and twin walk-in lighted closets. As a bonus there is provision for two more bedrooms or multi-purpose rooms on this floor. The home abounds with evidence of quality, just a few samples of which are: tasteful but expensive electrical fittings and hardware, superlative tapestried plaster, antique finished doors, beautiful oak floors and a layout planned for the maximum of convenience and interest. There is much more to absorb and appreciate. At the asking price of $47,900 this home will rapidly appreciate in value. Phone

BUT the owner has spent money where it doesn't show — rewiring, copper piping, OOM furnace — AND the price of this DUPLEX is less than the price of most any old house that you can buy on today's market. With substantial down-payment — ONLY $10,900! Call Don Bacon, 385-2458 anytime.

(2) — 627 Belton Street (who wants to live in Victoria West anyway). This one has a smart appearance. Striking new stucco job. Also rewired, copper piping, OOM heat. One apartment is BIG 3-bdrm. home. Needs redecorating job. Smaller apartment REALLY NICE. Good sound property. If you need a 3-bedroom home AND some income to take care of the lions' share of the mortgage payments, and if you have the patience to sit down with us to the necessary paper work that goes with a C.M.H.C. deal and can otherwise qualify, we can get you in with $1200 cash. Price $15,000. Call Don Bacon, 385-2458.

Gestapo Tactics Claim by Indians

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Indian leader charged the Indian affairs department with consistently using "Gestapo tactics" by keeping files on Indians who spoke out against department operations or personnel.

Omer Peters, president of the Union of Ontario Indians which represents 50,000 Indians, said in an interview that Indian leaders who entered the civil service often become silent over their problems.

He said the department had used Indians' silence to indicate agreement on policies.

Mr. Peters and Wilmer Nadjiwan, vice-president of the union, said the 15-member all-Indian advisory council of the department has been used as a tool and as "built-in self-protection" by Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing.

"If you've got the guts to stand up and talk you put yourself in the position where you'll be made to look like only the joker of the reserve," Mr. Naadjiwan said. "You don't want to come to the point where you can't talk to the government."

The two Indians said that Mr. Laing's department often says it has Indian backing for programs by pointing to the council's acceptance of them, but in fact the council is often against implemented programs.

KEPT QUIET

"Indians have kept quiet about their dissatisfaction because they did not want to hurt programs that might be under development, but now we feel the department has just used us," Mr. Nadjiwan said.

They said problems between the government and Canadian Indians will not be solved until Mr. Laing is relieved of most of his responsibility.

Indians would have to take an active role in a proposed Indian development corporation, coordinating regionally the work of federal and provincial agencies.

The corporation, called for in a brief by the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, would strip the Indian affairs branch of most powers but keep it as the safeguard of Indian lands and treaty rights.

Conviction In Test Case

MONCTON, N.B. (UPI) — A 65-year-old Micmac Indian from the Big Cove Reserve, Martin Francis, was found guilty Monday of illegal fishing in a judgment handed down by Judge E. T. Richard.

The Micmac Indians regarded the illegal fishing charge as a test case. They claim their rights to fish and hunt year-round are accorded them by ancient treaties.

Defence Counsel R. D. Mitton, QC, of Moncton, said he would decide upon an appeal to the New Brunswick Supreme Court after further study of the judgment.

Levying a $10 fine against Mr. Francis, Judge Richard said the Indians must conform with the law or face the possibility of imprisonment in default of fine and costs.

The federal government has announced it will pay the cost of the Micmac's defence.

Trial Moved Because Of Bias

WHITESBURG, Ky. (UPI) — The trial of Hobart Ison, charged with the fatal shooting of Canadian film producer, Hugh O'Connor, will be moved to Harlan, Ky., because of a prosecution contention that public opinion favored the defendant.

The change of venue was granted Tuesday after the court was unable to seat a jury. In two days, 88 veniremen were rejected after they admitted they had formed an opinion about Ison's guilt or innocence.

Prosecutor Emmett Fields said it was common talk in the area that the producer should have been killed and that Ison should not be convicted. Fields said several persons had urged him not to prosecute.

O'Connor, 46, of Montreal, was killed Sept. 20 while he and a three-man camera crew were attempting to film houses owned by Ison as part of a documentary film on life in the United States.

Police said Ison, a 69-year-old retired sawmill operator, ordered the crew off his property and then opened fire with a pistol while they were packing equipment. O'Connor was hit in the chest.

Vocational Classes Urged In High Schools

A suggestion that vocational courses be given in existing high schools was made on Tuesday by John Bartanus, chairman of the Sooke School Board.

He told a board meeting that schools could offer vocational courses pending the construction of a vocational school in the Greater Victoria district.

The question will be discussed further at a four-board meeting at Glen Lake School Thursday at 8 p.m.

Representatives from the four lower Vancouver Island school boards—Sooke, Saanich, Victoria and Gulf Islands—will be present.

Trustee Fred Willway said the proposed government's vocational school seems "to be a long, long way in the distance."

"We have students who are graduating in courses leading up to vocational training, and anything we could afford to offer them would be better than leaving them stranded," he said.

Sumatrans Starving

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A severe rice shortage in South Sumatra has left people dying from starvation or living off wild fruits and berries, the Indonesian news agency Antara reported Wednesday.

Big Recessions 'Highly Unlikely'

OTTAWA (CP) — The sheer size of government spending makes future major recessions "highly unlikely" in North America, economist Derek White has concluded in a paper for the Economic Council of Canada.

He does not rule out trouble from an international crisis in trade or from a natural catastrophe like widespread drought.

But he doubts that the economy of either the United States or Canada will be permitted to generate a big slump on its own.

The study shows that declining investment can push an economic pause into a serious recession, but it also records how the shape of investment has changed by the growth of government.

For example, in the 1920s, non-government investment in the U.S. was twice the value of government expenditures on goods and services. Thirty years later it had fallen to four-fifths of government spending.

In the same period in Canada, non-government investment declined from double government spending to one-fourth more.

Smoothly-growing government outlays are stable forces working against such volatile items as inventory changes and spending on machinery and equipment.

White emphasizes the potential influence of long-term planning in construction outlays by governments and their agencies.

The manufacturing and mining sectors, where programs may change dramatically from year to year, accounted for only about 20 per cent of all non-residential construction.

The study also discusses the potential of such economic stabilizers as business tax incentives, transfer payments, income and corporation tax cuts and monetary policy.

But it warns that their potential has not been applied effectively to offset harmful economic fluctuations in the past. "Formidable obstacles" lie in the way of co-ordinating federal, provincial and municipal expenditures to flatten out the business cycle.

The study questions stronger government spending at times when the private sector is growing at its potential rate. In these circumstances, problems of inflation are being ignored.

Professionals Amaze Wardill

NANAIMO — Magistrate Stan Wardill said here Tuesday he is "amazed" at the number of professional drivers who get into trouble with the police.

He fined taxi driver Jack Knighton, 23, of Cedar $250 and stopped him driving for three months on a charge of impaired driving.

Man Wounded

The wound was self-inflicted accidentally with a .22 calibre rifle at his home on the Quamichan Reserve, RCMP said.

Thomson Favors 'Jungle Law' In Economics

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The British government has gone overboard on social services and made it too easy for the people to lean on the government, Lord Thomson said Tuesday.

He said people in Britain are living beyond their means and are not producing enough to support the social services which, he suggested, shoud be cut.

Lord Thomson was speaking to a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs just before he officially opened the new $300,000 building of The Packet and Times.

"People should look after themselves," he said. "It's called the law of the jungle, but is really the law of life."

Lord Thomson said Britain no longer is a world power, but keeps acting like one. He said British people must try to accustom themselves to a lower standard of living for a while.

He also said it does not make sense to have nine national newspapers in Britain.

"The country can't maintain them," he said.

LOSING ON PAPER

He said he will lose $4,000,000 this year on the Times of London, but he considers it an investment.

Lord Thomson said his company is going to enter new fields such as the packaged-tour travel business. He believed, however, that newspapers have a great future.

After his speech, he pressed a button to start The Packet and Times' twin presses rolling. Premier Robarts and other provincial and local dignitaries attended the ceremony.

The Packet and Times, which celebrated its 100th birthday last May, moved to the new building last October.

'To Early' To Decide Ship's Fate

GOLD RIVER — The owners of the sunken Dutch freighter Schiedyk said Tuesday it will be several days before they will decide the fate of the vessel which went down off Bligh Island on the west coast of Vancouver Island Thursday.

Captain Fritz Horn of Rotterdam, a senior official of Holland-America Lines, said in an interview it is too early now to determine what will be done with the 9,600-ton ship and its cargo of pulp and grain.

Captain Horn said he will remain in the area of the sinking for a few days to examine the ship. Assisting him is John Hellendoorn of the Salvage Association of London, representing the insurers, Lloyds, and officials of Island Tug and Barge Ltd. of Victoria.

Captain Horn would not discuss salvage possibilities.

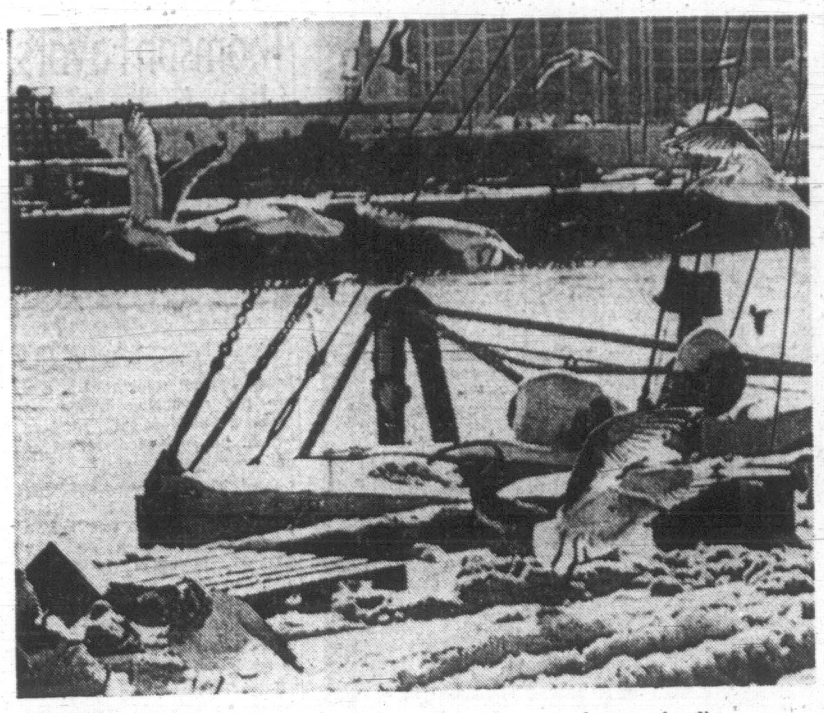

"I can't tell you anything about it. It's too early," he said.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Terry Livingston, age 13, of Nashville, Tennessee, for his question:

What is meant by the K energy level?

Our first concept of the world of atoms is concerned with size. The mind needs time to grasp its submicroscopic scale. But this picture is a bare skeleton until we enliven it with the concept of energy. The K energy level is but one of the disciplined forces within the busy atom.

A sizable atom, such as calcium, has four energy levels — K and L, M and N. Larger atoms have more energy levels, while smaller ones may have only one or two. But in all atomic elements, K is the ground level of lowest energy. This type of energy is not the same as the nuclear force in the core of the minuscule atom. It is a property of the shells of electrons that orbit the atomic nucleus. Of course, since the atom is an orderly system of particles and interrelated energies, the K and other energy levels are associated with the dynamic energy of the nucleus and affected by it.

An electron, of course, is a particle of matter bearing one unit of negative electricity. Each atomic element has its quota of orbiting electrons and every corner of the universe has stray unattracted electrons. Each of these negative particles has the same size and mass as all the others. Its negative charge is opposite and precisely equal to the positive charge of a proton in the atomic nucleus.

A normal atom is electrically neutral because the number of its positive protons equals the number of its negative electrons.

The atom has been compared to a miniature solar system, with a nuclear sun and planetary electrons. Modern physicists accept only part of this picture. For one thing, electrons do not trace orbits on a neat plane more or less level with their solar equator. Their paths swoop this way and that around the surface of invisible spheres.

Emits Energy

Electrons orbit at set distances from the nucleus and a spherical shell has room for more than one of them. Scientists name these electron shells with letters, beginning with K as the inside shell. The orderly structure of the atom dictates a set number of electrons for each shell. The lowest K level can hold one or two electrons—but no more. The larger L level outside it is completely filled with eight. The N level of a larger atom can hold up to 32 swirling electrons.

Energy from the central nucleus acts as a binding forces on the swarming electrons, somewhat as the sun's gravity holds the planets in their places. The K level, being closest, feels the strongest pull. this detracts from the whirling freedom of the energetic electrons. The K sphere is the closest of the electron shells and has the lowest energy level.

This complicated concept explains why and how atoms with incomplete outer shells combine with suitable partners to form molecules. It also led to the quantum theory. An electron can get an extra jolt of energy from outside the atom. It may use it to hop outward for a brief spin in the next shell. When it drops back, it emits a measurable quantum unit of light energy. A drop back of two shells yields two quanta. These whole quantum numbers suggest the existence of unified packages of light energy called photons.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to John Campbell, age 10, of Staten Island, New York, for his question:

Which was the first breed of dog?

Cave dwelling hunters had half-tamed hunting dogs as long ago as 20,000 years. But these hardy fellows were of no special breed. The ancient Egyptians seem to be the first people to think of selecting certain dogs and breeding them for a special purpose. Around 10,000 years ago, they were using a greyhound type dog for hunting fleet-footed antelope. This was, of course, before the dawn of history and we are not sure whether this antelope-dog can be rated as a definite breed.

However, about 8,000 years ago, the saluki dog appeared in Egypt. He was indeed a special breed and his decendants are cherished desert-dwelling dogs to this day. The saluki is a graceful, greyhound-type dog standing 28 inches high and weighing as much as 60 pounds. His smooth coat is glamorized with long silken fringes on the legs and long silken hairs on the big, floppy ears. This descendant of the first breed of a dog is a beauty. In ancient times, his relatives were cherished in Persia and Arabia as antelope hunters, as status symbols and as trusted family pets.

YOUR HEALTH

No Need To Fear Enemas

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

For years I have marvelled at the horrors that many of my doctor-friends have over enemas. Some will never let a patient of theirs take an enema. I have tried hard to find out why they so fear and dislike the enemas that many of my patients much prefer to laxatives. But I never could get any logical explanation. Many of the physicians I questioned just said they much disliked the type of woman who had gotten the "enema habit." The way they talked, it sounded as if they thought that an enema habit was as devastating as a heroin habit.

Alvarez

Actually, I have seen many women who I thought were perhaps too greatly concerned when they missed a morning's bowel movement. Especially when they were eating very little, my impression was that they could safely have waited several days. I remember well a husky man who told me that during much of his life he had had a bowel movement once in 10 days, and I have known many women who could wait comfortably for a week. On the other hand, many highly sensitive people cannot go comfortably one day without a movement. By four in the afternoon, they can have abdominal pain and gas.

★ ★ ★

Then, there are the many people with a so-called mucous colitis—which is found with a normal large bowel that is just too sensitive for comfort, and too much under the influence of the person's stormy nervous system. There is many a sensitive woman like that who will fill up with gas if her bowel does not move every day; and hence I never blame her if she takes an enema when she becomes uncomfortable. I just talked to a woman who said that her bowel is so sensitive that she carries in her purse one of the little enema bulbs that is so easy to use.

★ ★ ★

The important point is that I cannot remember ever, in my half-century of busy practice, seeing anyone who was injured (so far as I could see) by taking enemas. As it happens, the other day I saw an old patient whom I attended first some 30 years ago when, because of severe emotional storms at home, she took usually one—and sometimes two — enemas a day. Today she is well past her three-score and ten, but still is young and attractive and healthy. Evidently, if for 30 years of more she had a decided "enema habit," it did her no harm.

Safeway ground beef is made to be the best in town, not the cheapest. The fresh morsels of beef which flow from our meat grinders are juicy, tender, and filled with flavor.

Naturally, we start with cubes of fine-quality beef. Then it's carefully ground. We keep the grinder blades razor-sharp so they cut the meat, keeping flavorful juices inside each tiny piece. Try it. We guarantee you'll like our ground beef.

'TERRIFYING' DECLARES DR. X

Pill-Happy Britons Big Problem

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — Old John is hale and hearty at 80 but he has a medicine cupboard stocked with seven kinds of free pills and a schedule calling for one every 15 minutes of his day.

Old John and several million other Britons who load up on prescriptions under the government's national health service are at the centre of a red-hot political controversy currently raging over whether the cabinet should put the brakes on the highly expensive habit.

The problem springs from the fact that free drugs cost the treasury close to £150,000,000 ($390,000,000) a year and this figure is steadily going up while the government is desperately trying to find ways of cutting spending to pull Britain out of her economic crisis.

It is generally agreed that a small prescription charge on patients would stem the avalanche of pills and restore a goodly sum to the treasury. But it would entail the government grasping a prickly nettle, alienating many parliamentary socialists to whom free health service is sacrosanct and a large section of pill-happy voters.

OLD JOHN LETTER

Among these undoubtedly would be Old John, whose case is recounted by a Dr. X, writing in The Sun newspaper. Dr. X is a retired Harley Street physician who has been filling in for national health service doctors and finds it "terrifying" how many Britons are on pills.

Old John, he notes, has a daily intake of antibiotics to combat infection in case he gets any, tranquillizers, hypotensives to reduce blood pressure, pills for swelling of the ankles and sleeping tablets.

"It seems clear to me," Dr. X writes, "that up to 80 per cent of the tablets prescribed nationally are of very doubtful necessity."

He suggests a prescription charge would not deter genuine patients and might reduce the drug bill by half.

Dr. David Kerr, Labor MP for Wandsworth and a general practitioner, took his own medical colleagues, rather than patients, to task. He said in a speech last weekend that the waste "flows out of the GP's fountain pen."

He was promptly jumped on by Dr. Wyndham Davies, a retired Royal Navy surgeon and former Conservative MP for Birmingham. Dr. Davies reported him to the British Medical Association for an investigation into the ethics of "running down his colleagues."

RECORDED VOICE HEARD IN COURT

Gruesome Details of Killings

By DON HARVEY

BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — A recorded account of the shooting of nine members of one family was heard Tuesday as the Crown completed its evidence in the murder trial of Victor Ernest Hoffman.

The recorded voice was identified by a police witness as that of the 21-year-old Hoffman, charged with non-capital murder in the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson of Shell Lake, Sask., found dead last Aug. 15.

Seven of their children were also slain but no charges were laid in their deaths.

Cpl. G. A. Gawthrop of the RCMP said Hoffman made the recording voluntarily.

It was made in the RCMP North Battleford subdivision headquarters the night of Aug. 19, shortly after Hoffman was picked up at the family farm 40 miles southeast of the Peterson farm.

Charged originally Aug. 21 with capital murder, Hoffman was charged with non-capital murder after Parliament last month changed the meaning of capital murder to mean only the slaying of a policeman or a prison guard on duty. Only capital murder carries the death penalty.

While the recording was played to the jury, Huffman sat with head bowed in the prisoner's box, occasionally taking a tranquillizing pill. Mr. Justice M. A. McPherson earlier ruled the recording and a written statement admissible as evidence.

The recording, similar to the statement read earlier to the jury by Sgt. G. W. Fraser, in charge of the general investigation section at RCMP North Battleford, told of events on Tuesday, Aug. 15.

"Before I went up to it my mind was absolutely away from hunting. I was thinking about spruce bushes . . . just bang, just like that, my mind went on to kill people. . ."

First to die was Mr. Peterson.

"He was just sitting there on the bed there and he said, 'Who is it?' He kept on saying that and, when he saw the gun, he jumped up on the bed and I shot him. He jumped off the bed and kept coming at me. He grabbed me right by the neck, here. He was trying to get me, but he was shot and I kept on shooting at him with the gun until the gun was empty, and I shot the last shell into him. He fell down. He finally hit the floor."

The .22-calibre repeater rifle was reloaded.

"I finished him off. Then I started slaughtering the girls."

Shot in the head at close range were Jean, 17, Mary, 14, Dorothy, 11, and Pearl, 8. No mention was made of shooting William, 6, and Colin, 2. The only survivor was Phyllis, 4, who was found in bed unharmed between the bodies of two sisters.

The recording said Phyllis was not shot because "She couldn't see me. She couldn't identify me. . . . She was sleeping on the bed. . ."

The children were not shot simultaneously. After shooting a few, a woman, Mrs. Peterson, was spotted through a window. The teller jumped through the open window.

"I went around the house . . . she saw me and she said, 'Don't murder me.' I shot her in the chin. She fell down and I shot her again."

Mrs. Peterson was carrying Larry, 18 months, clad only in a diaper.

FINISHES GIRLS

"I didn't shoot the baby yet, and I didn't want to shoot it. I went back in the house and finished off the rest of the girls. They were still screaming and they were making funny noises. They weren't dead yet. They didn't die. The bullet in the head just didn't kill them.

"I didn't want to shoot them anywhere else. I wanted to shoot them in the head because I could cut the heads off and take it with me. Then I'd have them bullets with me. But, since some of the bullets were going right through the head and out and hit the wall there was no sense cutting the heads off anyway because the ballistics would be on the bullets anyway."

Then the baby was shot.

"I went back out there at the last and finished it off. I didn't wanna shoot it. I hated myself for shooting it."

But the baby was shot in the head twice because "I didn't want it to suffer. Maybe nobody would find it for three or four days. It would starve."

The voice said he had not known the Petersons, any of them, or ever before been to Shell Lake.

THOUGHT OF SUICIDE

The voice on the tape said he drove home, contemplating suicide, and threw the empties behind the garage. Police later recovered them.

"I was real sick. I was just about sick enough to shoot myself for what I had done. I didn't know where to shoot myself where I would die quick. Because I saw the way they died—they died so hard—they didn't want to die. I don't even know where my heart is . . ."

JAVELIN

Javelin is here and all of a sudden, a lot of "animal cars" are looking pale by comparison. There are reasons.

Javelin's looks for one thing. Javelin was designed by the same young creative team that dreamed up our AMX showcar . . . and it looks it. Brand new. Long sloping snout, twin venturi grille, wild fastback, chopped rear deck. There's nothing like it.

Inside: standard vinyl buckets, carpeting, no-side-vent windows and flow-through ventilation plus more legroom, more headroom and a backseat that's a good 5 inches bigger. Javelin is a real 4-passenger sports/GT . . . none of that 2 + 2 jazz.

Personal touches—you bet. Order your Javelin as an SST and it comes with reclining buckets, wood-grain trim, sports steering wheel, mag discs. The works. Like more! Add that gutsy 343 CID V8, power disc brakes, 4-speed synchro, quick-ratio steering, heavy duty running gear. It comes as a "go" package—all wrapped up in a big bold rally stripe.

Now, for the final bit. The price. Model for model, Javelin is about $144 less than the leading "animal car." Which makes us wonder. Either we're charging too little, or everyone else is charging too much.

MUST SETTLE FOR 'BREAD AND BUTTER' MEDICINE

Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg, medical administrator of St. Joseph's Hospital, and Mrs. W. W. Rogers, president of the hospital's Ladies' Auxiliary, admire one of the new Vari-Hite beds which the hospital has been able to purchase through a donation of $5,000, made at Tuesday's meeting.

Describing present hospital services in Victoria as "crisis facilities," Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg told the Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital when it met for its annual meeting in the nurses' residence, Tuesday afternoon:

"We have no funds or facilities to do more than preventive medicine. We have to settle for bread and butter medicine and, although the time must come, at present we cannot afford such fancy dishes as transplant operations."

The hospital's administrator told the group that one of its main functions was to act as a link between the hospital and the community and asked its help in publicizing hospital needs. "When the last hospital referendum was defeated, the city's hospital services were put back years. We hope to have another referendum soon. We cannot afford another defeat."

Other speakers at the well-attended meeting were Dr. J. A. D. Thompson, assistant director (medical), Sister Mary Lucita, Sister Superior of the Sisters of St. Ann at the hospital, and Patrick B. Blewett, assistant director.

A highlight of the afternoon came when president Mrs. W. W. Rogers presented Dr. Van Tilburg with a $5,000 cheque as a donation toward the purchase of six motorized Vari-Hite beds.

In her report, Mrs. Rogers mentioned that other donations made this year had included $400 for a portable public address system, a $100 nurses' scholarship award, a $41.95 hair dryer for the maternity ward and $500 for basinettes.

Treasurer Mrs. Arthur Blair, reported receipts of $13,739.28, disbursements amounting to $9,773.61 and a bank balance of $9,760.25.

In addition, the group has $14,000 in bonds, earmarked to assist in the building of a new maternity wing.

Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, co-convener of the annual bazaar with Mrs. M. Adkisson, reported receipts of $5,212.59.

Mrs. R. Barraud, convener of mobile cart services, said that net proceeds had amounted to $741, an increase of $100 over last year's amount.

Mrs. Rogers was re-elected as president for a second term. Serving with her will be: First vice-president, Mrs. A. Cownden; second vice-president, Mrs. Norman Ware; secretary, Mrs. R. Kay; treasurer, Mrs. Blair; councillors, Mrs. B. G. Ryan, Mrs. J. D. Gillis and Mrs. J. Chadderton. Immediate past president is Mrs. Connie Baker.

Mrs. D. A. Gaudin reported on the "Pink Ladies," a group which has provided volunteers and toys for the children's ward for the past three years. The group has now become part of the auxiliary. Mrs. Gaudin was appointed chairman of this work for the coming year.

Other committee chairmen are Mrs. H. O'Neill, sick committee; Mrs. Barraud, mobile cart; Mrs. Norman Ware, membership; Sister Mary Malachy, baby shop, and Mrs. E. Michaux, publicity. The latter was also appointed convener for a bridge luncheon to be held this spring.

Mrs. Michaux also conducted the elections. Serving with her on the nominating committee were Mrs. E. Fellner, Mrs. A. Effa and Mrs. L. Barraud.

Other special guests at the meeting included Mrs. A. G. Simpson, acting director of nursing services; Mrs. G. Cuthbert, Sister Mary Ronalda, director of the hospital's school of nursing; Carl Hortie, the hospital's director of management engineering; Mrs. G. B. McKenzie, Fr. M. Costelloe, and representatives from the Women's Auxiliary to the Veterans' Hospital, Mrs. B. B. Bowen and Mrs. F. R. Roberts.

Hadassah to Meet in Montreal

Women from Israel, Europe, the United States and various parts of Canada will gather in Montreal on Sunday to celebrate the Hadassah-Wizo Organization of Canada's Golden Jubilee.

Among the delegates to attend the conference will be the Victoria chapter's delegate, Mrs. Ralph Barer, 2123 Sandowne Road. She is both past president and current secretary of the chapter.

She will be one of the 1,000 women expected to attend the four-day celebrations at the 22nd biennial convention of Hassadah to be held in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. "Sustain the Miracle," will be the theme of discussions which will focus on education.

Two years in the planning stages, this meeting will be addressed by world-renowned personalities, authors, educationalists, religious leaders and scientists who have been invited to participate.

Hadassah-Wizo has a long record in the humanitarian field of service. Inaugurated in 1917, it was founded by a handful of Toronto women who banded together to answer the plea for help which came from homeless and destitute mothers and children expelled from Palestine. As small groups began in various cities, Hadassah grew. Today, with a membership of 16,000 from coast to coast, it is the largest women's organization in Canada.

Throughout the years, the women of Hadassah-Wizo have established schools, settlements, medical services, cultural projects and scientific institutes, but their major concern has always been mothers and children. During the Hitlerian era refuge had to be found for thousands of homeless children. Hadassah placed its energies and resources behind the Youth Aliyah Campaign of Rescue and Rehabilitation. One hundred and thirty thousand children were thus brought to Israel and integrated into a new way of life.

During both world wars Hadassah-Wizo contributed to the women's organization pool of the Red Cross and the Victory Loan.

Hadassah-Wizo has, more recently, contributed to the celebrations of Canada's centennial. The National Organization presented the newly-published 18-volume English version of the Sancino Babylonian Talmud to 27 Canadian universities.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS,

SELF-CONTROL

I need your help on a special score—the art of being more feminine. I would like to improve myself but seem to lack confidence. I am more the aggressive type. I find myself losing my temper quickly. Can you give me some comments regarding self-control?—Pat K.

One self-help is to "play act." Envision the ladylike image of someone whom you admire very much. When an incident arises to set you off, force yourself to act in the same manner in which you think she would under similar circumstances. Don't break the spell. It may seem affected at the time but the image you perfect in your mind's eye may become the "real you."

Incidentally, should you ever need an SOS cure for hasty anger, try this before you explode:

Lie flat on the floor on your back. Close your eyes. Relax completely and breathe very deeply.

Try to fit a catnap into your schedule. If you don't allow yourself to become overtired, you'll be much less likely to go off the deep end.

WHITE AND WAVY

I love the advice you give teen-agers. Can you help me?

I am 67 years young. My hair is white, wavy and very dry. It flies away in all directions after washing. How can I tame it?—Mrs. Josephine S.

Try a mild white vinegar rinse (2 tbsp. vinegar to 1 c. water). Follow by a final rinse in cold water after washing. Let your hair dry completely, re-wet and set.

For dryness, rub a bit of pomade between your palms, run palms over the bristles of your brush and then use it to brush out your setting.

LEG-LEVELLER

1. How can I get rid of rough knees?
2. Is there some sort of exercise to straighten legs?
3. How can I make my legs look longer?—Nancy K.

1. For roughness, you'll find a brisk scrub with a loofah mitt during your bath very effective. The friction sloughs off flaky, dead skin. After bathing, rub your knees with baby oil or lotion.

2. Building healthy muscles frequently helps legs seem straighter. Lots of walking in low heels, swimming, tennis and especially ballet, can all improve muscle tone. Be sure to "toe out" slightly when you walk.

3. Wear your skirts on the short side. Try on shoes in front of the mirror for style and heel height which give the illusion of extra length from foot to knee.

POISED PERFORMANCE

I'm terribly nervous before a job interview. What can I do to calm my jangled nerves in the "eleventh hour"?—Carol H.

Here is a famous Yoga exercise that helps soothe away jitters. Stand with legs apart, hands in front of you, palms together in a "praying" position. Breathe out (through your mouth) in a long "blowing" breath as you lower hands until fingertips are pointing toward the floor. Then breathe in deeply (through your nose) and fling hands straight up toward the ceiling. Now let your whole body flop down limply, with head hanging down and hands dangling loosely near either side of your feet, breathing out (through the mouth to the count of 10) as you do so. Rise up slowly to a standing position and breathe normally. Try this just before "that" interview and you'll have the poise of an actress!

DEAR ABBY . . .

Girl Friday Hates 'Fringe Benefits'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced woman in my late thirties. I am secretary to a very successful, prominent family man who has a very fine reputation. He is always telling everyone what a wonderful wife he has, but you should see this bird operate behind closed doors.

I do receive an excellent salary, with many fringe benefits, but it seems that being mauled goes with the job. He simply cannot keep his hands off me. I have threatened to walk out if he doesn't cut that stuff out. He promises he will, but the next day he is right back, locking the office door, and starting the whole thing over again.

I know you will say walk out, but it's not that easy. I am the sole support of myself, two children, and an invalid mother. This job is five minutes from my home, no carfare, no lunches, and as I have said, the pay is wonderful. Now what?

MAULED

DEAR MAULED: Walk out, anyway. Your next job may not have as many fringe benefits, but neither will it require combat training.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the recent discussion in your column as to the propriety of dress or undress before one's young children, let me say that it is a mistake for adults to try to anticipate children's reactions concerning this. If parents are comfortable in a state of undress when a young child appears, it will very likely be accepted in a normal way by the child. If parents are uncomfortable and embarrassed, the child will react in the same manner. In support of this, I submit the following:

A father came home and found his six-year-old son staring at a picture in a popular men's magazine. The picture showed a curvaceous young woman, bare to the waist. The horrified father tried to be nonchalant, and asked the boy what he found so fascinating about the picture. The boy replied, "I'm looking at this lady here. Daddy, look she's lucky, she gets to go barefoot"

It took the father a full minute to realize that the "lady" was indeed barefoot.

"THE FATHER"

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to you because I know that millions of mothers read your column faithfully, and some of them need to know what's on my mind.

Why don't mothers teach their daughters how to do a washing? Today at the coin laundry I met a sweet, young girl. She asked me, a perfect stranger, to please help her with her laundry. She didn't have the slightest idea of how to go about it. She didn't know which fabrics to wash together and she was even going to put bleach in her colored wash!

This girl was 21 and married and seemed intelligent enough. She said she had never even had to help with the laundry at home. Then she moaned, "Gee, I miss the maid."

I am only 22 myself, but I sure felt like an experienced housekeeper today. I'm so glad my mother taught me how to wash.

P. K.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. D.: The principle is the same. A man who would steal an egg would steal a chicken. And a man who would steal a chicken would steal a chicken farm. If you have to watch him after you've warned him, can him.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Have Signs of Overweight Shouted the News to You?

It doesn't take a fortune teller or a psychoanalyst to tell a woman when she is overweight. A roll over the girdle, a protruding abdomen, bulging thighs, popping buttons and straining seams, not to mention a stubborn zipper, all shout the news to her. Any woman who has gained too many pounds is harassed by at least one or two of these conditions.

Lowman

Today, everyone knows that being overweight is a real threat to health and long life. We also know that it makes a woman look and feel years older than she is. Too many pounds can add an aura of middle age to even young women, and at middle age they make her appear even older.

As most of my readers know, I am now bringing to you my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short). If you have been following the series this week, you have already learned how to measure yourself and what your ideal weight is. Now, let me advise you about how often you should weigh and measure yourself. This is an important factor in maintaining your determination and enthusiasm.

Weigh regularly every day or only once a week. Do not weigh in a hit and miss fashion. I used to believe that it was discouraging to weigh more than once a week because several days may pass without any loss and then suddenly the scales will show that you have lost two to four pounds.

However, many of my readers have written me to say that they were never able to stick to a diet until they began plotting their progress on my BIP weight chart. On this you plot your weight every day and watch the weight line go up or down or remain the same. This visual impact is helpful to many women. You will have to decide which is better for you, but choose one or the other, every day, or only once a week.

You really should measure yourself only once every two weeks, but if you cannot wait that long, measure once a week.

I have not mentioned calories, but I am sure you know that they do count! I will talk with you about them tomorrow and also give you directions about how to spend the calories which are allowed on a reducing diet.

In the meantime, here are some more sample menus. I suggest that you cut these out and study them.

MENUS

Breakfast: Eight ounces of tomato juice; One poached egg on toast, season with a dab of butter or margarine and sprinkle a little grated cheese on top; Coffee with a teaspoon of sugar.

Luncheon: One lean, small hamburger patty, broiled; One-half cup carrots; One hard roll; One glass skim milk (8 oz.); One teaspoon butter or margarine may be used on vegetable and roll.

Dinner: Shrimp cocktail—eight medium shrimp and a tablespoon chili sauce with little lemon-juice; Medium serving of steak—cut fat off; Spinach or other greens, seasoned with lemon juice; One-half cup of ice cream.

TOTAL calories for the day—1215.

If you missed the first few lessons of this series and would like to have my "Bip Kit" which includes a booklet with complete directions, menus for 15 days with calories counted for you, a calorie chart, weight chart, champion exercises, and the Bip weight chart on which you can watch your weight line fall as your beauty line rises, send 25 cents, plus 15 cents for postage and handling, and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

New First Lady Is Not a Citizen

CANBERRA (UPI) — Australia's new first lady today said she will become a citizen if necessary. But Bettina Brown Gorton still thinks of Bangor, Me., as home.

"I'll take out Australian citizenship if someone wants me to but it doesn't seem to make much difference," said Mrs. Gorton, whose husband John won the prime ministership this week.

'I consider myself a de facto Australian. When I go to the U.S., I'm always happy to be back home," she said.

Back in Bangor, home was 30 Ohio St. She grew up there, the daughter of Arthur Brown who died while running a bank in Cuba. She attended Bangor high school and the University of Maine. Her brother Arthur is a mathematician with the "think" firm of A. D. Little. It was Europe that led her to Australia.

Attending the Sorbornne in Paris, she took a Spanish vacation in 1934. There she met John Gorton, a student at Oxford. They married five months later. She brought John home to see America and then they went to Australia.

Real Bristle Brushes For Beautiful Hair

By Penny Saver

I have decided that the new year will see a new Penny. When I tried on my "once a year" party dresses, I found that I had more bulges than ever before. And, one look in the mirror convinced me that my baggy eyes and sallow skin could use some work. I went to the doctor for a diet and exercise plan, and was reminded that "diet" came from the Latin word "day." Since this is the umpteenth plan he's given me, he knew my every pitfall. For encouragement I have started reading every beauty column I can find.

A while ago I noticed that someone had written in to one of these columns saying that she had been unable to find a natural bristle brush such as the one mentioned in the column. I should hate to think that a Victoria woman could have trouble with this or other "natural" products recommended so I checked on where such beauty aids may be found here.

The line of natural bristle brushes I found feature both the dark, untreated boar bristle and the lighter, softer bleached boar bristle. The backs and handles of these brushes are in a light colored wood. The brushes include the styling brush with a curved head and the flat-headed brush. The bleached bristle brushes are more expensive because of the extra work needed in treating the bristles, but they are softer and would be even softer for hair that splits easily. Thick hair requires a firmer bristle. A styling brush with the unbleached bristles is $4.95. The bleached bristles in a flat-headed brush cost $7.95. This line of brushes uses pure bristles only. If you find that these won't go through your hair because it is too thick, there is another line of brushes that mixes the synthetic bristles with the bleached boar bristle. These also have the wooden handle. A styling brush in this line is $3.95.

There are also nail brushes made with the bleached boar bristles. Like the hair brushes, these have wooden backs. A plain brush is 79 cents. There are brushes with one or two narrow rows of bristles set at an angle on the back. This model is $1.50 or $1.75.

For a brisk and luxurious rubdown why not use natural sponges and loofahs? The tough animal fibres last almost forever. A good-size natural sponge is $2.95. The less familiar loofah is a long, cucumber-shaped mass of cream-colored fibres with lots of air in between. The ones I saw were 79 cents each and flattened so that they are easier to hold and store. They are just the thing for out-of-reach places on your back.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where I shopped.

Ruffles, Bag and Sequins In Newest Men's Fashions

"It was a lovely outfit; I'd wear it," remarked a woman at a fashion preview Tuesday.

But the clothes were designed not for her or any other woman. They are the season's newest look for men.

The fashions ranged in price from $4,000 for a bright yellow knee-length knit jump suit suggested for patio wear to a $5,000 black dinner suit with bugle-beaded jacket and silk shirt and no tie.

A spokesman for the store said the fashions "may mark the return of men, like the males of the animal kingdom, to brilliant and colorful attire."

Ladybird Left Off List

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lynda Bird Johnson Robb, only five weeks ago a White House bride, now ranks as one of the world's best-dressed women but her mother has been dropped from the list.

Lynda Bird, the bride of Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, stands ninth on this year's international list of 12 best-dressed women. Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, first lady of the United States and fifth lady on last year's best-dressed list, was dropped from the new ratings.

The committee of fashion editors which made the selection did not explain the elimination of Mrs. Johnson, who made the list last year for the first time.

No. 1 in the fashion parade was Gloria Vanderbilt (Mrs. Wyatt Emory Cooper), who has placed somewhere on the annual list each year since 1962. She was third last year.

HEADS MARCH

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, has again accepted the role of provincial honorary chief marching mother, in support of the Mothers' March Campaign, to be held the first week of February. This year's objective is $250,000. Funds will be used to assist the British Columbia Rehabilitation Foundation's work with the disabled.

Lifts Faces Out Of Lines and Wrinkles

Most mothers, of any age, now can know the thrill of a 2nd Debut by letting an amazing discovery lift their faces out of the aging maze of lines and wrinkles at home the new easy way. It's the Wiesbaden Discovery called CEF 600 and 1200 double strength blended into the new skin lotion called 2nd Debut. Moisture is carried under the wrinkled skin layers to push up and out. Once again skin is smooth, soft and so much younger looking most mothers call it a 2nd Debut. Most drug and department stores feature 2nd Debut. Results are almost immediate.

REPAIRING SEA WALLS

No Help Indicated for Cordova Residents

Bids for federal aid covering storm damage to Cordova Bay waterfront properties last month are being pressed by Saanich, as yet without an indication of sympathy.

The provincial government is supporting applications from Saanich and West Vancouver for assistance in repairing sea walls and replacing land eroded by high seas and wind-driven waves a short time before Christmas.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis and Reeve Alec Forst, of West Vancouver, are working closely on the campaign to have federal emergency funds applied.

Reeve Curtis told Saanich council Monday the last approach was made by deputy provincial secretaryy L. J. Wallace on Thursday.

Deputy minister of municipal affairs J. E. Brown wrote to Saanich saying his minister, Dan Campbell, felt the appropriate means of dealing with the problem was for property owners to initiate local improvement projects and pay for them over 20 years.

Meanwhile, Saanich has had a petition from residents of Parker Avenue, hard hit by the storm, seeking municipal assistance following a land slide of their properties.

Residents of McKenzie Avenue petitioning against a local improvement project in connection with making the street and east-west route were told their bid had failed.

At least 50 per cent of the affected property owners, owning 50 per cent of the total property assessment, were required to defeat the project.

Of 91 owners, 51 protested, but their property qualification fell short, being only $54,630 of the total $169,070.

Tribute was paid with a moment of silence to the memory of Lance Whittaker, Saanich publisher and Oak Bay councillor who died last week.

HOME GARDEN

Early Start For Corms Essential

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

If we must delay planting these until temperatures and soil are perfect, the flowers are so late they are lost in the opulence of fall color.

Keen gardeners have a way out of this perplexity. A head start is gained by raising such treasures as Gloriosa superba (Climbing gloriosa-lily), Tigridia pavonia (Mexican Shell-flower), Acidanthera murielae (Abyssinian Sword-lily), in large pots, thus being able to put them out in June already well started into growth.

A cool place, down to 35 degrees F., is required, where the roots will not be growing prematurely.

Supplied with partially dried out compost and some sand, the gardener starts repotting now. The roots can be shaken free of the old soil, yet need not be separated singly. Several can go into six or seven inch pots.

Rough drainage at the bottom will ensure passage of excess water when the time comes to water the pots. Leave almost an inch of space at the top for watering.

Firm the soil by tapping the pots sharply on the bench. Stand the pots in a frost free place without watering them.

Find slightly warmer conditions for the pots from about early March. As soon as the green shoots appear begin to supply enough water to moisten the whole potful of roots.

An unheated sunroom or an unheated greenhouse would be ideal, for the plants will require plenty of strong light and sunshine once they begin to make top growth.

No Way to End Nigerian War?

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

LAGOS (AP) — The exhausting toll of Nigeria's six months of civil war has turned both sides toward talk of negotiations but they don't know how to start.

They have plenty of help. Pope Paul has appealed for peace in Nigeria and has sent a two-man delegation to West Africa to follow up his plea.

Four American civil rights leaders, partly to show they are as interested in Africa as they are in Vietnam, have suggested a visit to Nigeria to offer their counsel.

President William Tubman of Liberia, who withdrew a month ago from a much-postponed Organization of African Unity mission to Lagos, has suggested former Nigerian president Nhamdi Azikiwe take the lead in bringing the federal government and secessionist Biafra together for talks.

URGES PEACE TALKS

In a year-end message, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, 33, head of the federal military government, repeated several times the regime's willingness to negotiate with Biafran leaders "how to bring about peace and heal the wounds of the country."

Where he once called for the toppling of Biafran leader Lt.-Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, 34, Gowon urged "a body of men" to come out of Biafra and work for national reconciliation.

A commentary on Biafra radio welcomed the proposal of the visit of American Negro leaders. An offer last March by the same men, Dr. Martin Luther King, Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Whitney Young, Jr., of the Urban league and A. Philip Randolph of the AFL-CIO, was ignored for seven months by the Biafrans.

Diplomats who have travelled in Northern Nigeria say the weariness with war has driven such men as Col. Hassan Usman Katsina into willingness to discuss the end of it with Ojukwu. Katsina, former military governor of the North before it was split into six separate states, once boasted federal forces could march to the Biafran capital, Enugu, in a few hours. It took three months, and the federals still are fighting off secessionist forces in the city.

On the Biafran side, the secessionists' own emissaries have called the secession a "sham." Such men as Sir Louis Mbanefo have been seeking a way to start talks. Sir Louis is a former World Court judge.

STAND FIRM

Both sides have refused to budge publicly from these positions: the federals want an end to secession; the Biafrans say their sovereignty is not negotiable.

The Biafrans, predominantly of the Ibo tribe victimized in three outbreaks in the North in 1966, say they will fight because surrender means extermination. Ojukwu declared Biafra, the former Eastern Nigeria, independent May 30, and war started July 6.

Gowon has said fears of extermination are "a wicked lie." But thousands of Ibo civilians, mostly living in the federal Midwest state, have been killed. Other Ibos in Biafra have fled advancing federal troops.

PLEA FOR DEATH rather than life in prison was made by former deputy district attorney Jack Kirschke before a jury in Los Angeles Tuesday. He was convicted of murdering his wife and her alleged lover. Kirschke, 46, dismissed his lawyer in order to make his plea during the penalty phase of his trial. (AP Wirephoto.)

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in central court Tuesday for careless driving were:

Wilfred Rhodes, 1429 Vining, struck pole on Hillside Nov. 25, $35; Lloyd Thomas, 1334 Thurlow, involved in accident on Craigflower Nov. 18, $50; William Tytler, 3541 Richmond, rear-end collision on Fort, Nov. 17, $35; Clarence Ellis, 1657 Elm, rear-end collision on Hillside Nov. 23, $40; Rhoda Weber, 562 Dupplin, hit parked car on Johnson Street Nov. 25, $35.

INDIA RESTORES RIGHTS CURBED IN BORDER WAR

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — A state of emergency which has been in force since the Sino-Indian border war in 1962 was revoked today.

A presidential order lifted the emergency proclaimed Oct. 26, 1962, and restored to Indians the fundamental rights guaranteed to them under the constitution—which had been suspended.

The emergency was proclaimed when the Communist Chinese launched massive attacks on Indian Army positions in Ladakh and on the northeast frontier after several weeks of manoeuvring and minor skirmishes.

Nearly 800 persons held under the Defence of India rules, promulgated under the state of emergency, are being released.

But it was understood that some may be immediately arrested again under the Preventive Detention or the Unlawful Activities Prevention Acts.

Bahamas Seeking To Cut U.K. Ties

Pindling's proposals for a new constitution were set down in a memorandum sent to members of his cabinet and Progressive Liberal Party members of the Bahamian House of Assembly.

If included in a new constitution, the proposals would have the effect of relieving the colonial governor of authority over internal matters, putting the island country's Senate under the control of the PLP and giving Pindling's government the police powers now held by Britain.

The memo said "It is proposed that the governor become the Queen's representative and act solely as advised."

Pindling recommended in the note to PLP officials that foreign affairs and defence remain the responsibility of Britain. However, the memo said that in foreign affairs, there should be "prior consultation with the Bahamian government and that it be kept fully informed."

Pindling said earlier that he would seek a constitutional conference in London in March.

Bosphorus Bridge

ISTANBUL (UPI)—A $7 million bridge across the Bosphorus will be built before 1973 to link the continents of Europe and Asia, the Turkish works ministry announced Monday.

Group to Study Burnaby Merger With Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday gave Mayor Tom Campbell authority to set up a Vancouver committee to meet Burnaby representatives for a study of possible amalgamation.

The committee would be comprised of aldermen and civic officials.

He said his main reason for the recommendation was financial, but he also took into consideration the fact the Vancouver-Burnaby area is recognized across Canada as only Vancouver.

Meanwhile, the Burnaby Chamber of Commerce decided Tuesday to ask the Vancouver Board of Trade to join in a study of amalgamation of the two organizations.

Leadership Hopefuls Will Spend Plenty

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—A serious contender's bid for the Liberal leadership will cost plenty. As high as $250,000 or more, depending on how serious he is, and how much he can raise.

"You can spend up to $100,000 without blinking your eye," says an aide of one contender. "This is an expensive operation."

FINAL BILL

There's little doubt the no-blink figure is the absolute minimum for a serious campaign leading up to the April 4-6 leadership convention in Ottawa. The final bill is likely to be twice as much anyway.

The winner will succeed Lester Pearson as prime minister. With the stakes so high and the competition so fierce—there could be 10 in the race—the till has to be opened wide.

To fill the till, contenders are tapping friends and regular party contributors from the business community. Many donors will contribute to more than one candidate.

The money will pay for the growing number of full-time workers surrounding the chief contenders, even though they are not officially in the race yet. One unannounced candidate expects to have 15 on the payroll soon.

ROAD COST

"You win by the application of intelligent people to the problems of winning. And people cost money to hire, to put on the road and to house."

Serious contenders like Finance Minister Sharp and External Affairs Minister Martin have already lined up office space in downtown Ottawa to serve as campaign headquarters. That's another big cost item.

As the Conservative leadership convention proved in September, contenders will spend a small fortune wining and dining the delegates. There are hundreds of other wallet-slimming items associated with any massive project.

The scale of spending is expected to match that of the principal contenders for the Conservative leadership, eventually won by Robert Stanfield. Little will likely come from the candidate's pocketbook.

Guilty Of Assaulting Girl, 11

A man who pleaded guilty to assaulting an 11-year-old girl will be sentenced Jan. 16.

Police said at 3:30 p.m. Jan. 5 an 11-year-old girl was walking home from school along Millstream Rd.

They said Nelson parked at the roadside, got out as she walked by and began searching in the car trunk.

When she was just past the car, he pulled something down over her head and tried to get her into the car.

She was able to kick herself free and he drove off, but not before she had noticed part of his licence number.

Court was told that in January of 1967 Nelson was convicted of a similar assault on a 13-year-old girl.

Nine-Month Term

'BLACK REVOLUTION BEGAN HERE'

Powell Mobbed in Watts; Urged to Fight Together

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hundreds of Negroes mobbed Adam Clayton Powell and they roared back with cheers, whistles and applause when he urged them to "fight together."

Then Powell took a three-mile walk Tuesday through riot-scarred Watts, besieged by admirers and calling everywhere, "Keep the faith, baby."

Here from self-imposed exile in the Bahamas, Powell talks today at the University of California at Los Angeles, the first of 14 lectures at colleges and universities on what he calls the black revolution.

"I've come here," he said Tuesday, "to talk to my soul brothers and soul sisters. One day, history is going to record that the second civil war and the beginning of the black revolution was born here."

34 KILLED IN RIOT

Five days of fiery rioting in August, 1965, left 34 white and Negro dead and $40,000,000 property damage in the 46½-square-mile southside area including Watts.

Referring to his expulsion from Congress last March, Powell said:

"You see what they're trying to do to me? If they can do that to me"—he turned to a member of the crowd—"They can do it to you, John Jones."

A crowd chanted "We Want Powell!" An exuberant youth flung himself at him in a flying-tackle, embracing him, kissing him on the cheek and crying, "This is my brother!"

REGAN—'NICE ACTOR'

"No," Powell snapped. His opinion of California's Republican Governor Ronald Reagan? "A nice actor." Powell is a Democrat.

Powell paused on Watts' main business street, East 103rd, called "Charcoal Alley" after the rioting left lots vacant where business buildings were burned.

"I'd like everybody to be quiet for just a minute," he said. "I'd like to bow our heads —whether you believe in Allah, Yahweh or no God—in silent prayer in memory of our soul brothers and soul sisters who died here."

Momentarily there was quiet. Then Powell, driven in a hard top convertible that manoeuvred slowly through jammed traffic, was gone.

Mine Foes In Parks A Bother

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ralph C. Macdonald, president of the British Columbia and Yukon Chamber of Mines, said Tuesday one of the chamber's main concerns is agitation by certain groups who are against mines in provincial parks.

"Mines are relatively few and far between, whereas nearly the whole of this province abounds in natural beauty and areas available for recreational activity," he told the chamber's annual meeting.

Two other prime concerns of the chamber, he said, are the vulnerability of the industry to unfavorable legislation or other conditions."

Mr. Macdonald mentioned particularly the Carter taxation report and its proposals concerning the mining industry. He also expressed concern over what he called "increasing restrictions" imposed by the provincial government on prospecting on Crown timber lands.

'TOO ISOLATED IN SOUTH AFRICA'

Barnard Considering U.S. Job Offer

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard, who headed the South African team that performed the world's first human heart transplant, was reported today considering an offer to practise in the United States.

The London Evening Standard reported Dr. Barnard said in a telephone interview from Cape Town that he has had "quite a few" offers of jobs from the United States since the Dec. 3 heart transplant on Louis Washkansky. Jan. 2 Dr. Barnard's 30-member team made a second heart transplant on Dr. Philip Blaiberg.

"There is one particular one which I am interested in," Dr. Barnard said.

He did not elaborate beyond saying the offer was for himself and as many members of his medical team as he wanted to take along. But Dr. Barnard stressed that he was not actively trying to leave South Africa, the newspaper said.

"The trouble is," he said, "that out here you are a little isolated. For instance, if there is a problem that you want to discuss with other experts in your field you have to contact London or the United States."

REACTED TO CRITICISM

In Cape Town, Dr. Barnard reacted mildly to criticism from Dr. J. C. Callaghan of Edmonton, who said human heart transplants were premature and that Dr. Barnard had operated on 46 dogs without success.

"He is entitled to his opinion," said Dr. Barnard, "but I don't know what he bases it on."

A member of Dr. Barnard's team who asked that his name not be used said: "What does he mean by no success? Animals have lived for two years with transplanted hearts."

Two Soviet doctors also criticized Dr. Barnard's heart transplants as premature, while other Soviet doctors praised the surgeon.

Interviewed by the Moscow Moskovskaya Pravda, Dr. Yuri Lopukhin said Soviet doctors now have the skill to make heart transplants but have not tried any on humans because they have found no way of overcoming tissue incompatibility. Dr. Rem Petrov said thousands of transplants have failed in animals because of this difficulty and called the risk taken by Dr. Barnard "unjustified."

But Dr. Yosef Cherktov said Dr. Barnard's work was a "huge success" which "proved that the foreign heart can work as well as one's own."

And Dr. Yevgeny Zotkov said Dr. Barnard speeded up progress in organ transplant surgery and gave hope to millions of sick people.

Dr. Barnard disclosed that he was rejected for a London hospital post four months before the transplant.

The surgeon said an application he made last July for the post of consultant surgeon at the National Heart Hospital in London was turned down.

He said he cabled his application because he heard of the vacancy at the last minute.

A spokesman for the National Heart Hospital commented:

"We did receive a cable from Dr. Barnard, but it arrived only 10 minutes before the advisory committee on appointments was due to sit. The post had been advertised since June 24, and this was July 28. The cable ended, 'letter following,' but no letter has followed from Chris Barnard."

Questioned about this by the Evening Standard's Peter Fairley, Dr. Barnard said:

"I did not send a followup letter because I was told that my application had been unsuccessful and that the post had been filled. There seemed little point in sending a letter after that.

"I feel that if they had really wanted me they would have found a way. I have the feeling that they had already decided who the job should go to."

NO SIGNS OF INFECTION, REJECTION

'He's So Full of the Joys of Life'

By DAVID J. PAINE

CAPE TOWN (AP) — "He's full of beans and keeps telling me how wonderful he feels," says the wife of South Africa's second heart transplant patient, reported in excellent shape in his second week with a new heart.

Mrs. Philip Blaiberg visited her husband Tuesday at Groote Schuur Hospital for the third time since the operation Jan. 2.

"I'm allowed to stay as long as I like," said the wife of the 58-year-old retired dentist. "I don't want to tire him—he's so full of the joys of life.

Blaiberg hopes to quench his thirst with a beer shandy soon. His wife said she is getting some beer and lemonade for him.

Blaiberg sat up in bed to have breakfast and was able to feed himself completely unassisted for the first time since his new heart was grafted into his body eight days ago, she said.

RECEIVES DRUGS

The hospital reported Tuesday that Blaiberg still shows no signs of infection or of rejecting the heart taken from the body of Clive Haupt, 24, after Haupt died from brain hemorrhage. It said he is receiving drugs to combat the body's tendency to reject foreign tissue, but radiation treatment has not been necessary.

Three days after the operation, the head of the transplant team, Dr. Christiaan Barnard, said Blaiberg could go home in about three weeks if his condition stayed satisfactory and could resume normal activity within a few months.

A slight change in Blaiberg's electro-cardiograph on the second day suggested his body might be reacting adversely to to the transplanted heart but the symptoms disappeared within a day, Dr. Barnard said, without the heavy treatment given when Louis Washkansky, the first human to undergo a heart transplant, developed similar symptoms.

Washkansky died of pneumonia Dec. 21, 18 days after receiving the heart of a 25-year-old woman killed in an auto accident.

Now Blaiberg is able to sit on his bed and dangle his legs over the side. The hospital said his appetite is good and he is allowed to eat whatever he wants, within reason.

STICKS INSIDE

Bandage for Mouth Developed in U.S.

NEW YORK (WP) — An oral bandage that sticks tightly anywhere inside the mouth except on the tongue has been developed by medical researchers.

Doctors from three hospitals told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science last week that the bandage had been tried out on more than 6,000 patients without irritating a single mouth.

The tests ranged from patients who had had teeth removed, to patients with canker sores and serious cheek lesions and patients who had had diseased gum tissue removed.

The ingredients of the bandage were described as hydrophilic, which means that as they absorb moisture from the mouth they become progressively more adhesive. All ingredients of the bandage were said to be common food additives that can be swallowed and easily digested.

The new bandage in many cases does away with the need to stitch up mouth wounds, researchers said. Patients using the bandage were in no way required to stop eating and drinking while the bandage was in place.

The new bandage was described as being especially useful after a tooth extraction in protecting the oral socket from food, the actions of the tongue and saliva, and the many microbes and bacteria in the mouth.

"No other bandage is available," said the report of the veterans administration hospital in New York, "that will adhere to a moist surface and produce a tight seal over an oral wound."

Besides New York's VA hospital, the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and the Temple University Medical Centre in Philadelphia tested the bandage. Developed by the Squibb Institute for Medical Research, the new bandage is being marketed by E. R. Squibb and Sons, Inc.

Brothers Fined For Fighting

Brothers, who police say were in a fight on their front porch early Friday, were fined $25 each in central court Monday.

Police said the incident occured at 3:15 a.m. and the noise caused a neighbor to call police.

Cheat Claimed As $10,000 Lost in Game

BURNABY (CP) — Burnaby businessman Colin Ryan testified here he dropped $10,000 in a card game the Crown alleges was crooked.

Charged with cheating at cards in a game Oct. 9 are John Michael Kohut and Ronald Levi, both of Vancouver.

Ryan, owner of ABC Furniture and Appliances, said he stopped payment on cheques and refused to honor IOUs the following day when he examined a deck of cards used in the game and found them to be marked.

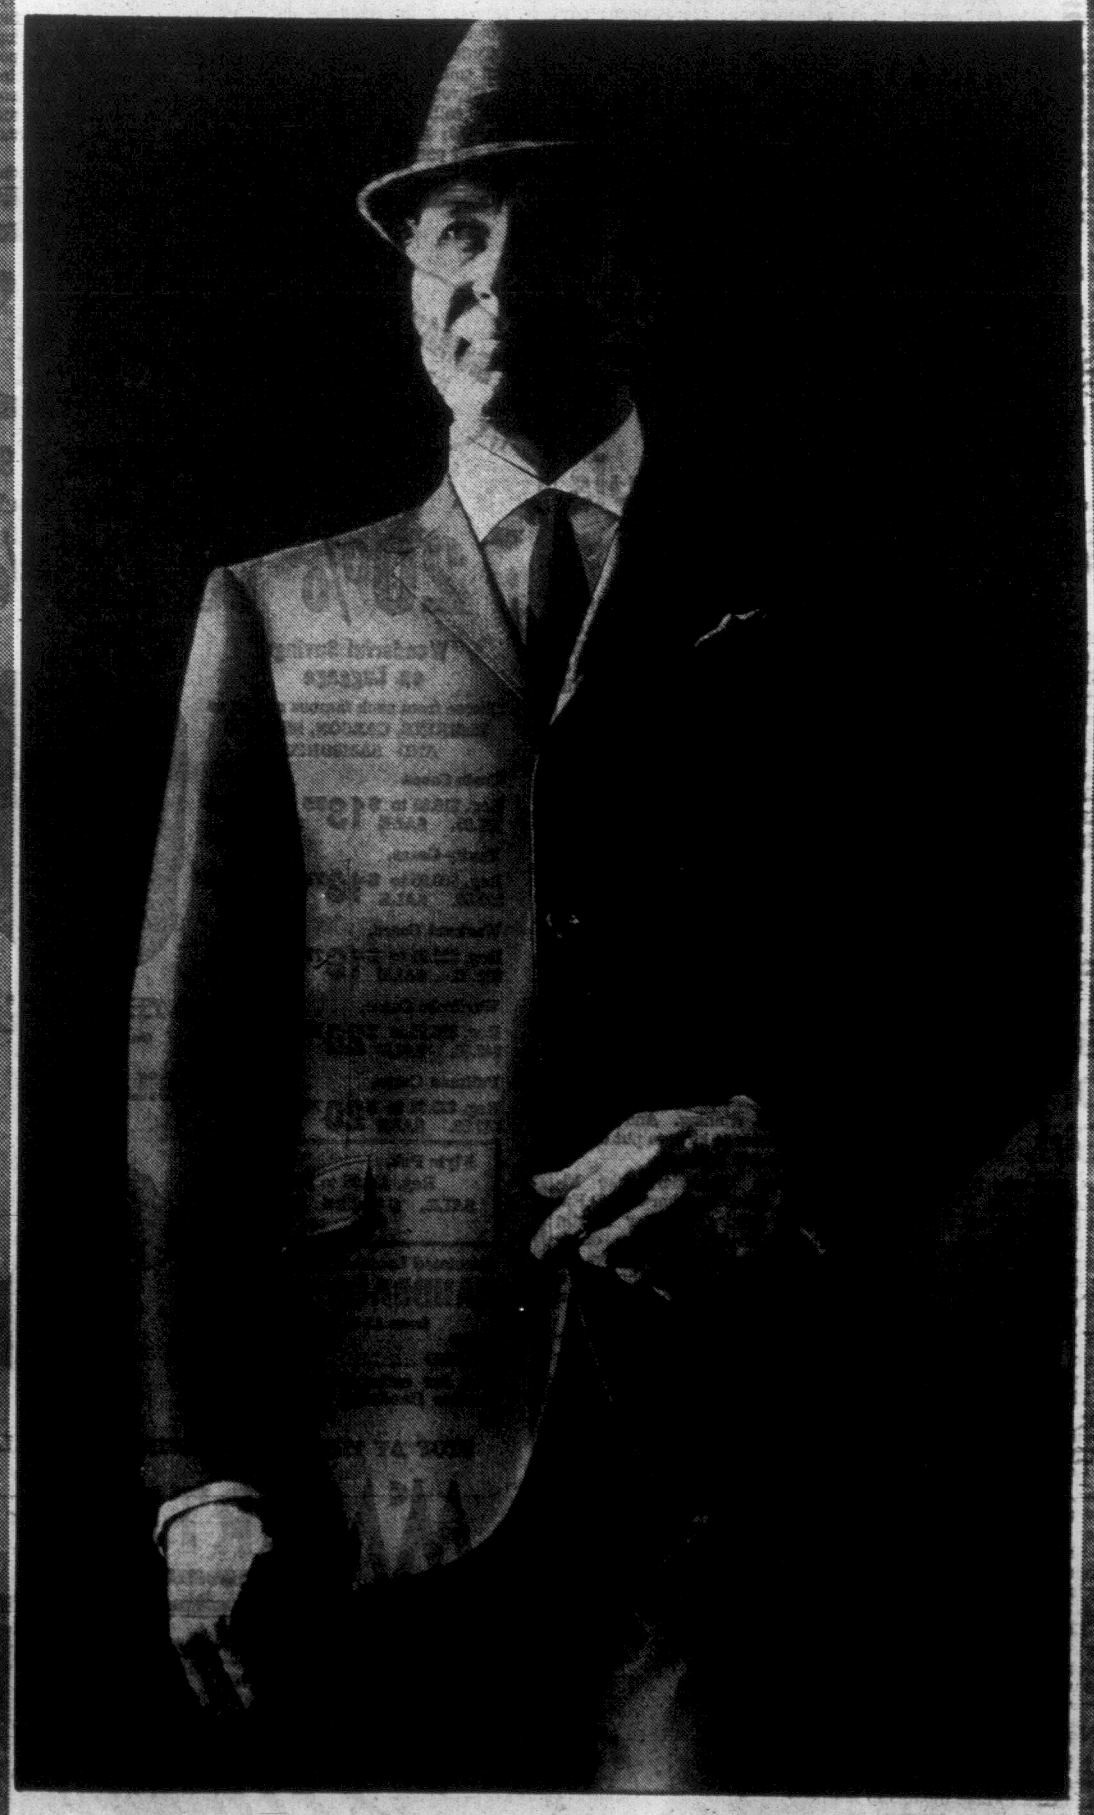

The trial continues March 15.

TOAST TO THE FUTURE

Will Mother Nature Halt B.C. Explosion?

By ELIZABETH FORBES

We were just comfortably settled around the dinner table when our host proposed a toast. It was to the year 2067 and the 50 million people prophesied for that time in British Columbia.

Forbes

You will remember this figure was foreseen by our premier in a letter placed in a time capsule buried New Year's Eve near the Confederation Garden Fountain.

* * *

Mr. Premier wrote to those citizens of 100 years hence: "if growth rates of this era are maintained, we can expect in your time a population of over 50,000,000 people in the province . . ."

To point up the comparison he also told them that the present population of British Columbia was something over 1,900,000.

Which means in round figures, that we'll need a gain of approximately 480,000 a year, our host suggested, if the prophecy is to come true.

Talk became general at this point as each person around the table tried to visualize a British Columbia top heavy with people.

Every foot of the Saanich Peninsula would be urbanized, a voice reminded us. The same would be true of the Fraser, the Okanagan and other similar valleys right up to the Alaska and Yukon borders.

* * *

Population would increase first around cities and towns. Then gradually it would encroach on open land until finally there would be little of pasture or forest left.

"It's possible . . . quite possible . . ." our host agreed. "That is . . . if . . . if . . ."

He hestitated. Looked down at the empty glass from which he had proposed the toast. Then continued quickly" . . . if something doesn't happen to cry halt to this tremendous expansion."

All-out war someone asked. Not necessarily, was the answer. There were natural causes almost as destructive as hydrogen bombs.

A heavy silence descended around the dinner table. It was broken by a woman's voice reminding us that in either event bombs or the wrath of Mother Nature—it would then be very unlikely that out time capsule would ever by unearthed. At least, not for centuries.

* * *

By that time it could be a completely new type of human who happened upon it, said the thoughtful one. Probing down into the earth, no doubt, to see what sort of person inhabited this planet hundreds of years before him.

"Something like the digs that go on in the Middle East now," his wife added, "and the tablets and scrolls that have been discovered over there."

Our thoughts immediately jumped to the fact that so far even the best scholars had been unable to decipher writings on some of those tablets and scrolls.

From that point it was an easy move to the thought that if the time capsule was not discovered for a century or so, the new type of human might speak and write a completely different kind of language. English could be dead and forgotten. And its deciphering key well hidden in the mists of time.

* * *

Under such circumstances Mr. Premier's letter—and other letters buried in the time capsule—would no doubt be turned over to the scholars of that far away day in an effort to translate, decipher and, if possible, to explain them.

By now we had talked our way in speculative manner, through the dinner. And we were ready for coffee around the living room fireplace.

When cups were filled our host had another toast to propose. It was to the time capsule.

With his own cup raised high, he said in all seriousness: "Let us hope it rests undisturbed for its appointed hundred years and that it completes its mission right on the dot—New Year's Eve, 2067."

PANHANDLE TO VOTE ON MERGER

A portion of View Royal panhandle property owners will vote soon on a proposed merger with Esquimalt municipality, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Tuesday.

He said date of the vote would be set in a few days when the department receives a formal petition for boundary extension from Esquimalt council.

The petition was backed last May by an estimated 70 per cent of residents in the affected area, between Gorge and Craigflower Roads north of the present municipal boundary to Admirals Road.

Postal Workers to Bargain On Country-Wide Basis

Canadian postal workers will in future have a direct voice in their working conditions and wages.

"Previously management always made the decisions, and workers did not participate in the decision-making process," said E. J. Bell, president of the 177-member Letter Carriers' Union in Victoria.

Mr. Bell said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (clerks and handlers) and the Letter Carriers' Union have been granted joint collective bargaining rights.

The two unions with a total membership of 23,000, have been granted certification by the public service staff relations board; but will retain their separate identities.

They will make their first submission to postal service officials in about three weeks' time.

"Now we can bargain and it will no longer be a unilateral process," Mr. Bell said. "Everybody will know where they stand, and procedure will be uniform from Victoria to Newfoundland.

"Previously there were various regulations governing the postal service, but interpretation of them varied from city to city. Now it will be standard throughout the country and a carrier's route will be the same distance whether it is in Victoria or Halifax."

G. F. Kenney, president of Victoria's 119-member postal workers' unit, said he hoped eventually to see the two unions merge into one.

"Then we would be one true union," he said.

DRIVERS KILL SELVES

About 18,000 British drivers, apart from their passengers, died in road accidents in 1965.

FIVE PER CENT FOR EVERYONE

Assessment notices, showing a flat five per cent increase in land and improvement values, have been mailed to all Saanich property owners.

The increase is the maximum permitted by provincial regulations and does not change the manner in which the tax load is distributed between homes and businesses.

Municipal assessor Jack Lindsay said property owners have until January 17 to register appeals to the municipal courts of revision.

Court of revision for School District 61 opens at Municipal Hall, February 1 and for School District 63 on January 31.

The assessment increase in itself does not indicate a tax increase. But setting of the millrate, when the budget is adopted in May is expected to reflect rising municipal costs. Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe has told council the tax rate will likely be required to raise an additional $560,000 this year.

He estimated a four-mill boost in the millrate would be required by the tentative budget calculations.

Sentence Suspended For Indecent Assult

A man who pleaded guilty to indecently assaulting a 17-year-old girl Dec. 28 was given a two year suspended sentence when he appeared in central court Tuesday.

Magistrate Ostler called the incident "a brutal indecent assault and a terrifying experience for the young woman."

"I have wrestled with the decision and I do not consider probation appropriate."

But the magistrate said the combination of a faultless previous character, an excellent record in the navy, a probation officer's recommendation for probation and crown assent to probation, he would grant the probation "with grave reservations."

Magistrate Ostler was critical of the fact the youthful accused spent so much of his time in a beer parlor.

"I find it astonishing that a young man of this age should be able to spend so much of his time in a public house in this area."

Heavy Trucks Barred From Two Freeways

Slow-moving vehicles such as heavy trucks have been barred from two lower mainland freeways by a cabinet order Tuesday.

Although not setting a minimum speed limit on the two major highways, the order prohibits "vehicles incapable of maintaining a minimum speed of 40 miles per hour on level road" from using them.

The order applies to the Deas Island Thruway from the Canada-U.S. border to the Oak Street bridge in Vancouver and to the Trans-Canada Highway from Cassiar Street in Vancouver to the junction with Highway No. 9, known as the Rosedale-Agassiz route.

A highway department official said the regulation was aimed at keeping heavy trucks off high-speed routes where there are alternative roads available.

Impaired Driver Fined, Suspended

DUNCAN — Herbert David Livingstone, Lake Cowichan, was fined $200 in court here Saturday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Livingstone also lost his driver's licence for 30 days.

At Lake Cowichan court Saturday local President Gilbert Remington was fined $200.

His licence was suspended for three months after he was convicted of careless driving.

The charge arose from a two-car collision near Youbou last November.

Dangerous Driver Pays $250 Fine

The driver of a car which struck a parked truck and spun into an oncoming car was fined $250 in central court Tuesday.

Bottle Drive

The Second Douglas Tillicum Cub and Scout Troop will hold a bottle drive Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon.

They need volunteers to help pick up collections of bottles and assist with despatching of them after the drive. Anyone wishing to offer assistance should call Mr. Court at 382-8317.

Cabinet Re-appoints Police Commissioners

Three Greater Victoria police commissioners were re-appointed for two-year terms by the provincial cabinet Tuesday. They were: J. G. Martin of Victoria, Thomas Vickers of Oak Bay, and Percy F. Warren of Central Saanich.

Death Blow For Tax Proposals

Provinces Blast Carter Report

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The final death blows to the Carter royal commission on taxation were administered here today by the provincial treasurers meeting with Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The federal-provincial finance ministers' conference opened with a discussion on the Carter proposals and one by one the provincial treasurers in attendance voiced their criticisms.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Pearson announced today proposals for reform of the tax system will not be presented to Parliament before April.

Mr. Pearson said these proposals would be a major item of parliamentary business before the next session of the House.

Both a white paper and the legislation would require considerable discussion, he said.

Provision for discussion would be made in the new session when a new prime minister will have taken office.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were particularly outspoken in their condemnation of many aspects of the Carter tax reform plans.

Provincial Treasurer Gurney Evans of Manitoba said his province has had a special study made on the impact on small businesses in Manitoba of the Carter proposals. It said it showed the report if implemented would be "disastrous" for the "small family store" and the small businesses of which there are many in the province.

The report if implemented would also have a detrimental effect of the formation and distribution of capital, he said. Its impact on the economy as a whole and on the social structure was not known. However, it was believed by Manitoba that it would have an adverse effect on mining and extraction industries.

"The argument is advanced by Carter that if money was discouraged from going into mining the capital would be

By JOHN MIKA

Opposition party leaders today charged Premier Bennett was letting British Columbia down by skipping a finance ministers' meeting in Ottawa today while extending his post-Christmas holiday in the United States sun.

Mr. Bennett had said he would be back at his desk this morning but it was learned he would stay on holiday until Monday.

Meanwhile, the federal-provincial meeting on the Carter Tax Commission report opened in Ottawa with only B.C. unrepresented, as the premier had decided earlier.

Both New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan and Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Mr. Bennett was failing his province as finance minister by boycotting the meeting.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, acting finance minister while Mr. Bennett is holidaying, defended the boycott on the grounds that too many federal-provincial meetings "tend to be

HEAVY ICE CAUSES PILEUP ON HIGHWAY

HOPE (CP)—A chain reaction pileup caused by heavy ice blocked the Hope-Princeton Highway in southwestern British Columbia for more than five hours this morning.

No one was injured in the mishaps, but bus passengers had to spend the night in Hope motels, and passengers from two other buses which were turned back by the barrier also had to stay overnight.

IS COLD A STATE OF MIND? This member of the so-called weaker sex seems to have the secret of keeping warm as she puts a shapely leg forward during Tuesday's snowfall in Toronto. The two men show how most residents dressed for weather—with cumbersome coats, hats and overshoes.

NO RELIEF UNTIL FRIDAY

Weather Retains Icy Grip

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bundled-up Canadians went to work today, protected against the cold weather and snow which held most of the country in its icy grip.

No relief was expected today in the Maritimes from the snow and frigid weather which has taken three lives in New Brunswick. The cold was expected to last until Friday.

Western Newfoundland, battered by blizzards in the last five days, was expected to gain relief, however, as the cold winds subsided.

At Corner Brook, Nfld., a mother and nine children fled barefoot from their home through waist-deep snow to sound a fire alarm 200 yards away. Their house burned to the ground.

ROADS BLOCKED

Plows struggled to open main highways in Prince Edward Island. Secondary roads were still clogged.

Halifax recorded six-below-zero, its coldest Jan. 8 in 70 years. A 90-year-record was broken at Montreal when the temperature dipped to 21 below Monday and 23 below Tuesday. Scores of schools were closed.

The morning Ontario weather forecast said sub-zero readings could be expected overnight and Thursday. The snow, general in Ontario Tuesday, ended before midnight in most places.

Plumbers thawing frozen pipes with acetelyne torches are thought to have caused a fire in Hotel-Dieu Hospital in St. Hyacinthe, Que., which forced evacuation of about 1,200 persons.

FOUR DEAD

Four children died in a house fire in West Lorne, Ont., Tuesday. Another fire at Oakville destroyed a two-family house and forced 21 persons, including 11 children into sub-zeroweather.

Records for overnight low temperatures on a Jan. 9 were set in the seven Ontario communities of Moosonee —46, Earlton —35, Trenton —24, Killaloe —38, Ottawa —26, Sarnia —4 and Kingston —26.

Hawk Junction, a railway hamlet 165 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Canada's coldest community Monday at 66 below, Tuesday reported a relatively balmy 10 below.

Clouds moved over Manitoba, which reported clear skies Tuesday.

Temperatures in Saskatchewan dipped to 15 below.

First Minister In Race

He will become the first federal cabinet minister to enter the race officially and the third candidate.

Swinging New Federalism Demands Grit Candidate

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Eric Kierans opened another tour early today, 10 hours after jumping into the national Liberal leadership contest with a demand for a swinging "new federalism."

The 53-year-old former Quebec revenue and health minister announced his candidacy for the prime ministership at a partly-televised press conference when he reported his resignation as president of the 100,000-member Quebec Liberal Federation.

The first nationally-known figure to enter the race, Mr. Kierans envisaged a new independence and dynamism in Canada whose French- and English-language citizens would be drawn closer together by constitutional changes.

The economist and former university professor gave two reasons why he decided to offer himself to the Ottawa April 4-6 Liberal convention which will pick a successor for Prime Minister Pearson:

"Because I am concerned with the speed of and demand for change sweeping the world, and Canada in particular. A federal state is a state in motion; it demands from its government continual adaptation and evolution."

He arranged an early departure today for Fredericton, Saint John and Moncton—where, incidentally, he started his business life as a flour salesman some 30 years ago.

He was scheduled to go to Charlottetown Thursday then to Halifax Friday and Saturday to attend a meeting of the Nova Scotia Liberal Federation and Ottawa Sunday. He will then go to Toronto and Winnipeg.

Mr. Kierans, who has never before taken part in federal politics, indicated he is willing to allow several federal ministers who are expected to enter the leadership race to take responsibility for federal policies.

Mr. Kierans served in two Quebec portfolios—revenue and health—in 1963-66, during Quebec's Quiet Revolution when experts of every kind were brought in by Mr. Lesage and his colleagues to cope with and encourage surging change. Mr. Kierans now proposes an infusion of similar new blood in Ottawa.

His priorities as prime minis-

'JACKIE TRIED FEMININE SEDUCTION'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has declared the United States tried "feminine seduction" to restore U.S.-Cambodian relations during the recent visit of Jacqueline Kennedy.

In a 50-minute French language news conference recorded in Phnom Penh Saturday and circulated here, Sihanouk said the U.S. presidential envoy, Chester Bowles, "is going to try to succeed where Mrs. Kennedy failed."

"But he will have no more success than Jackie," Sihanouk said, "and still less because Jackie is very seductive, being a woman, and the Cambodians are always sensitive to the beauty of Venus."

Avoid Cambodia Border

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk said today the United States has agreed to respect Cambodia's frontiers.

He told a press conference the American government promised to do everything possible to avoid violating the Cambodian border with Vietnam.

Addressing a press conference after a 90-minute meeting with a special envoy from President Johnson, U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles, Sihanouk said the U.S. will pass on to the Cambodian government any information it has on Vietnamese Communist infiltration "in order to allow Cambodia to carry out her duty as a neutral."

The prince said that when infiltrations are reported, he will send Cambodian armed forces to "invite the Viet Cong (guerrillas)—to leave Cambodian territory."

At the same time, he said, he will ask the International Control Commission for Cambodia —comprising Canada, India and Poland, to carry out a "minute inquiry," but he will not publicly denounce the Viet Cong.

He said the Americans do not want to use the right of pursuit of Viet Cong forces which seek sanctuary in Cambodia. "They are merely trying to help preserve Cambodia's neutrality."

Bowles arrived here Monday from New Delhi, where he is ambassador, to outline United States policy to Sihanouk.

Sihanouk said he would also welcome information "regarding all foreign infiltration, including that of CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) agents."

RELAXED, FRIENDLY

He said the atmosphere during the talks with Bowles were "relaxed and very friendly."

He described the results of the meeting as "positive." Both sides avoided "points which separate us," he added.

He said the U.S. understands the Cambodian position vis-a-vis the International Control Commission and its desire for the commission to fulfil its role to the maximum to prevent all foreign infiltration into the country.

"The Americans will be content with this," he added.

Sihanouk said he will meet Bowles again Thursday.

Brooklyn Team Loses Another

NE YORK (CP)—Louis Block, the world's fifth heart transplant recipient, died at 4:35 a.m. today at Maimondes Medical Centre in Brooklyn, where he had undergone surgery 10 hours earlier.

Block, married and the father of two sons, was the third of the world's five heart transplant patients to die—leaving two alive.

Block's death meant the second heart graft failure for Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, who Dec. 6 attempted the first heart transplant in the U.S. on an infant who died 6 hours after the operation.

ONLY CHANCE

The statement said:

"It is with a deep sense of regret that we must report the loss of our heart transplant patient. He was a brave and courageous man. . . .

"We feel that the major problem in this case was related to the pumping capacity of the transplanted heart and the poor condition of the lungs due to the patient's long-standing heart disease. . . ."

Meanwhile, preparations for another heart transplant operation were under way at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Oklahoma City, the Daily Oklahoman reported.

Block was reported in "reasonably satisfactory condition" shortly after the operation, but his name was placed on the critical list early today when doctors were said to be having difficulty maintaining his blood pressure.

Less than an hour after the marathon operation—it lasted eight hours, 20 minutes—Dr. Kantrowitz told more than 100 reporters: "We have had some problems."

HEART IS SMALL

The heart of the donor, Miss Helen Krouch of East Paterson, N.J., was "rather small—about half of the size we would have thought best," he said. She weighed less than 100 pounds, he said.

Because of this, the heart could not maintain the body's circulation by itself, Dr. Kantrowitz said, and an auxiliary pump was brought into use. The doctors thus performed two bold procedures in the same operation.

Dr. Kantrowitz described it as a balloon pump, a balloon inserted into the main artery which inflates and deflates, pulsed to the beat of the heart, to force blood through the heart and the rest of the body. It is attached to an exterior pump.

"We will use it as long as we have to," Dr. Kantrowitz said. The pump, a new device, has been used for as long as five days so far in other heart cases.

A balloon pump has been developed by Dr. Arthur Kantrow-

'Significant Improvement' At Stanford

Sustained by the steady beat of a housewife's heart, the retired steelworker was able to sit on the side of his bed several times during the night. His condition remained critical, however.

Kasperak, 54, was supported by nurses and remained inside a mechanical respirator while sitting up, according to a mid-morning medical bulletin issued by Stanford University.

"His blood pressure is normal, pulse 108, and he has no fever," the bulletin said. "Dialysis and artificial respiration are being decreaded to allow his kidneys and lungs to resume their full functions. His physicians are still concerned about his abnormal liver function.

The bulletin, the most optimistic on his condition since his operation, said "there has been significant improvement in Mr. Kasperak's condition although he is still on the ciritical list."

Students Strangled

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Three mentally retarded students in their 20s were found strangled, apparently by bedsheets, beside their bed, in a dormitory at the St. Louis state school and hospital today. St. Louis County police took four unidentified suspects into custody for questioning.

U.S. STEPS UP DRAFT TO MEET ARMY NEEDS

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. is greatly increasing conscription to provide replacements for the army.

Pentagon sources say the 39,000-man draft call announced for March is a sign of things to come this spring and summer—with monthly manpower requests of about 40,000 or more likely in April, May and June. Last year's draft in the same four-month period averaged only about 15,300 a month.

PUBLICITY TAKES UP EXTRA TIME

It's Hard Work Working for Nothing

LONDON (Reuters) — Five young secretaries who started a Back Britain campaign by working an unpaid extra 30 minutes a day have found the publicity taking up most of the extra time.

Offers for television interviews, marriage, blind dates, vacations in Spain, yachting trips and free weekends in a London hotel have poured into the office where they work in the south London suburb of Surbiton.

And they have to get up even earlier than they originally planned—so they can make up more carefully in case television cameras start shooting them on their way to work.

"We must be madly careful this doesn't turn into a stunt," said 16-year-old Carol White, second youngest of the quintet, who have turned down a flood of offers.

Television crews, reporters and officials from government and industry have lined up to interview them since their free work plan started a nationwide campaign aimed at inspiring a mass burst of unpaid work to help Britain out of its economic doldrums.

But there was no evidence of a mass response to the campaign, boosted by London newspapers, one of which issued rectangular badges printed with the Union Jack and the motto "I'm backing Britain."

The secretaries made their free work offer in response to a routine New Year's exhortation from their company, Colt Heating and Ventilation.

BULLS-EYE LANDING IN CRATER

'Wild Lunar Scene' Filmed by Surveyor

PASADENA, Calif. (CP) — The lunar exploration program today appeared to have taken a major step forward thanks to the successful near bulls-eye landing of the Surveyor VII on the moon.

Narrowly missing a dangerous rock, the spacecraft settled down gently on the moon Tuesday night and televised the wildest scene yet found by U.S. lunar probes.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here were pleased that the last of the scheduled, unmanned American lunar probes landed in terrain far different from areas in which four previous successful Surveyors landed.

Surveyor program manager Benjamin Milwitsky of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said:

"It is very clearly a different terrain. I think we'll be a major step up in our understanding of the moon from the information gathered by Surveyor VII."

WERE THE SAME

The three-legged craft, last of a $500,000,000 series which has already certified four equatorial sites as safe for astronaut landing, was on a purely scientific mission to the 15,000-foot crater Tycho near the south-central edge of the lunar disc.

Surveyor VII made an almost flat landing on a crater-picked, boulder-strewn plateau not far from a ragged ridge 18 miles north of Tycho's rim.

Between the craft and the rim was a desolate scene, reminiscent of the crater Copernicus photographed earlier by lunar orbiters.

Pictures televised shortly after touchdown showed a landscape littered with rocks ejected from miles deep when the 50-mile wide Tycho was formed by a meteor impact ages ago.

Surveyor VII, launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday, carries a small scoop to dig trenches as deep as 18 inches and a device to analyse lunar soil with radiation.

Arthur Mayse

One hundred and fifty years ago, a lady writer by the name of Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley chilled English spines with a novel titled "Frankenstein, or The Modern Prometheus". Her tale has for its principal characters a doctor and a remarkably troublesome monster which this rash experimenter creates from some handy corpses.

Since you have probably shivered over at least one film version of Mrs. Shelley's tale of trespass and retribution, I won't detail it here. Enough to suggest that one century's horror story may forecast another's reality.

We have come to the age of the transplant — retina, liver, kidney and heart, with who knows what to follow — and the near-godlike role of the surgeon is taking on a new dimension.

If you are able to assimilate change at a gulp, you will find no strangeness in the fact that you may at some later date be running on used parts.

But, even though I'm entirely willing to extend some other mortal's mileage or acquire his fuel pump when his own need for it is past, I'm still not fully oriented to this latest expansion of medical horizons.

Neither are quite a few other people I've discussed the matter with in the weeks since Dr. Christiaan Barnard and his Cape Town team achieved what may prove to be a successful heart transplant break-through.

Two friends felt that they needed more time to think about where, and to what, a perfected science of transplants might lead us. (I can't answer that one, and it's doubtful that even such pioneers as Dr. Barnard can, either!)

One woman declared flatly that no good could possibly come of man's attempts to encroach on territory better left to the Creator, and was obviously distressed by any mention of vital-organ replacement.

Most, though, were glad to get into the subject. Such reservations as they put forward were, as they freely admitted, more personal than logical.

Take, for instance, the man who, when asked if he would be willing to accept an ape's heart should his own ticker give out, replied with an emphatic "No!"

He then qualified his loud negative by explaining that he had nothing whatever against his fellow-primates, and that he would gladly yield up any or all components when he no longer could use them.

"I'm a pretty fair specimen," he said, "and I think they'd get some quality stuff. But I don't want to borrow from anyone else. It's just a feeling I have."

A good deal of feeling seems to enter into this business of transplants, and much of it centres on the ultimate question. Will they ever successfully shift the human brain?

And if this final borrowing should prove successful in some future perhaps less distant than we know, would the inheritor assume the memories, motivations and character traits of the deceased . . . if indeed, the donor could be regarded as dead?

He takes out a neat package numbered "711," and checks the data slip against the requirement sheet on his clipboard. . . .

Well, I'm by no means sure that I want to be No. 711, out of storage for another go-round, and suggest we turn to a subject less haunted by disturbing undertones.

Man's Face Cut In Pandora Crash

Police say John Aldrige, 1513 Bank Street, required hospital treatment after the car he was driving slammed into the rear of a car driven by Frank Konowalyk of Lake Cowichan.

Aldrige was treated and released.

MORE COMMERCE, LIGHT INDUSTRY, APARTMENTS

Quadra-McKenzie: Focal Point for Big Things

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Saanich Reporter

Expansion of commerce and light industry and introduction of apartments is envisaged in a Saanich planning report covering more than 250 acres in the Quadra-McKenzie area.

The report was presented to the municipal lands and planning committee Tuesday night by planner Tom Loney It was immediately tabled for study.

Mr. Loney said the proposals are "in line" with those which will be made on a wider basis when the municipality's "central corridor plan" is completed.

"The Quadra-McKenzie area is a very important focal point within the municipality. This fact is apparent to anyone who looks at a map," he said.

"What may be not as apparent, however, is the fact that with the extension of McKenzie Avenue to the east and west this intersection will be one of the busiest in the municipality and will become a focal point not only for the immediate neighborhoods surrounding it but in a sense for a much wider area within the municipality."

He emphasized that the plan "cannot be regarded as a rigid document.

"Future developments may require solutions which are presently unforeseen. Since many of the recommendations proposed involve the use of zoning it must be realized that the zoning may require eventual adjustment. The plan must be allowed to retain a certain amount of flexibility."

DETAILED PLAN

The report was prepared in an attempt to present a detailed plan for an area which has received growing attention.

"It has been difficult for municipal council to make decisions on many proposals which have been advanced without the benefit of a plan which attempts to set some limits to the various types of development and relates to the rest of the municipality," he said.

"One fairly reliable indication of development trends and pressures is the day-to-day discussions which this department carries on with representatives of business and industry who are looking for development sites.

"Interest in this area has been on a very rapid increase in the past few months and we feel that the recommendations made in this plan should receive a thorough consideration by council and a thorough presentation to the public.

"Implementation of the recommendations made are chiefly in the areas of zoning, subdivision control and servicing policy and are therefore within council's administrative control."

Regional sewers will probably mean an expansion of houses to the north and the possibility of apartments near the central area. This could happen in two to five years.

LOOSE GROUPING

Mr. Loney described Quadra-McKenzie as "a loose conglomeration" of shopping, business, service and light industrial uses. The major planning consideration was defining the limits of the central core and remaining non-residential land uses and make this relationship as sufficient and complete as possible.

He emphasized that "we are not dealing here with a complete neighborhood-community structure, but with an area which serves as the central focus to parts of four individual neighborhoods."

Traffic volumes and road capacities in major intersections show in all cases that capacities are "well above" peak-hour traffic. Increased traffic on re-built McKenzie "should be more than offset" by the increase in capacity.

EXPANDED ZONE

The proposed plan (see map) envisages an expanded commercial zone taking in the entire block bounded by McKenzie-Quadra-Reynolds-Borden with the light industrial zone on the west side of Quadra being expanded south to St. Peter's Road.

In discussing apartments, Mr. Loney's report noted this was examined at length in the Shelbourne Centre Plan. Recent apartment construction and zoning activity has been concentrated in the university area but "it must not, however, be assumed that all such development should be located in Gordon Head."

The Quadra-McKenzie plan says there is "no doubt that suitable sites for apartment development exist within this area. Apartment development must be provided with sewers and portions of the Quadra-McKenzie area therefore cannot be considered at the present time."

At the end of 1966 there were about 700 apartment units in Saanich and a projection of the number to be built by 1981 lies between 2,500 and 3,500.

Certain areas are indicated on the illustrated map as possible apartment sites and additional possibilities will occur when the entire area is sewered.

"We are not at this time proposing that these areas be zoned for apartments as this aspect will be dealt with in the Central Corridor Plan," the report said.

"At this time, however, we would suggest that any development proposals on sewerable property in this area receive very careful consideration."

PROPOSALS in Quadra-McKenzie planning report are illustrated in this map of the Saanich area. Proposals in forthcoming central corridor report will cover entire area. Proposed roads do not represent the only possible method of subdivision "nor should their location be assumed as finalized," the report says.

The report noted there are sites in the Quadra-McKenzie area which meet conditions important in selecting apartment areas.

Other points in the report include:

- The Willow-McBriar sewage treatment plant is not capable of much expansion and cannot support redevelopment to, for example, apartments;
- Expand within commercial area bounded by Quadra-McKenzie-Reynolds-Borden as feasibility and need arises. Avoid at all costs piecemeal development;
- No reason to acquire parkland with expansion of Reynolds Road School to a total of 17.22 acres. Seven municipal parks are within one mile of Quadra-McKenzie intersection;
- Remaining commercial development, for most part, should remain. Only change recommended is extension of shopping centre at Reynolds and Quadra south to St. Peter's Road. Report said this would not be allowing ribbon commercial development but would extend it to a more logical boundary;
- Pedestrian walkway along CNR right-of-way when railway is abandoned.

Drivers Rattled By Snow

Numerous Crashes; Bus Strikes Pole

Compacted snow and ice patches caused 10 car accidents in Saanich rush hour this morning—but no one was injured.

The early morning flow of traffic was slowed by trouble spots on Cedar Hill Cross Road — where a bus slid into a pole — on Cordova Bay Road, Royal Oak, Tillicum, near Gorge and Harriet and many others.

By the time motorists reached the city they were driving so cautiously that city police had no reportable accidents. There was only one in Esquimalt and none in Oak Bay.

DOWN TO 25

A powder of snow which fell Tuesday night in urban areas, froze on roads and windshields in areas away from the waterfront. Gonzales Hill temperatures didn't dip below 34 but at Tillicum Road it was 25 at grass level.

Most local snow — half an inch — fell in Cordova Bay area and at Patricia Bay airport an inch was recorded.

Up-Island conditions were worse, especially at higher levels. Chains or snow tires were mandatory on the Malahat this morning but traffic was not delayed.

Port Alberni had five inches on the ground, Nanaimo three inches, Comox six inches and Courtenay 10 inches.

LINES OUT

Duncan-Cowichan district had four inches of snow on top of five inches left from Monday when half the toll lines to Victoria were out of action temporarily. Power was out at Lake Cowichan Monday for two hours.

Cowichan Lake Road driving was hazardous with logging and chip trucks having problems on hills. A number of them were ditched but no one was hurt.

A Victoria weather official said cold air swinging off the Mainland was warming as it crossed the straits and there was no indication of snow, except for small flurries, descending on this area late today or Thursday.

RESIGNATION

Class A Fair 'Too Much' For Society

A. W. (Bud) Mesher resigned Tuesday as chairman of the Saanichton fair centennial entertainment committee in protest over plans to make the exhibition an "A" class show.

He resigned at a meeting of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society. He was succeeded by Willard Michell, vice-chairman of the committee.

Fair officials have applied to the federal government to upgrade the exhibition from a Class "B" to an "A" class fair.

TOO MUCH

The society is awaiting a reply.

Mr. Mesher thinks the society will be taking on too much if the fair becomes a Class "A" Fair. It will call for more exhibits and more prize money.

The committee was formed two years ago to plan activities and entertainment to mark the 100th anniversary of the fair in September of this year.

Mr. Mesher has been an active member of the society for the past 10 years, especially in the field of entertainment.

He has been in charge of the horse show some years and was responsible for introduction of the cutting horse competitions —one of the fair's most popular attractions.

Man Admits Break-in At Grocery

One man pleaded guilty and a companion pleaded not guilty in central court today to breaking and entering a grocery store overnight.

Charles was remanded to Jan. 17 for pre-sentence report and sentence. Charlie was remanded to the same date for trial.

RENT INCREASED

Family Service Moving March 1

Victoria Family and Children's Service will move out of Spencerhouse March 1 to new Fort Street offices.

Other welfare agencies at Spencerhouse, already subject to a Jan. 1 rent boost, are fearful their rents will be jumped again when F and CS departs.

Spencerhouse, located at 1951 Victorian Order of Nurses, Community Chest and John Howard Society. Community Welfare Council moved out recently.

Rents in Spencerhouse have been relatively low. It was built by the Sara Spencer Foundation as a common headquarters for local welfare and charitable agencies. But the endowment made no special grant to meet costs of later depreciation.

38% INCREASE

Now with furnace and other renovations necessary, the foundation has been required to increase the rents. Greater Victoria Community Chest which has occupied most of the top floor for $160 a month, now will pay $220 a month—an increase of almost 38 per cent.

Some Community Chest officials believe that with Family and Children's Service leaving, further rent adjustments are indicated unless the F and CS offices are taken over by new tenants.

The service was forced to move because of increased activities in the welfare field. For some time two of its departments have been located elsewhere. The offices administering to unwed mothers has been in the Montreal Trust Building. And the adoption offices have been on Meares Street.

These will once again be under the same roof when the F and CS move is completed

A branch office at Fernwood and Gladstone will be undisturbed by the move.

Director Gordon Wright said his agency will take over the second floor of a new office building at 1627 Fort, March 1. The building is a conversion and was formerly a Safeway Store.

A new three-storey wing is being added and Mr. Wright's agency will take over the second floor of the wing also on Sept. 1.

All Companies Hike Fuel Oil Cent a Gallon

All major companies have increased domestic fuel oil prices by one cent a gallon.

Prices in the Victoria area now are in the range of 20.6-21 cents per gallon for furnace oils and 23.5-26.5 cents a gallon for stove oil, which varies according to volume.

Man Gets 10 Days For Street Begging

A man who begged on Johnson Street Tuesday night was sentenced today in central court to 10 days in jail.

'Moment of Truth' Coming for Socreds

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today said the coming Legislative session will bring the long-delayed "moment of truth" for B.C.

He said there are signs everywhere that the Social Credit administration is in deep financial trouble and predicted the government will do everything it can to "make this a cover-up session."

But the NDP caucus is meeting twice as often as normal prior to a session because it is determined to expose mismanagement of the province's affairs.

"There is a moment of truth coming to this province very soon," he said in an interview.

"After 15 years of big talk of boom, there is government failure in all areas to meet the needs of the people and they are becoming very disturbed about it."

He said the government not only has fallen behind the people's needs in such fields as housing, hospitals, and schools but also in industrial development "and even highway construction."

'Boorish Behavior' Must Stop

Police Action Requested Against Square Vandals

Centennial Square vandals will face tougher police action during the next few months if Ald. Cecil Parrott has his way.

Ald. Parrott, chairman of the Victoria public works committee, said today he has come to the end of the line in his tolerance for boorish behavior.

His remarks came hard on the heels of a protest from three Centennial Square merchants who in a lawyer-signed letter to city council demanded urgent action to prevent loitering on the covered walk-way between Douglas Street and the elevator leading to the municipal parking facility.

The merchants claim that lunch-time and after-school loiterers, mostly juveniles, are a serious deterrent to business.

Ald. Parrott doesn't think all the troubles in Centennial Square can be laid to juveniles.

"But there is no doubt in my mind that they are responsible for much of the vandalism taking place over recent months," he said.

The repair bill in the Square during the past year was between $2,500 and $3,000 over and above the annual cost of $25,745 for keeping the area up to scratch.

ELEVATOR AGAIN

"Just last week we had to again do repairs on the elevator," said Ald. Parrott. "I've lost count on how many times the thing has been damaged by youngsters.

"At the same time we again had problems in the washroom created by people who are worse than animals in their behavior. It's almost a weekly chore for city hall crews to have to flush out and fumigate after these filthy people have been around.

MUST STOP

"I don't know how much of that is caused by the young people, but by golly, it's got to stop. We just can't put up with it any longer."

Ald. Parrott said he had every sympathy with the merchants complaining about loitering juveniles.

"It isn't the first complaint we have had," he said. "Hardly a day goes by without someone telephoning or stopping you to complain that the youngsters just deliberately get in the way of pedestrians."

Since the advent of colder weather and the disappearance of most hippies the same area has become a holiday and after-school rendezvous place for some high school-age students.

Ald. Parrott said he will discuss the situation with Chief Jack Gregory to see what could be done to halt excessive vandalism.

"It makes me sick to think that people, whatever age they may be, can do this sort of thing in one of the most beautiful spots in the city," he said.

Original construction and beautification of the Centennial Square area cost the taxpayers $213,325. With maintenance costs now pushing $30,000 a year it will have cost more in eight years to maintain the Square than it did for the original design, landscaping and construction.

Two major items in the annual cost are maintenance of the fountain at $7,400 and parks employees salaries at $11,300.

"I don't think anyone doubts that with that kind of investment at stake we shall be justified in cracking down hard on anyone we catch performing acts of vandaliam or other even more disgusting acts."

Squealers' Egos Face Puncturing

Victoria streets will be quieter this summer if city council agrees with Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor says the growing number of complaints reaching his office regarding squealing tires and noisy mufflers have convinced him that tough legislation is required to halt the nuisance.

He said there are too many motorists operating their vehicles to the maximum annoyance of the public.

"The squealing of tires and the roaring of engines and exhausts may do something for the otherwise starved egos of those who resort to such thoughtlessness," he said. "They certainly do nothing for the peace of mind of the rest of us."

The mayor said he is studying an excessive noise bylaw recently passed in Vancouver with a view to introducing a similar bylaw to city council in the near future.

Ask The Times

Q. If in the event that a partner in a joint bank account-deposit box or any other kind of account dies, is the account and box sealed off from the surviving partner? M.B.

A. The surviving partner can withdraaw half the amount in any account up to $2,500. A larger withdrawal requires a government release order. A deposit box is sealed, except for removal of the will and the listing of its contents with a lawyer and the estate's executor, unless a government release is obtained, according to a local bank manager.

Q. Where can I obtain model-making plans of the clipper ship "Flying Cloud?" P.N.P.

A. Local hobbies and craft shops carry directories of plans and blueprints for all such models that you can check before ordering.

CALF'S HEART VALVE PLACED IN WOMAN

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli doctor has replaced a damaged human heart valve with a valve from the heart of a calf and reports his young woman patient is progressing "quite well".

Professor Maurice Levi, a Bulgarian-born surgeon who has won acclaim for his skill in replacing damaged human organs, performed the operation several days ago at nearby Beilinson Hospital. He did not identify the patient, who he said may be released from the hospital in two weeks.

Levi, 41, a fellow student of Dr.Christiaan N. Barnard, of Cape Town, at the University of Minnesota, said his team had been doing about three to four successful heart valve operations a week using plastic valves.

'Liaison Lack In Welfare Work Hits Individual'

A lamentable lack of liaison between agencies involved in social welfare is creating undue hardship for many individuals, says Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor said that although his experience in the field was limited, he was convinced after one year in office "that there is frequently a lamentable lack of adequate liaison between the various agencies involved, both private and public, as well as between the three levels of government."

Mayor Stephen added that after considering the large numbers of persons dealing in one way or another with problems of social distress he was sure that the human resources employed were adequate.

"What is so obviously lacking at the moment is a thorough and co-ordinated use of these resources and an understanding of the inter-relationship between each part of the problem.

"At present we try too frequently to tackle these parts in isolation and through the medium of water-tight compartments. Unfortunately we forget that the ultimate loser in this fragmented approach is the individual."

The mayor said he had already held some preliminary talks with the provincial authorities and that he was encouraged by their awareness of the problem.

But he is not waiting for the provincial authorities to show the lead in the matter of establishing a better liaison between various social welfare fields.

He said it was already obvious that there was a serious lack of liaison between case workers in the city social welfare department and the staff of the family court.

"At present up to five workers can be referring and discussing cases with the court," he said.

"Since neither side is fully conversant with all aspects of the other's work, it would appear expedient to attach a social worker to work full time with the court in both family and juvenile cases and who will thus be familiar with policies of both departments."

The mayor added that during budget discussions this spring he would ask approval of an expenditure of $2,778 for the purpose of tightening the link between the two sets of workers. The money would pay the salary of the new worker for six months.

He said city social welfare employees were already being snowed under with an average of 250 to 300 new cases each month and with 1,000 active cases on the books.

Two major changes in the administration field, both scheduled to take place over the next two years, will create additional problems.

Change number one will take place when the welfare institution and private hospital placement service, now functioning through six regional offices, is centralized under one roof in Victoria.

The other when the Old-Age Assistance Board in Vancouver opens a Victoria branch.

"While neither of these changes is likely to involve the city in extra staff costs, they will raise serious accommodation problems for our already over-taxed facilities on Cook Street," the mayor said.

KIERANS A SCRAPPER WITH IDEAS

'He Welcomes Change With Both Hands'

MONTREAL (CP)—Eric William Kierans, smart, scrappy, swift and daring, not only accepts change—he goes out to welcome it with both hands.

The 53-year-old son of an Irish immigrant and a German mother has won a formidable reputation in several careers. His attitude to change is central to his challenge, issued Tuesday night, for the prime ministership of Canada.

Asked why he feels better qualified for the job over federal ministerial hopefuls, the former Quebec minister replied:

"I feel that at this time a willingness to accept change and indeed to promote change, not only constitutional but economic, will be one of the prime requirements of a future leader and a future prime minister."

Mr. Kierans has been called a new breed of cat in Canadian politics— a scrapper with ideas. Characteristically, he is the first major candidate to declare himself formally in the race for the national leadership of the Liberal party in succession to Prime Minister Pearson.

DISCUSSES HOPES

His strikingly blue eyes reflected a growing intensity of feeling as he spoke of a changing Canada attaining a greater degree of economic independence from the United States in a rapidly changing world of staggering scientific advance and population growth.

"Mr. Pearson's decision to retire demands more than just a search for a new leader of the Liberal party," said the politician-economist professor-administrator - businessman-salesman. "It also provides the opportunity for a basic reassessment of the party's position as a whole and its appeal to the electorate."

The party, with its main strength in Quebec and urban Ontario, was in danger of becoming a sectional rather than a national organization.

"Canadians and Liberals, without in any way criticizing or implying criticism of all the party has done under the leadership of Mr. Pearson, now will have the opportunity to decide what will be the most appropriate policies for the future."

STRESSES KEY POSTS

Mr. Kierans has never sat in the House of Commons but he stressed his 1963-66 experience in key ministerial posts—revenue and health—in the Quebec Liberal government of Jean Lesage. Those were some of the most momentous days of the Quiet Revolution.

"I feel that my experience in this area . . . qualifies me to present the views and to consider the views of both English- and French-Canadians," said Mr. Kierans. "In any event, I will attempt to develop this theme during the leadership campaign.

"Secondly, I think it is fairly clear from past experience that I'm quite prepared to re-examine any situation and promote agressively the changes which are called for."

DEFINES STAND

"I do believe that the role of the government is to provide for the real needs of the people, that this dependence on government is increasing.

"One may deplore this but it is one of the realities that people, for example, whose incomes do not increase as rapidly as costs of medical care and education obviously need assistance . . .

"I believe, though, at the moment Canada's priority in this area is to ensure the increasing productivity which will enable us to afford the increasing needs of the people. The needs are expanding much more rapidly than our ability to finance them. This imposes a burden on us of improving our ability to compete on world markets and to improve our economic performance at home."

AIR OF ACTION

Friends say an aura of excitement clings to this medium-size man of iron-grey hair and blue pin-stripe suits because of his air of commitment and action.

He keeps fit by fast games of squash. He scorns to shirk a challenge. Living in a quiet suburb, he is married and has two children, Tom, 26, with a financial firm here, and Cathy, 21, a nurse.

Significantly, Mr. Kierans believes the public is far ahead of government and civil service officials in willingness to accept change—"there's no question about it."

"This certainly has to be overcome if we are to achieve unity in Canada. I'm thinking here of changes that would give greater authority and responsibilities to provinces, and indeed the fiscal resources to go with these responsibilities, which obviously in some areas will diminish the role of the federal government, without hurting anything that is truly federal."

Mr. Kierans feels his experience as a Quebec minister would be particularly valuable to him if he won the leadership. As former president of the Canadian and Montreal stock exchanges he received rare economic and financial experience to go with his training as an economist.

His experience as a professor and school of commerce director at McGill, following a successful career in business, gave him an abiding faith in the younger generation.

"Thus my confidence in the future of Canada is complete," said Mr. Kierans, is stressing his admiration of the young set.

Mr. Kierans said separatism's appeal is particularly to young people who are looking for "ideal" solutions.

"I think that means we have to create in Canada an image of a country that is in itself proud and strong and independent—much more independent than it now is—in the role that it plays in the world and continental affairs.

"I think the Canadian image —if it is based on two cultures and two languages and properly developed—can provide an ideal for young people and, indeed, for all Canadians."

Heart Drive Needs Push

Victoria Kiwanis Club has now raised $18,000 of a $22,000 fund required for heart monitoring equipment for city hospitals.

A club spokesman said the equipment will cost about $33,000 but the provincial government will make up one third.

Doctors have estimated they could save 80 lives a year with the use of new coronary care units planned for both St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals within a few months.

Cubans Hit Oil?

HAVANA (Reuters)—Cuban officials are hoping that a strong oil gusher struck Sunday night at a nearby popular seaside resort is part of a large deposit. The strike came less than a week after Premier Fidel Castro announced gasoline rationing and strict controls on state use of oil because Soviet oil supplies were lagging far behind Cuban needs.

itz and others at Avco Corp. research laboratories in Everett, Mass. The two men are brothers.

Despite the problems raised by the difference in heart size, Dr. Kantrowitz said, a decision to go ahead with the operation was made because the blood types of the two individuals matched "so perfectly" that the chances of natural rejection were lessened.

BOTH SAME TYPE

Both donor and recipient were of AB-positive blood types, he said. This was a "rare occurance," he said, as only four per cent of the population has AB-positive blood.

Dr. Kantrowitz said Block had had several heart attacks and suffered from severe heart failure. The donor, Miss Krouch, had a "rapidly expanding brain tumor," he said.

Miss Krouch went into unconsciousness Monday at Barnert Memorial Hospital in East Paterson and was brought to Maimonides early Tuesday. She died about noon, and the operation began.

In East Paterson, the donor's father said his daughter commented, while watching a television program on transplants last Sunday: "If I knew I was going to die, I'd like my heart to be used to save somebody's life."

Joseph J. Krouch said that remark encouraged him to give his approval for the operation.

A neighbor of the Blocks said the retired fireman had been in hospital "14 times with a heart condition . . . this is the 15th." Of the surgery the neighbor said simply, "there was no other way."

Three Pay Fines For Trespassing On Watershed

Three men were fined in central court today for trespassing on watershed lands in the Shawnigan Lake area.

Fined were Barry Bomford, 1655 Chambers, $25; James Fleming, 1080 McBriar, $25; and Jacob Lindal, 5191 Rambler, $40.

"All of our policies and programs must be based upon our own history and the Canadian reality," said the man who did not take up politics actively until he was 49.

Mr. Kierans said he is retaining his Montreal seat in the Quebec legislature and has not yet considered when he might find a federal seat if successful at the Ottawa convention.

Although a Canadian nationalist, he had often differed with Walter Gordon, former finance minister and now president of the privy council, who advocated a brand of nationalism.

Mr. Kierans disliked the idea of foreign investment coming under the direction of an outside government, as had happened in the imposition of the 1965 guidelines.

CALF'S HEART VALVE PLACED IN WOMAN

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli doctor has replaced a damaged human heart valve with a valve from the heart of a calf and reports his young woman patient is progressing "quite well".

Professor Maurice Levi, a Bulgarian-born surgeon who has won acclaim for his skill in replacing damaged human organs, performed the operation several days ago at nearby Beilinson Hospital. He did not identify the patient, who he said may be released from the hospital in two weeks.

Levi, 41, a fellow student of Dr.Christiaan N. Barnard, of Cape Town, at the University of Minnesota, said his team had been doing about three to four successful heart valve operations a week using plastic valves.

'Liaison Lack In Welfare Work Hits Individual'

A lamentable lack of liaison between agencies involved in social welfare is creating undue hardship for many individuals, says Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor said that although his experience in the field was limited, he was convinced after one year in office "that there is frequently a lamentable lack of adequate liaison between the various agencies involved, both private and public, as well as between the three levels of government."

Mayor Stephen added that after considering the large numbers of persons dealing in one way or another with problems of social distress he was sure that the human resources employed were adequate.

"What is so obviously lacking at the moment is a thorough and co-ordinated use of these resources and an understanding of the inter-relationship between each part of the problem.

"At present we try too frequently to tackle these parts in isolation and through the medium of water-tight compartments. Unfortunately we forget that the ultimate loser in this fragmented approach is the individual."

The mayor said he had already held some preliminary talks with the provincial authorities and that he was encouraged by their awareness of the problem.

But he is not waiting for the provincial authorities to show the lead in the matter of establishing a better liaison between various social welfare fields.

He said it was already obvious that there was a serious lack of liaison between case workers in the city social welfare department and the staff of the family court.

"At present up to five workers can be referring and discussing cases with the court," he said.

"Since neither side is fully conversant with all aspects of the other's work, it would appear expedient to attach a social worker to work full time with the court in both family and juvenile cases and who will thus be familiar with policies of both departments."

The mayor added that during budget discussions this spring he would ask approval of an expenditure of $2,778 for the purpose of tightening the link between the two sets of workers. The money would pay the salary of the new worker for six months.

He said city social welfare employees were already being snowed under with an average of 250 to 300 new cases each month and with 1,000 active cases on the books.

Two major changes in the administration field, both scheduled to take place over the next two years, will create additional problems.

Change number one will take place when the welfare institution and private hospital placement service, now functioning through six regional offices, is centralized under one roof in Victoria.

The other when the Old-Age Assistance Board in Vancouver opens a Victoria branch.

"While neither of these changes is likely to involve the city in extra staff costs, they will raise serious accommodation problems for our already over-taxed facilities on Cook Street," the mayor said.

Gestapo Tactics Claim by Indians

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Indian leader charged the Indian affairs department with consistently using "Gestapo tactics" by keeping files on Indians who spoke out against department operations or personnel.

Omer Peters, president of the Union of Ontario Indians which represents 50,000 Indians, said in an interview that Indian leaders who entered the civil service often become silent over their problems.

He said the department had used Indians' silence to indicate agreement on policies.

Mr. Peters and Wilmer Nadjiwan, vice-president of the union, said the 15-member all-Indian advisory council of the department has been used as a tool and as "built-in self-protection" by Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing.

"If you've got the guts to stand up and talk you put yourself in the position where you'll be made to look like only the joker of the reserve," Mr. Naadjiwan said. "You don't want to come to the point where you can't talk to the government."

The two Indians said that Mr. Laing's department often says it has Indian backing for programs by pointing to the council's acceptance of them, but in fact the council is often against implemented programs.

KEPT QUIET

"Indians have kept quiet about their dissatisfaction because they did not want to hurt programs that might be under development, but now we feel the department has just used us," Mr. Nadjiwan said.

They said problems between the government and Canadian Indians will not be solved until Mr. Laing is relieved of most of his responsibility.

Indians would have to take an active role in a proposed Indian development corporation, coordinating regionally the work of federal and provincial agencies.

The corporation, called for in a brief by the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, would strip the Indian affairs branch of most powers but keep it as the safeguard of Indian lands and treaty rights.

Conviction In Test Case

The Micmac Indians regarded the illegal fishing charge as a test case. They claim their rights to fish and hunt year-round are accorded them by ancient treaties.

Defence Counsel R. D. Mitton, QC, of Moncton, said he would decide upon an appeal to the New Brunswick Supreme Court after further study of the judgment.

Levying a $10 fine against Mr. Francis, Judge Richard said the Indians must conform with the law or face the possibility of imprisonment in default of fine and costs.

The federal government has announced it will pay the cost of the Micmac's defence.

Easterner Jailed

GANGES — Found guilty of theft, cashing worthless cheques and contributing to juvenile delinquency, Ronald Joseph Ollman, 19, of Hamilton, Ont., was sentenced to nine months definite and 12 months indefinite in jail.

He was brought back from Prince George to answer the charges. On leaving Salt Spring Island he was said to have taken a young girl with him.

Children Put on Raft

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Poverty-stricken parents tied their four children to a raft, loaded it with bananas and some other food, and sent them floating down a river in South Sumatra, the Indonesian Antara news agency reported Tuesday. The children were rescued from the raft. Their parents were not found.

CBC Newsman Quits

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Nuttall, executive producer of the CBC-TV national news, announced his resignation Tuesday night in protest against an impending reorganization of the publicly - owned corporation's news department. The dispute involves creation of a new position of managing editor for the CBC's national news telecasts and the appointment of Joseph Schlesinger, a Toronto newspaper man to that position.

Trial Moved Because Of Bias

WHITESBURG, Ky. (UPI) — The trial of Hobart Ison, charged with the fatal shooting of Canadian film producer, Hugh O'Connor, will be moved to Harlan, Ky., because of a prosecution contention that public opinion favored the defendant.

The change of venue was granted Tuesday after the court was unable to seat a jury. In two days, 88 veniremen were rejected after they admitted they had formed an opinion about Ison's guilt or innocence.

Prosecutor Emmett Fields said it was common talk in the area that the producer should have been killed and that Ison should not be convicted. Fields said several persons had urged him not to prosecute.

O'Connor, 46, of Montreal, was killed Sept. 20 while he and a three-man camera crew were attempting to film houses owned by Ison as part of a documentary film on life in the United States.

Police said Ison, a 69-year-old retired sawmill operator, ordered the crew off his property and then opened fire with a pistol while they were packing equipment. O'Connor was hit in the chest.

Vocational Classes Urged In High Schools

A suggestion that vocational courses be given in existing high schools was made on Tuesday by John Bartanus, chairman of the Sooke School Board.

He told a board meeting that schools could offer vocational courses pending the construction of a vocational school in the Greater Victoria district.

The question will be discussed further at a four-board meeting at Glen Lake School Thursday at 8 p.m.

Representatives from the four lower Vancouver Island school boards—Sooke, Saanich, Victoria and Gulf Islands—will be present.

Trustee Fred Willway said the proposed government's vocational school seems "to be a long, long way in the distance."

"We have students who are graduating in courses leading up to vocational training, and anything we could afford to offer them would be better than leaving them stranded," he said.

Sumatrans Starving

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A severe rice shortage in South Sumatra has left people dying from starvation or living off wild fruits and berries, the Indonesian news agency Antara reported Wednesday.

Big Recessions 'Highly Unlikely'

OTTAWA (CP) — The sheer size of government spending makes future major recessions "highly unlikely" in North America, economist Derek White has concluded in a paper for the Economic Council of Canada.

He does not rule out trouble from an international crisis in trade or from a natural catastrophe like widespread drought.

But he doubts that the economy of either the United States or Canada will be permitted to generate a big slump on its own.

The study shows that declining investment can push an economic pause into a serious recession, but it also records how the shape of investment has changed by the growth of government.

For example, in the 1920s, non-government investment in the U.S. was twice the value of government expenditures on goods and services. Thirty years later it had fallen to four-fifths of government spending.

In the same period in Canada, non-government investment declined from double government spending to one-fourth more.

Smoothly-growing government outlays are stable forces working against such volatile items as inventory changes and spending on machinery and equipment.

White emphasizes the potential influence of long-term planning in construction outlays by governments and their agencies.

The manufacturing and mining sectors, where programs may change dramatically from year to year, accounted for only about 20 per cent of all non-residential construction.

The study also discusses the potential of such economic stabilizers as business tax incentives, transfer payments, income and corporation tax cuts and monetary policy.

But it warns that their potential has not been applied effectively to offset harmful economic fluctuations in the past. "Formidable obstacles" lie in the way of co-ordinating federal, provincial and municipal expenditures to flatten out the business cycle.

The study questions stronger government spending at times when the private sector is growing at its potential rate. In these circumstances, problems of inflation are being ignored.

Professionals Amaze Wardill

NANAIMO — Magistrate Stan Wardill said here Tuesday he is "amazed" at the number of professional drivers who get into trouble with the police.

Man Wounded

The wound was self-inflicted accidentally with a .22 calibre rifle at his home on the Quamichan Reserve, RCMP said.

Thomson Favors 'Jungle Law' In Economics

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The British government has gone overboard on social services and made it too easy for the people to lean on the government, Lord Thomson said Tuesday.

He said people in Britain are living beyond their means and are not producing enough to support the social services which, he suggested, shoud be cut.

Lord Thomson was speaking to a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs just before he officially opened the new $300,000 building of The Packet and Times.

"People should look after themselves," he said. "It's called the law of the jungle, but is really the law of life."

Lord Thomson said Britain no longer is a world power, but keeps acting like one. He said British people must try to accustom themselves to a lower standard of living for a while.

He also said it does not make sense to have nine national newspapers in Britain.

"The country can't maintain them," he said.

LOSING ON PAPER

He said he will lose $4,000,000 this year on the Times of London, but he considers it an investment.

Lord Thomson said his company is going to enter new fields such as the packaged-tour travel business. He believed, however, that newspapers have a great future.

After his speech, he pressed a button to start The Packet and Times' twin presses rolling. Premier Robarts and other provincial and local dignitaries attended the ceremony.

The Packet and Times, which celebrated its 100th birthday last May, moved to the new building last October.

'Too Early' To Decide Ship's Fate

GOLD RIVER — The owners of the sunken Dutch freighter Schiedyk said Tuesday it will be several days before they will decide the fate of the vessel which went down off Bligh Island on the west coast of Vancouver Island Thursday.

Captain Fritz Horn of Rotterdam, a senior official of Holland-America Lines, said in an interview it is too early now to determine what will be done with the 9,600-ton ship and its cargo of pulp and grain.

Captain Horn said he will remain in the area of the sinking for a few days to examine the ship. Assisting him is John Hellendoorn of the Salvage Association of London, representing the insurers, Lloyds, and officials of Island Tug and Barge Ltd. of Victoria.

Captain Horn would not discuss salvage possibilities.

"I can't tell you anything about it. It's too early," he said.

GOOD OLD DAYS were hashed over Monday by this group of ex-B.C. Electric employees when Ted Fox, centre, marked his 90th birthday. He was a streetcar conductor and had 36 years' service with the company now known as B.C. Hydro. Altogether the group represents 234 years of service. Standing are Wyn Davies 77, at left, and Frank Whitford 75. Seated are (from left), Harold Swift 75, Jim Loudoun 80, Mr. Fox, Alec McCoubrey 74, Jack Elliott 73. Streetcars were washed up in July, 1948. Only other ex-conductor is Mr. Davis, who was 42 years with the company. B.C. Hydro maintains a lounge for the retired employees where they meet almost daily for cribbage and yarns. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

TOAST TO THE FUTURE

Will Mother Nature Halt B.C. Explosion?

By ELIZABETH FORBES

We were just comfortably settled around the dinner table when our host proposed a toast. It was to the year 2067 and the 50 million people prophesied for that time in British Columbia.

Forbes

You will remember this figure was foreseen by our premier in a letter placed in a time capsule buried New Year's Eve near the Confederation Garden Fountain.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Premier wrote to those citizens of 100 years hence: "if growth rates of this era are maintained, we can expect in your time a population of over 50,000,000 people in the province . . ."

To point up the comparison he also told them that the present population of British Columbia was something over 1,900,000.

Which means in round figures, that we'll need a gain of approximately 480,000 a year, our host suggested, if the prophecy is to come true.

Talk became general at this point as each person around the table tried to visualize a British Columbia top heavy with people.

Every foot of the Saanich Peninsula would be urbanized, a voice reminded us. The same would be true of the Fraser, the Okanagan and other similar valleys right up to the Alaska and Yukon borders.

★ ★ ★

Population would increase first around cities and towns. Then gradually it would encroach on open land until finally there would be little of pasture or forest left.

"It's possible . . . quite possible . . . " our host agreed. "That is . . . if . . . if . . . "

He hestitated. Looked down at the empty glass—from which he had proposed the toast. Then continued quickly" . . . if something doesn't happen to cry halt to this tremendous expansion."

All-out war someone asked. Not necessarily, was the answer. There were natural causes almost as destructive as hydrogen bombs.

A heavy silence descended around the dinner table. It was broken by a woman's voice reminding us that in either event bombs or the wrath of Mother Nature—it would then be very unlikely that out time capsule would ever by unearthed. At least, not for centuries.

★ ★ ★

By that time it could be a completely new type of human who happened upon it, said the thoughtful one. Probing down into the earth, no doubt, to see what sort of person inhabited this planet hundreds of years before him.

"Something like the digs that go on in the Middle East now," his wife added, "and the tablets and scrolls that have been discovered over there."

Our thoughts immediately jumped to the fact that so far even the best scholars had been unable to decipher writings on some of those tablets and scrolls.

From that point it was an easy move to the thought that if the time capsule was not discovered for a century or so, the new type of human might speak and write a completely different kind of language. English could be dead and forgotten. And its deciphering key well hidden in the mists of time.

★ ★ ★

Under such circumstances Mr. Premier's letter—and other letters buried in the time capsule—would no doubt be turned over to the scholars of that far away day in an effort to translate, decipher and, if possible, to explain them.

By now we had talked our way in speculative manner, through the dinner. And we were ready for coffee around the living room fireplace.

When cups were filled our host had another toast to propose. It was to the time capsule.

With his own cup raised high, he said in all seriousness: "Let us hope it rests undisturbed for its appointed hundred years and that it completes its mission right on the dot—New Year's Eve, 2067."

PANHANDLE TO VOTE ON MERGER

A portion of View Royal panhandle property owners will vote soon on a proposed merger with Esquimalt municipality, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Tuesday.

He said date of the vote would be set in a few days when the department receives a formal petition for boundary extension from Esquimalt council.

The petition was backed last May by an estimated 70 per cent of residents in the affected area, between Gorge and Craigflower Roads north of the present municipal boundary to Admirals Road.

Postal Workers to Bargain On Country-Wide Basis

Canadian postal workers will in future have a direct voice in their working conditions and wages.

"Previously management always made the decisions, and workers did not participate in the decision-making process," said E. J. Bell, president of the 177-member Letter Carriers' Union in Victoria.

Mr. Bell said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (clerks and handlers) and the Letter Carriers' Union have been granted joint collective bargaining rights.

The two unions with a total membership of 23,000, have been granted certification by the public service staff relations board; but will retain their separate identities.

They will make their first submission to postal service officials in about three weeks' time.

"Now we can bargain and it will no longer be a unilateral process," Mr. Bell said. "Everybody will know where they stand, and procedure will be uniform from Victoria to Newfoundland.

"Previously there were various regulations governing the postal service, but interpretation of them varied from city to city. Now it will be standard throughout the country and a carrier's route will be the same distance whether it is in Victoria or Halifax."

G. F. Kenney, president of Victoria's 119-member postal workers' unit, said he hoped eventually to see the two unions merge into one.

"Then we would be one true union," he said.

FIVE PER CENT FOR EVERYONE

Assessment notices, showing a flat five per cent increase in land and improvement values, have been mailed to all Saanich property owners.

The increase is the maximum permitted by provincial regulations and does not change the manner in which the tax load is distributed between homes and businesses.

Municipal assessor Jack Lindsay said property owners have until January 17 to register appeals to the municipal courts of revision.

Court of revision for School District 61 opens at Municipal Hall, February 1 and for School District 63 on January 31.

The assessment increase in itself does not indicate a tax increase. But setting of the millrate, when the budget is adopted in May is expected to reflect rising municipal costs. Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe has told council the tax rate will likely be required to raise an additional $560,000 this year.

He estimated a four-mill boost in the millrate would be required by the tentative budget calculations.

Sentence Suspended For Indecent Assault

A man who pleaded guilty to indecently assaulting a 17-year-old girl Dec. 28 was given a two year suspended sentence when he appeared in central court Tuesday.

Magistrate Ostler called the incident "a brutal indecent assault and a terrifying experience for the young woman."

"I have wrestled with the decision and I do not consider probation appropriate."

But the magistrate said the combination of a faultless previous character, an excellent record in the navy, a probation officer's recommendation for probation and crown assent to probation, he would grant the probation "with grave reservations."

Magistrate Ostler was critical of the fact the youthful accused spent so much of his time in a beer parlor.

"I find it astonishing that a young man of this age should be able to spend so much of his time in a public house in this area."

Impaired Driver Fined, Suspended

DUNCAN — Herbert David Livingstone, Lake Cowichan, was fined $200 in court here Saturday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Livingstone also lost his driver's licence for 30 days.

His licence was suspended for three months after he was convicted of careless driving.

The charge arose from a two-car collision near Youbou last November.

Heavy Trucks Barred From Two Freeways

Slow-moving vehicles such as heavy trucks have been barred from two lower mainland freeways by a cabinet order Tuesday.

Although not setting a minimum speed limit on the two major highways, the order prohibits "vehicles incapable of maintaining a minimum speed of 40 miles per hour on level road" from using them.

The order applies to the Deas Island Thruway from the Canada-U.S. border to the Oak Street bridge in Vancouver and to the Trans-Canada Highway from Cassiar Street in Vancouver to the junction with Highway No. 9, known as the Rosedale-Agassiz route.

A highway department official said the regulation was aimed a keeping heavy trucks off high-speed routes where there are alternative roads available.

Dangerous Driver Pays $250 Fine

The driver of a car which struck a parked truck and spun into an oncoming car was fined $250 in central court Tuesday.

Bottle Drive

The Second Douglas Tillicum Cub and Scout Troop will hold a bottle drive Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon.

Death Blow For Tax Proposals

Provinces Blast Carter Report

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The final death blows to the Carter royal commission on taxation were administered here today by the provincial treasurers meeting with Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The federal-provincial finance ministers' conference opened with a discussion on the Carter proposals and one by one the provincial treasurers in attendance voiced their criticisms.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Pearson announced today proposals for reform of the tax system will not be presented to Parliament before April.

Mr. Pearson said these proposals would be a major item of parliamentary business before the next session of the House.

Both a white paper and the legislation would require considerable discussion, he said.

Provision for discussion would be made in the new session when a new prime minister will have taken office.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta were particularly outspoken in their condemnation of many aspects of the Carter tax reform plans.

Provincial Treasurer Gurney Evans of Manitoba said his province has had a special study made on the impact on small businesses in Manitoba of the Carter proposals. It said it showed the report if implemented would be "disastrous" for the "small family store" and the small businesses of which there are many in the province.

The report if implemented would also have a detrimental effect on the formation and distribution of capital, he said. Its impact on the economy as a whole and on the social structure was not known. However, it was believed by Manitoba that it would have an adverse effect on mining and extraction industries.

"The argument is advanced by Carter that if money was discouraged from going into mining the capital would be

'JACKIE TRIED FEMININE SEDUCTION'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has declared the United States tried "feminine seduction" to restore U.S.-Cambodian relations during the recent visit of Jacqueline Kennedy.

In a 50-minute French language news conference recorded in Phnom Penh Saturday and circulated here, Sihanouk said the U.S. presidential envoy, Chester Bowles, "is going to try to succeed where Mrs. Kennedy failed."

"But he will have no more success than Jackie," Sihanouk said, "and still less because Jackie is very seductive, being a woman, and the Cambodians are always sensitive to the beauty of Venus."

Avoid Cambodia Border

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk said today the United States has agreed to respect Cambodia's frontiers.

He told a press conference the American government promised to do everything possible to avoid violating the Cambodian border with Vietnam.

Addressing a press conference after a 90-minute meeting with a special envoy from President Johnson, U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles, Sihanouk said the U.S. will pass on to the Cambodian government any information it has on Vietnamese Communist infiltration "in order to allow Cambodia to carry out her duty as a neutral."

The prince said that when infiltrations are reported, he will send Cambodian armed forces to "invite the Viet Cong (guerrillas)—to leave Cambodian territory."

At the same time, he said, he will ask the International Control Commission for Cambodia —comprising Canada, India and Poland, to carry out a "minute inquiry," but he will not publicly denounce the Viet Cong.

He said the Americans do not want to use the right of pursuit of Viet Cong forces which seek sanctuary in Cambodia. "They are merely trying to help preserve Cambodia's neutrality."

Bowles arrived here Monday from New Delhi, where he is ambassador, to outline United States policy to Sihanouk.

Sihanouk said he would also welcome information "regarding all foreign infiltration, including that of CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) agents."

RELAXED, FRIENDLY

He said the atmosphere during the talks with Bowles were "relaxed and very friendly."

He described the results of the meeting as "positive." Both sides avoided "points which separate us," he added.

Brooklyn Team Loses Another

NE YORK (CP)—Louis Block, the world's fifth heart transplant recipient, died at 4:35 a.m. today at Maimondes Medical Centre in Brooklyn, where he had undergone surgery 10 hours earlier.

Block, married and the father of two sons, was the third of the world's five heart transplant patients to die—leaving two alive.

Block's death meant the second heart graft failure for Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, who Dec. 6 attempted the first heart transplant in the U.S. on an infant who died 6 hours after the operation.

ONLY CHANCE

The statement said:

"It is with a deep sense of regret that we must report the loss of our heart transplant patient. He was a brave and courageous man. . . .

"We feel that the major problem in this case was related to the pumping capacity of the transplanted heart and the poor condition of the lungs due to the patient's long-standing heart disease. . . ."

Meanwhile, preparations for another heart transplant operation were under way at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Oklahoma City, the Daily Oklahoman reported.

Block was reported in "reasonably satisfactory condition" shortly after the operation, but his name was placed on the critical list early today when doctors were said to be having difficulty maintaining his blood pressure.

Less than an hour after the marathon operation—it lasted eight hours, 20 minutes—Dr. Kantrowitz told more than 100 reporters: "We have had some problems."

HEART IS SMALL

The heart of the donor, Miss Helen Krouch of East Paterson, N.J., was "rather small—about half of the size we would have thought best," he said. She weighed less than 100 pounds, he said.

Because of this, the heart could not maintain the body's circulation by itself, Dr. Kantrowitz said, and an auxiliary pump was brought into use. The doctors thus performed two bold procedures in the same operation.

Dr. Kantrowitz described it as a balloon pump, a balloon inserted into the main artery which inflates and deflates, pulsed to the beat of the heart, to force blood through the heart and the rest of the body. It is attached to an exterior pump.

"We will use it as long as we have to," Dr. Kantrowitz said. The pump, a new device, has been used for as long as five days so far in other heart cases.

A balloon pump has been developed by Dr. Arthur Kantrow-

'Significant Improvement' At Stanford

Sustained by the steady beat of a housewife's heart, the retired steelworker was able to sit on the side of his bed several times during the night. His condition remained critical, however.

Kasperak, 54, was supported by nurses and remained inside a mechanical respirator while sitting up, according to a mid-morning medical bulletin issued by Stanford University.

"His blood pressure is normal, pulse 108, and he has no fever," the bulletin said. "Dialysis and artificial respiration are being decreased to allow his kidneys and lungs to resume their full functions. His physicians are still concerned about his abnormal liver function.

The bulletin, the most optimistic on his condition since his operation, said "there has been significant improvement in Mr. Kasperak's condition although he is still on the critical list".

Students Strangled In State School

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Three mentally retarded students in their 20s were found strangled, apparently by bedsheets, beside their bed, in a dormitory at the St. Louis state school and hospital today. St. Louis County police took four unidentified suspects into custody for questioning.

NO RELIEF UNTIL FRIDAY

Weather Retains Icy Grip

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bundled-up Canadians went to work today, protected against the cold weather and snow which held most of the country in its icy grip.

No relief was expected today in the Maritimes from the snow and frigid weather which has taken three lives in New Brunswick. The cold was expected to last until Friday.

Western Newfoundland, battered by blizzards in the last five days, was expected to gain relief, however, as the cold winds subsided.

ROADS BLOCKED

Plows struggled to open main highways in Prince Edward Island. Secondary roads were still clogged.

Halifax recorded six-below-zero, its coldest Jan. 8 in 70 years. A 90-year-record was broken at Montreal when the temperature dipped to 21 below Monday and 23 below Tuesday. Scores of schools were closed.

The morning Ontario weather forecast said sub-zero readings could be expected overnight and Thursday. The snow, general in Ontario Tuesday, ended before midnight in most places.

Plumbers thawing frozen pipes with acetelyne torches are thought to have caused a fire in Hotel-Dieu Hospital in St. Hyacinthe, Que., which forced evacuation of about 1,200 persons.

FOUR DEAD

Four children died in a house fire in West Lorne, Ont., Tuesday. Another fire at Oakville destroyed a two-family house and forced 21 persons, including 11 children into sub-zero weather.

Records for overnight low temperatures on a Jan. 9 were set in the seven Ontario communities of Moosonee —46, Earlton —35, Trenton —24, Killaloe —38, Ottawa —26, Sarnia —4 and Kingston —26.

Clouds moved over Manitoba, which reported clear skies Tuesday.

Temperatures in Saskatchewan dipped to 15 below.

Storm warnings in Alberta closed rural schools near Red Deer.

He will become the first federal cabinet minister to enter the race officially and the third candidate.

Swinging New Federalism Demands Grit Candidate

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Eric Kierans opened another tour early today, 10 hours after jumping into the national Liberal leadership contest with a demand for a swinging "new federalism."

The 53-year-old former Quebec revenue and health minister announced his candidacy for the prime ministership at a partly-televised press conference when he reported his resignation as president of the 100,000-member Quebec Liberal Federation.

The first nationally-known figure to enter the race, Mr. Kierans envisaged a new independence and dynamism in Canada whose French- and English-language citizens would be drawn closer together by constitutional changes.

The economist and former university professor gave two reasons why he decided to offer himself to the Ottawa April 4-6 Liberal convention which will pick a successor for Prime Minister Pearson:

"Because I am concerned with the speed of and demand for change sweeping the world, and Canada in particular. A federal state is a state in motion; it demands from its government continual adaptation and evolution."

He arranged an early departure today for Fredericton, Saint John and Moncton—where, incidentally, he started his business life as a flour salesman some 30 years ago.

He was scheduled to go to Charlottetown Thursday then to Halifax Friday and Saturday to attend a meeting of the Nova Scotia Liberal Federation and Ottawa Sunday. He will then go to Toronto and Winnipeg.

Mr. Kierans served in two Quebec portfolios—revenue and health—in 1963-66, during Quebec's Quiet Revolution when experts of every kind were brought in by Mr. Lesage and his colleagues to cope with and encourage surging change. Mr. Kierans now proposes an infusion of similar new blood in Ottawa.

Opposition Condemns Boycott

By JOHN MIKA

Opposition party leaders today charged Premier Bennett was letting British Columbia down by skipping a finance ministers' meeting in Ottawa today while extending his post-Christmas holiday in the United States sun.

Mr. Bennett had said he would be back at his desk this morning but it was learned he would stay on holiday until Monday.

Meanwhile, the federal-provincial meeting on the Carter Tax Commission report opened in Ottawa with only B.C. unrepresented, as the premier had decided earlier.

Both New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan and Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Mr. Bennett was failing his province as finance minister by boycotting the meeting.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, acting finance minister while Mr. Bennett is holidaying, defended the boycott on the grounds that too many federal-provincial meetings "tend to be

PUBLICITY TAKES UP EXTRA TIME

It's Hard Work Working for Nothing

LONDON (Reuters) — Five young secretaries who started a Back Britain campaign by working an unpaid extra 30 minutes a day have found the publicity taking up most of the extra time.

Offers for television interviews, marriage, blind dates, vacations in Spain, yachting trips and free weekends in a London hotel have poured into the office where they work in the south London suburb of Surbiton.

And they have to get up even earlier than they originally planned—so they can make up more carefully in case television cameras start shooting them on their way to work.

"We must be madly careful this doesn't turn into a stunt," said 16-year-old Carol White, second youngest of the quintet, who have turned down a flood of offers.

Television crews, reporters and officials from government and industry have lined up to interview them since their free work plan started a nationwide campaign aimed at inspiring a mass burst of unpaid work to help Britain out of its economic doldrums.

But there was no evidence of a mass response to the campaign, boosted by London newspapers, one of which issued rectangular badges printed with the Union Jack and the motto "I'm backing Britain."

BULLS-EYE LANDING IN CRATER

'Wild Lunar Scene' Filmed by Surveyor

PASADENA, Calif. (CP) — The lunar exploration program today appeared to have taken a major step forward thanks to the successful near bulls-eye landing of the Surveyor VII on the moon.

Narrowly missing a dangerous rock, the spacecraft settled down gently on the moon Tuesday night and televised the wildest scene yet found by U.S. lunar probes.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here were pleased that the last of the scheduled, unmanned American lunar probes landed in terrain far different from areas in which four previous successful Surveyors landed.

Surveyor program manager Benjamin Milwitsky of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said:

"It is very clearly a different terrain. I think we'll be a major step up in our understanding of the moon from the information gathered by Surveyor VII."

WERE THE SAME

The three-legged craft, last of a $500,000,000 series which has already certified four equatorial sites as safe for astronaut landing, was on a purely scientific mission to the 15,000-foot crater Tycho near the south-central edge of the lunar disc.

Between the craft and the rim was a desolate scene, reminiscent of the crater Copernicus photographed earlier by lunar orbiters.

Pictures televised shortly after touchdown showed a landscape littered with rocks ejected from miles deep when the 50-mile wide Tycho was formed by a meteor impact ages ago.

Surveyor VII, launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday, carries a small scoop to dig trenches as deep as 18 inches and a device to analyse lunar soil with radiation.
